PRESIDENT GETS NEWS AT HOME.

Notified of Nomination While Chatting with His Family After Luncheon at White House.

ALL SHOW THEIR JOY.

Col. Roosevelt Hastens to Send Telegram of Congratulations to Senator Fairbanks.

Washington, D. C., June 23.—[Special.]—President Roosevelt was seated on the south portico of the White house with his family when he received the news this afternoon of his nomination as the standard bearer of his party. He had just finished luncheon which was served on the portico, and was chatting with his wife and children. In the line of vision where he sat was an excellent view of the historic Potomac river.

It was 2:12 p. m. when Secretary Loeb hurried from the executive office with the dispatch containing the news of the convention's action and read it to the president.

Col. Roosevelt was in high spirits and was naturally delighted with the tidings. Mrs. Roosevelt was the first person to congratulate him. She was followed by Miss Roosevelt, then Miss Carow, Mrs. Roosevelt's sister, extended her felicitations.

Children Predict His Election.

The small children of the president then affectionately congratulated their father and declared that he would be elected. Secretary Loeb also extended his congratulations and then returned to the president's office, while Col. Roosevelt remained with his family for a few moments longer discussing the action of the convention.

Though obviously pleased, the president was the most unconcerned, seemingly, of all those in the group. He had kept in close touch with the situation in Chicago through the press bulletins and private messages from the convention hall, which were received over a special wire at the White house.

In Touch with Convention.

As Mr. Roosevelt's name had been presented to the convention a brief bulletin had come within three minutes announcing the fact and describing the applause with which the presentation was greeted. Other bulletins had been received during frequent intervals in the course of the nominating speech by Frank S. Black. Seconding speeches also had been announced over the wire, and extracts from each speech had been sent to the president to read. At no time had more than ten minutes elapsed between the various happenings in the convention and the receipt of the news of them in the president's office.

So when the announcement of the nomination was carried to him he was "prepared" for it.

News Celebrated with Cigars.

Soon afterward Col. Roosevelt followed his secretary to the executive offices, where he met a group of newspaper men, who congratulated him. While they were conversing with him a messenger entered bearing a box of cigars. Col. Roosevelt took the box and passed the cigars to his visitors in honor of his nomination.

"Don't tell Carrie Nation I am passing around tobacco," said the president, recalling the Kansas hatchet wielder's charge that he uses tobacco, a charge that was denied promptly by Secretary Loeb.

Is Undisturbed by His Triumph.

Sitting tilted back in a big armchair at his desk, the president chatted freely and frankly with those about him. All were his personal friends, and the president realized the confidences of the "executive session," as he himself termed it, would be held as inviolable.

He talked and acted, not as president of the United States, not as a newly nominated leader of a political party, but as Theodore Roosevelt, the man and friend. He chatted on; exchanged comments on men or things; laughed heartily at a cartoon of himself to which his attention was drawn; sketched in a freehand way incidents of the convention; recalled some interesting situations, personal and political; and, in conclusion, again expressed thanks for their congratulations.

Assistant Secretary of State Francis B. Loomis was the first official of the administration to extend his congratulations. Later in the day, however, other officials called at the White house.

Congratulates Senator Fairbanks.

As soon as the president received news of the nomination of Senator Fairbanks as the candidate for vice president he sent to him the following telegram:

White House, Washington, D. C., June 23.—The Hon. Charles W. Fairbanks, Chicago, Ill.: Permit me to extend to you and the country my heart congratulations on your nomination. I need hardly add how much pleased I am personally.
THEODORE ROOSEVELT.

In a short time this reply was received from Senator Fairbanks:

Chicago, June 23.—The Hon. Theodore Roosevelt, Washington, D. C.: I thank you for your congratulations. To be named by the convention as your associate in the great campaign that is before us is a distinction which I greatly appreciate.
CHARLES W. FAIRBANKS.

Many Telegrams Pour In.

Telegrams began early to pour in on the president, and he read these with much interest, dictating replies to some of them. Two of these were given out for publication, as follows:

Garden City, N. Y.—Your Nassau neighbors send greetings and congratulations, wishing you prosperity and a continued career of usefulness to the nation. A triumphant election will be but your well merited reward.
LEWIS, JOHNSON,
CHESHIRE, YOUNGS.

Convention Hall, Chicago—Your comrades of '98, rough riders, delegates to this great convention, congratulate you on this, one of the greatest events of American history. Every soldier of your regiment will be on duty from now until you are elected president. May God bless you.
ALEX. O. BRODIE, W. E. DANE,
W. H. H. LLEWELLYN, W. S. SIMPSON,
T. J. HAHEY,

Yale Men Add Their Tribute.

A telegram received from Gov. Carter of Hawaii, and others equally well known, follows:

Chicago, June 22, 1904.—President Roosevelt, White house: Several Yale men awaiting with joyful anticipation tomorrow. Just recognition of your services to country and party.
CARTER, SHEFFIELD,
HEFFELFINGER, WILLIAMS.

Before night hundreds of congratulatory telegrams had been received at the White house, including messages from Whitelaw Reid and Senator Aldrich. Those made public included the following:

Philadelphia, Pa., June 23.—The President: Hearty congratulations from the Union League of Philadelphia. We assure you of our loyal support.
EDWARD T. STOTESBURY, President.

Chicago, June 23.—President Theodore Roosevelt: The members of the Marquette club of Chicago rejoice in your nomination. They admire your wise and fearless statesmanship, and congratulate the country upon the assured continuation of high minded, safe, aggressive American policies. CHARLES M. FOELL, President.

Chicago, June 23.—The Hon. Theodore Roosevelt, Washington: My heartiest congratulations upon your unanimous nomination. The enthusiasm was strenuous and Rooseveltian in the extreme. GEORGE EDMUNR FOSS.

Expresses View of Workingmen.

A Philadelphia workingmen's organization sent the following:

Philadelphia, Pa., June 23.—President Roosevelt: Your nomination heartily indorsed and congratulations offered. Meeting in progress.
GAULT,
Secretary Workingmen's Protective Tariff league of Philadelphia.

Charleston, W. Va., June 23.—President Theodore Roosevelt: Your unanimous nomination pleases West Virginia mightily. Republicans of this state unitedly supported your nomination from the start. Triumphant election and the West Virginia electoral vote assured.
ALBERT B. WHITE.

Two of the many received from Chicago were:

Chicago, June 23.—The President: Accept my warmest congratulations. Your election will surely follow. RUSSELL A. ALGER.

Chicago, June 23.—President Roosevelt: Congratulations. My heart is with you; may success ever be yours. REED SMOOT.

President Roosevelt will remain here until July 2, when he will go to his summer home at Oyster Bay, where he will remain until he receives the official notification of his nomination. He will then return to Washington for a short stay and then will go back to Oyster Bay for the rest of the summer.

Rejoicing at Oyster Bay.

Oyster Bay, L. I., June 23.—When the news of the nomination of President Roosevelt reached this village this afternoon a salute of twenty-one guns was fired, and tonight there is a display of fireworks and many of the residences in the village are illuminated.

CONVENTION ENDS IN ENTHUSIASM.

Roosevelt and Fairbanks Nominated, and Politicians Begin to Study Campaign Outlook.

TICKET A STRONG ONE.

Democratic Leaders Admit Having No Hope of Doing More than Reorganizing Their Party.

[BY RAYMOND.]

Roosevelt and Fairbanks were nominated yesterday in a burst of enthusiasm which was the legitimate sequence of a day of extraordinarily good political speaking. The convention has adjourned, the delegates have started for their homes or for the St. Louis fair, the republican campaign has been inaugurated, and now the politicians can set about to study the cost and the proceeds of all their labor.

That the ticket nominated yesterday will be a popular one with the people I believe there is not the slightest doubt. In fact, I have been told within the last few weeks by well known democratic leaders that they had no hope of defeating Roosevelt and Fairbanks before the people, and merely expected to reorganize their own party on a conservative basis and thus get it in trim for the victory they hope to achieve in 1908.

Fight Needed to Rouse Enthusiasm.

This almost certain republican success has made the Chicago convention of 1904 what democratic critics are only too glad to class as "tame." As Uncle Joe Cannon and many others have constantly said, it takes a fight to provoke enthusiasm. Roosevelt was nominated in effect more than a year ago, and as far back as last Christmas the selection of Senator Fairbanks for second place on the ticket was practically assured.

Because of this lack of uncertainty, it is really remarkable that the actual nominations yesterday should have been accompanied by so much real enthusiasm. Gov. Black's delicious wit, as keen as a rapier; Senator Beveridge's finished oration, which was almost too good, too classic, for mere politics, worked up the delegates to a condition of political ecstasy which could ordinarily have been expected only as the climax of a long and hard fought battle.

The efforts of George A. Knight, the strong lunged California orator, and of H. S. Cummings, the colored man from Delaware, produced an extraordinarily good effect as well, and aside from one or two unfortunate events in regard to the seconding speeches, the nominating eloquence, as far as Roosevelt was concerned, was of the highest order.

Colored Child Waves Flag.

At the time of his actual nomination, there was an incident which is likely to cut considerable figure in the solid democratic south, but which in the liberty loving north will strengthen the republican party wherever it becomes known. A little colored boy, extremely light of complexion and with Lord Fauntleroy hair, was hoisted upon the speaker's gangway, where he waved his flag with the utmost vigor until he was hoisted on the shoulders of a stalwart white delegate, from which point of vantage the flag waving was renewed to the great delight of the delegates.

Brother of Darker Shade.

Comparatively few of them knew that the pretty child was James Blaine Cashim, the son of an Alabama negro, and this fact was not realized until one of his brothers, several shades darker than James, was also hoisted on the platform. This later development of the race problem in Alabama rejoices in the name of Roosevelt, so it is quite probable the incident will be seized upon by the rabid democratic press in the south, although as a matter of fact it will almost certainly solidify the colored vote of the north. It ought to make southern Indiana solid for Roosevelt, while no one has hoped that he could carry a single southern state.

Senators Indorse Fairbanks.

In the nomination of Senator Fairbanks, it was a noticeable fact that his colleagues in the senate representing the most conservative element in the republican party were only too glad to hasten to testify to his political value upon the ticket. Senator Dolliver of Ohio, Senator Depew of New York, Senator Foraker of Ohio, and former Senator Carter of Montana joined with Gov. Pennypacker of Pennsylvania in testifying to the real worth of the distinguished Indiana leader.

In this they merely accentuated the well known views of almost every republican leader in this country. They all know and admire Senator Fairbanks. Most of them understand that he was absolutely "on the inside" throughout the whole of the McKinley administration, and that in all the conferences which concerned the passage of the tariff bill and the conduct of the war with Spain, Fairbanks was invariably included in the list of the men who dictated the policy of the nation, a list which included great legislative and administrative experts like Hanna, Spooner, Platt of Connecticut, Davis of Minnesota, Aldrich, Allison, and Vice President Hobart. It was this knowledge of the Indiana senator's peculiar trustworthiness which made his nomination yesterday so completely inevitable.

Will Give Ticket Strength.

In the opinion of political leaders generally, therefore, the name of Fairbanks on the republican ticket will be a source of positive and well defined strength. In the first place, he is deservedly popular in his own state. He has been at the head of his party there since 1894 and has an immensely large and loyal personal following. Besides that, as far as Indiana is concerned, the prospect of a senatorial vacancy, although it means a bitter fight next winter, is a distinct advantage just at the present time, because the friends of all the possible candidates, and they are extremely numerous, will naturally do everything in their power to make the prospective vacancy in the senate an accomplished fact.

There is a large negro element in southern Indiana which votes when it wants to vote. The personality of Roosevelt and his own record on the race question will, it is believed, bring to the polls in November the full negro vote of the Hoosier state. This combination of Fairbanks with Roosevelt is deemed to be so strong that most political leaders are more than inclined to take Indiana out of the list of doubtful states, although from force of habit it will be continued in that classification during the entire campaign.

Trusted by Financiers.

Senator Fairbanks' greatest value to the ticket, however, is deemed to be the pledge of conservatism he brings from the west for the express benefit of the eastern financiers and business men, who have strangely persisted in the view that President Roosevelt, in some mysterious way, was a dangerous man. Senator Fairbanks possesses the confidence of these great financiers to an extraordinary degree. He has an intimate association with railroads in particular, while lawyers throughout the country recognize his great professional success.

Endowed with an ample fortune, made by himself in his own profession, affiliated all his life with a conservative element, and yet strangely progressive in his methods, Charles W. Fairbanks of Indiana will certainly be treated in the suspicious east as the necessary makeweight for the republican ticket. His name for second place means not only strength before the people but abundant contributions to the campaign fund.

He will be depended upon, rather than Mr. Cortelyou, to assist Cornelius R. Bliss in providing the money for the campaign. Fortunately enough, there will be no vast campaign of education this year, and the ordinary running expenses will be but a small percentage of what they were in 1896, when the republicans were out in the cold, and when they had to fight a hydra headed financial fallacy which had taken hold of the people to an extraordinary degree and which had to be eradicated from the popular mind by patient and even gigantic effort.

Republican Outlook Bright.

Looking over the results of yesterday's convention, one is readily impressed with the fact that the chances in November largely favor the certain election of Roosevelt and Fairbanks. The republican national committee will not actually begin its campaign until the latter part of July, when headquarters will be opened in New York and Chicago. Secretary Cortelyou was formally put in charge of the campaign, and Elmer Dover was made secretary, at the meeting of the new national committe immediately after the adjournment of the convention.

It was announced then, as a matter of course, that the republican managers would wait until after the democratic convention before inaugurating an active campaign. It will be necessary to study the democratic platform, and to have an accurate knowledge of the opposition candidates before it will be possible to lay out the issues and the lines of attack and defense.

Little Hope for Democrats.

Assuming, however, that the democrats nominate some clean man like Parker and adopt a platform which will reflect the conservative element of the party, it is still easy to show that the republicans have by far the greater chance of success in the coming campaign, and that their lead is so great as to render the election of Roosevelt and Fairbanks a good bet, even at this distance of time before the election, and even before the candidates and the platform of the opposition are known.

There are about thirteen sure democratic states, which include what is generally known as the "solid south." Alabama, Arkansas, Florida, Georgia, Kentucky, Louisiana, Mississippi, Missouri, North Carolina, South Carolina, Tennessee, Texas, and Virginia give to the democrats an original and practically unassailable nucleus of 151 electoral votes.

There are twenty states, all, of course, in the north, which are reasonably certain to vote for Roosevelt and Fairbanks, and which can be put down as surely republican in the absence of an unexpected landslide. California, Illinois, Iowa, Kansas, Maine, Massachusetts, Michigan, Minnesota, Montana, Nebraska, New Hampshire, North Dakota, Ohio, Oregan, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island, South Dakota, Vermont, Washington, and Wyoming give to the republicans, from the present outlook, a total of 207 electoral votes.

Dozen Doubtful States.

There are a dozen states in the north and northwest which, for one reason or another, have been and still may be classed as doubtful. Colorado, Connecticut, Delaware, Idaho, Indiana, Maryland, Nevada, New Jersey, New York, Utah, West Virginia, and Wisconsin make a total of the doubtful list, which figures up 118 electoral votes.

I believe this classification is pretty nearly accurate. The sum of the electoral votes under the new census apportionment is 476. A majority, therefore, is 239. The practically certain republican states foot up 207, or within 32 of enough to elect. The practically solid democratic states foot up 151 votes, leaving a balance of 88 necessary for a democratic majority in the electoral college.

May Compromise in Wisconsin.

Wisconsin is now classed as a doubtful state, but those who are on the inside fully expect the absolute withdrawal of one of the two republican state tickets, which would make the state certain for Roosevelt, whatever it might be for governor. Out of this list of democratic states, therefore, it would not be at all an extraordinary thing if the republicans should carry Wisconsin, West Virginia, Utah, Nevada, Idaho, Delaware, and Colorado. This would insure the election by a comfortable margin of Roosevelt and Fairbanks.

The democrats, on the alignment I have given, could carry New York, New Jersey, Connecticut, Maryland, and Indiana, and still fail by a narrow, but decisive, majority to elect their candidates. If a compromise is reached in Wisconsin, and if Indiana is as safe as the enthusiastic Fairbanks men say it now is, republican success is absolutely assured before the opening of the campaign, and without much regard to the personality or the character of the democratic candidates and their platform.

Is it any wonder the republican national convention at Chicago in 1904 was placid, and even sedate? Its candidates were defined in advance, and their success is deemed probable by inside political experts of both parties, so that the convention could well resign itself to enjoy the artistic quaintness of "Uncle Joe" Cannon, the forcible, forensic eloquence of Elihu Root, and the more ambitious oratorical flights of Albert Beveridge.

PORTO RICAN PARTY PLEASED.

Delegates Delighted to Have Representative on the National Committee—Much Is Expected.

The Porto Rican delegates express themselves as highly pleased with the result of the national convention. They now have a member on the national committee, who, they declare, will keep the questions of protection of their coffee and the admission of the natives of the island to American citizenship before the people.

To show that they bear no malice to the negroes as a race, the "lily whites" of Louisiana made the colored footman who attends at the Jackson boulevard entrance of the Wellington hotel a present of $5 before leaving Chicago over the Illinois Central railroad last night.

There were fifty colored delegates to the convention, and nearly every one made it a point to bid each negro employé of the different downtown hotels good-by.

PREFERS SON TO BE SENATOR.

Mother of the Vice Presidential Nominee Says She Is Slightly Disappointed.

Springfield, O., June 23.—[Special.]—While Mrs. Mary A. Fairbanks, the mother of Senator Charles W. Fairbanks, is pleased by the nomination of her son as vice president, she says she would prefer that he had remained in the senate.

The senator's mother resides here with her daughter, Mrs. Melvin L. Milligan. She is 74 years old. During eight years the senator's parents resided in this city after leaving the home farm in Union county, where Mr. Fairbanks died four years ago and where all the children were born. Mrs. Fairbanks spends part of the time with her other children, and spent the whole of last winter in Washington with the senator.

"While I was in Washington many men came to see the senator and asked him to be a candidate for vice president," said Mrs. Fairbanks. "He told them, as he told them since, that he did not want it. I think now that he really doesn't want it at all and that he would rather stay where he is. I think the position he now has is one of the most honorable a man can get in politics. There is a great deal of influence in it and dignity and many opportunities to do good. I am proud that he was nominated as he was; that every one appeared to demand it, and it certainly is a great compliment to him."

Mrs. Fairbanks received an affectionate message from her son this afternoon within a short time after the convention adjourned.

Senator Fairbanks has extensive manufacturing interests in Springfield and owns much real estate. He frequently comes here to visit his mother.

NOW WALL STREET APPROVES.

Leading Bankers Say Sentiment Among Financial Interests Has Drifted to Roosevelt.

New York, June 23.—[Special.]—James Speyer, head of the banking house of Speyer & Co., made the following statement today in regard to the republican national ticket:

"Mr. Roosevelt has been renominated on his merits, and the republican party, I believe, could not have selected a stronger candidate. It is generally known that there was a time when certain interests in Wall street were more or less outspoken in their antagonism to the president, but his actions in respect to certain matters which were criticised then have been vindicated.

"Most of his former critics are now among his strongest supporters. Those who came to scoff have remained to pray. People in Wall street as in other parts of our country realize that in upholding and enforcing the laws in respect to every one the president is giving the best protection to every one's interests, wealthy and poor alike. No one who has watched public opinion in the whole country could doubt that the great mass of the American people approve of Mr. Roosevelt's administration and desire it to continue."

Jacob H. Schiff of Kuhn, Loeb & Co., bankers, said:

"Former Secretary Root in his address in Chicago in no way overdrew the great qualities of Roosevelt. If anything, he undervalued the services rendered to the country by the Roosevelt administration.

"When at the instance of President Roosevelt litigation against the Northern Securities company began I thought an error in judgment had been committed, but the course of events has borne out the wisdom of the president's course.

"I feel certain there is a strong feeling in conservative and financial circles that in any case of emergency Roosevelt would be found on the safe side."

PLAN AN EXTENSIVE CAMPAIGN.

National Voters' League Members to Secure Halls in Every Part of Illinois.

The newly incorporated National Voters' league is planning an extensive campaign. A committee was appointed yesterday to negotiate for halls in every part of Chicago and Illinois, while another will secure republican speakers. A marching delegation and a "bureau of popular demonstration" are to be features of the organization. A meeting at 291 West Fourteenth street followed the ending of the convention.

Jacob H. Schiff of Kuhn, Loeb & Co., bankers, said:

"Former Secretary Root in his address in Chicago in no way overdrew the great qualities of Roosevelt. If anything, he undervalued the services rendered to the country by the Roosevelt administration.

"When at the instance of President Roosevelt litigation against the Northern Securities company began I thought an error in judgment had been committed, but the course of events has borne out the wisdom of the president's course.

"I feel certain there is a strong feeling in conservative and financial circles that in any case of emergency Roosevelt would be found on the safe side."

SCHOLAR LOOKS AT POLITICS.

Dr. Benjamin Ide Wheeler a Spectator at the Republican National Convention.

Benjamin Ide Wheeler, president of the University of California, was an interested spectator of the republican national convention. Since Sunday Mr. Wheeler has been a guest at the Chicago club.

"I have been making a quiet study of politics," said Mr. Wheeler, "and I found much that was interesting and instructive in the sessions of the convention. The speeches eulogistic of the candidates and the talks on the tariff were particularly attractive.

"The ticket is a good one and I have no doubt it will enable the republican party to continue in power."

PAUL MORTON SEES PRESIDENT.

Believed to Have Declined Naval Portfolio and to Be Considering Secretaryship of Commerce and Labor.

Washington, D. C., June 23.—[Special.]—Paul Morton, vice president of the Santa Fé railroad, arrived from Chicago late this afternoon and was driven to the White house for a conference with the president regarding the acceptance of a portfolio in the cabinet.

Mr. Morton dined with the president and his family, and at 10:45 p. m. left the executive mansion and went direct to the Pennsylvania railroad station, leaving for New York on a midnight train. Mr. Morton declined to state what conclusion he had reached.

It is believed he declined to accept he secretaryship of the navy and has taken under consideration an offer of the position at the head of the department of commerce and labor made vacant by the retirement of Secretary Cortelyou.

WILL TEACH TARIFF TO VOTERS.

Protective League Plans to Take an Active Part in the Campaign This Summer.

The American Protective Tariff league will take an unusually active part in the campaign this summer. In the opinion of the league officers the tariff will be the main issue, and an increased effort will be made to place the facts before the voters. W. F. Wakeman, secretary of the league, has had on exhibition during the convention samples of the literature which will be distributed. It consists mainly of printed speeches by Senator Gallinger of New Hampshire and Congressman McCleary of Minnesota.

Charles Warren Fairbanks, Named for Second Place on National Ticket.

[Copyright, 1904, by the North American, Philadelphia. Printed by courtesy of the North American.]

THIN as a fence rail and just about as long as one. A head that appears curiously small because of the tightly plastered locks sweeping across the forehead. Bright red cheeks and brilliant, kindly eyes. Mouth and chin covered with a short, dark beard of jungle thickness. Manners reserved and courtly. Old school senatorial dignity breathing from every pore.

This is Charles Warren Fairbanks of Indiana as he appeared to the members of the republican national convention of 1904, which nominated him for vice president of the United States.

Has Marked Individuality.

No picture of Senator Fairbanks's life can strike home until the marked individuality of his personality and appearance is appreciated thoroughly. The observer must realize he is trying to estimate a living, breathing man, and not an academic shadow stowed away in some dry-as-dust book of history. For Fairbanks of Indiana has constructed the virile broad foundations for a career of the present and future, and is essentially not of the past in any respect. Therefore, it is well to grasp him first as a living part of the present day and generation.

Senator Fairbanks is a strikingly tall man, so tall, indeed, that on the floor of the Coliseum convention he towered above all else save the mighty "Football" Heffelfinger of Minnesota, and the totem eagles of the Alaska delegation. His lean and lengthy frame was clad as always in the long black coat of the cut known to Senator Depew as "frock," to Uncle Joe Cannon as "Prince Albert," and to Ald. Kenna of the First ward as a "funeral coat." Scrupulous neatness invariably characterizes his whole attire, just as it did that of the old statesmen dandies who wore full dress out of compliment to the honor and dignity of a senatorial debate.

Self-Made Man.

Mr. Fairbanks does not appear like a member of the leisure class which the United States slowly is evolving out of the third generation of its great fortunes. His type is distinctly that of the great public men who made the republic and made themselves. He has not the narrow "euh" of the Pundit caste in his speech, nor does he shirk his "rs" and consonants as a Boston man does. The Yankee twang of his Vermont parents lingers in his accent.

His manner is reminiscent of the days of Clay and Webster, and cannot be claimed nowadays as the distinguishing mark of any clique of Americans. It is the antithesis of the smart, brusque address of a modern New Yorker, or of the slangy, humorous habit of a typical Chicago business man. The unmetropolitan colonels and majors of the southwest still possess its urbanity and kindliness, but they lack the air of stern, reserved manhood that gives it the proper touch of "federal sublimity."

Leader in First Term.

Such is the outward semblance of Senator Fairbanks as he appeared in the crowded corridors of the Auditorium. Singularly in accord with it has been his life. He was not born a silk stocking, nor did he start his career under the handicap of being "somebody's son." Methodically, resolutely, he fought his way up from farmer's boy to great railroad lawyer; methodically, resolutely, he wound up his legal affairs when he felt it right to enter public life; and with marvelous method and resolution he has directed his political course ever since.

When he was elected to the United States senate in 1897 Mr. Fairbanks had never held any other public office. When he was reelected in 1903 he was one of the "big" men of the senate—a wonderful accomplishment for a first term member of that slow moving, precedent ridden body.

Rise Long Planned.

This sudden jump from private life to the highest rungs of the ladder of political ambition was not due to accident. No sudden acquisition of great riches inspire it, as has been the case with some of the "bonanza kings" who have had meteoric rises to great public office. It was in accordance with the principles of a rare integrity and in consonance with the highest ideals of the American commonwealth.

Charles Warren Fairbanks made up his mind as a young man that he had no right to seek a political career for himself until he had amassed a fortune sufficient for his wife and his four children. He declined the office of prosecuting attorney in his native county the year after he was admitted to the bar and took his way to Indianapolis to build up a paying law practice. Being ruled only by "common honesty," as he put it, he determined that his clients paid him for his time and that it therefore would be dishonorable for him to spend a large portion of that time in performing the duties of an officeholder.

First Defeats Voorhees.

The attorney refused all nominations offered him by his party in return for political service, and devoted himself to the practice of law until he felt he had earned a fortune sufficient to support his family. In 1897 he made his first attempt to get an office, and he beat Daniel Voorhees, "the tall Sycamore of the Wabash," in a spirited contest for a seat in the federal senate.

Still applying the principles of "common honesty," Mr. Fairbanks at once wound up his legal affairs and gave his whole time to his high office, believing the government paid him for his time and that it was dishonorable to spend a large portion of that time in performing the duties of a practicing attorney.

Born on a Farm.

Such principles as these came from a Puritan ancestry and a Methodist parentage. Mr. Fairbanks was born on his father's farm near Unionville Center, Union county, O., on May 11, 1852. His father, Lorlston Monroe Fairbanks, was the eighth in direct line of descent from the pilgrim, Jonathan Fairbanke, who came from England in 1636 and had dire troubles with his own church because of his uncompromising integrity of conscience. Loriston Fairbanks showed his racial sturdiness by making his Ohio farm a station for "the underground railroad" and by rigorously teaching his boy the stern lessons of self-reliance and self-denial. It is said the future vice president's cradle was a sugar trough, mounted on home made rockers.

Around the childhood of Senator Fairbanks the Indianians, who dearly love the great men of their state, have woven a net of legend that is singularly like that aftached to "Oom Paul" Kruger at the time of the Boer war. Like Kruger, young Fairbanks was famed for his resource, his physical powers, and his hunting exploits. The earliest accredited historical incident occurred when the lad was 3 years old. He was left by his mother in the old cabin of the family, which had just been abandoned for a newly built farmhouse, with instructions to "red up" the room and throw the dust and shavings in the fire.

Example of Ingenuity.

In doing this the youthful Charles contrived to set the structure on fire. The door had been tightly shut, the latch was out of the child's reach, and it seemed as if he were doomed to be burned to death. With an instinct and resource remarkable in one of his age the boy grabbed some boards left by the carpenters and made a rude platform, from which he was able to reach the latch and let himself out. The rejoicing over his escape was so great that he was not blamed for the destruction of the building.

With this anecdote as a beginning, stories of the tall senator's youth abound. It is related that he was chore boy on a farm when 6 years old; that he was sent to a high school at Woodstock at 10; that he saved his own and his brother's life in a runaway the following year; that he was a dead shot with his muzzle loading rifle at the age of 12; that he earned $41 by the time he was 15 and that he went to college with that amount in his pocket.

Wins Wife at College.

His father sent him to the Ohio Wesleyan college at Delaware, O., not far from his home. Young Fairbanks had a single suit of clothes and one of the cruelest trials of freshman year occurred when he accidentally ruined those precious garments and had to borrow coat and trousers from a classmate till his mother sent him a new home made outfit. To help pay his way through college he did odd jobs of carpentering around the town.

Mrs. Fairbanks, who has earned a national name for herself, now is president general of the Daughters of the American Revolution. As Miss Cornelia Cole she was a fellow student of Senator Fairbanks at the Wesleyan college, and with him edited the Western Collegian, a small university chronicle. This association culminated in the marriage in 1872, the year of their graduation.

Works for the Press.

Then Fairbanks settled down to his life's career. He studied law night and day. Incidentally he supported himself by working for the Associated Press in Pittsburg, and again in Cleveland. But law was his chosen work. He opened his office in Indianapolis in 1874, made railroad law his specialty, and laid the foundations of a large practice through the aid of Walter Q. Gresham, then on the federal bench.

Senator Fairbanks' friendship with Gresham made him a national figure in 1888, when Indiana decided that one of her strong sons should be nominated for the presidency. Benjamin Harrison and Judge Gresham were supported by powerful factions, and Fairbanks was Gresham's manager. He lost his fight, but gained praise from the statesmen of his party for the way in which he accepted defeat and smoothed out squabbles that threatened republican success. He did efficient service on the stump, and from that time was recognized as a party leader.

Leadership Confirmed.

In 1893 the republican minority in the Indiana legislature confirmed his leadership by giving him the complimentary vote for the United States senate. In 1896 he was temporary chairman of the national republican convention at St. Louis and had much to do with the framing of the plank declaring against the free coinage of silver. In 1900 the nomination for the vice presidency was indirectly offered to him at the Philadelphia convention, and he refused it.

The newly chosen running mate for President Roosevelt lives in a comfortable frame dwelling in North Meridian street, Indianapolis. He has four sons and one daughter. The latter is the wife of Ensign John W. Timmons of the navy. The eldest son, Warren C. Fairbanks, recently married Miss Helene E. Cassidy of Pittsburg and makes his home in Chicago, where he is a director of the Oliver Typewriter company. The second son, Frederic C., was graduated from Princeton a year ago, and now is a law student at the Columbian university in Washington. Richard is a member of the junior class at Yale, and Robert, the youngest son, is a student at Phillips academy, Andover, Mass., preparing to enter Princeton. In Washington the Fairbanks family occupies the old Van Wyck house at Massachusetts avenue and Eighteenth street.

Trustee in a Church.

Both Senator Fairbanks and his wife are Methodists. The senator is a trustee of the Meridian Street church in Indianapolis. While in Washington the family attends the Metropolitan church, where Gen. Grant used to go during his two terms in the White house.

FAIRBANKS SHUNS THE CONVENTION.

While Delegates at Coliseum Call for "Speech" He Sits in Hotel Mile Away.

Declines to Ride the Elephant Brought by Enthusiastic Hoosier Crowd.

Senator Fairbanks was not among those present. While the convention cheered his name and made frantic demands for a "speech," the man from Indiana sat in an arm chair, a mile from the Coliseum, in his apartments at the Auditorium Annex. There was a cool breeze from the east and the view of the lake was excellent. The senator was at peace with the world. He said nothing.

B-r-r-r-r-r. The bell of the telephone in his room rang. It was the call of destiny. The senator knew it and smiled—not a smile of resignation, but of dignified expectancy. The smile broadened as he unhooked the receiver and listened. Then he said "Thank you." The "thank you" of Senator Fairbanks may mean anything—this time it meant he was glad to know he had been nominated.

Hasten to Congratulate Him.

"I have just heard from the convention hall," he said, replacing the receiver. That was all for the present. The few persons who were in the room at the time understood, however, and congratulated him. Then they waited for some more public announcement of the choice of the convention for vice president.

A half hour passed and a delegation of Indiana congressmen entered the apartments—Hemenway, Landis, and Watson—fresh from the exertion of getting from the convention hall to the hotel as quickly as possible. They cheered in unison and shook hands with the senator, proclaiming their great joy in his nomination.

Then came Senator Dolliver, who had placed the name of Fairbanks in nomination.

"You didn't get to hear what I said about you," he said, commiseratingly.

The nominee admitted that he had not had "that pleasure."

"Never mind," said the man from Iowa, consolingly. "You can read it in the papers."

Many Telegrams Arrive.

A short time afterwards the color scheme of the Fairbanks apartments took on a yellow tone from the piles of telegrams that lay on tables, on the floor, and window ledges.

During the late afternoon the senator left his rooms for a visit with Senator Platt at the Auditorium. His journey thither, with of no great length, was long in time, besieged as he was by those eager to shake hands and offer their felicitations.

Senator Depew and Congressman Sereno Payne of New York met him in the lobby of the Auditorium at the tunnel's exit.

"I am simply enthusiastic about it," exclaimed Depew, reaching almost high enough to grasp the Indiana man's shoulders.

"I want to say," Payne remarked, with an air of seriousness, "that you never would have got it if it hadn't been for Depew's speech."

Enjoyed the Convention.

After the candidate for vice president returned to his rooms he received hundreds of callers. Asked for a statement, he said:

"I must be excused at this time from making any comment on the action taken by the convention this afternoon with regard to myself. I have enjoyed the convention greatly. My being absent from the convention today calls for no statement. I shall remain in Chicago until Saturday afternoon and consult tomorrow with the members of the national committee."

Mrs. Fairbanks was asked for a statement when she returned from the Coliseum.

"I am feeling most happy," she said, "and have had an exceedingly pleasant time at the convention."

A reception in honor of Senator Fairbanks will be held in Indianapolis tomorrow evening at the Fairbanks residence, 1822 Meridian street, under the auspices of the members of the Indianapolis board of trade, the Commercial club, and Merchants' association.

The senator will leave Chicago tomorrow afternoon at 1 o'clock with the members of his family now in Chicago on the Big Four railroad. The train will arrive in Indianapolis at 6 o'clock and will be met by members of the several clubs mentioned, who will escort him to his residence.

Congressman Harry L. Overstreet of Indiana left for the capital of the Hoosier state early yesterday to perfect arrangements for the reception. The move to give the senator a reception in his home city was started Wednesday night by the Indiana delegation as soon as it was made certain he would be nominated. It is the plan to have the reception arranged on nonpartisan lines and the leading democrats are to be invited to take part.

Refuses to Ride an Elephant.

The senator is a dignified man. He maintained his dignity throughout his boom for the vice presidency; he maintained his dignity in the hour of his nomination, and at last, merely in the way of preserving the same dignified bearing, he declined an invitation to bestride a circus elephant and make a triumphant progress between the Coliseum and the Auditorium Annex.

When the Indiana delegation perceived that the senator was bound to be nominated, certain enthusiastic members hied themselves to a circus and chartered a young elephant named Queen, but which they promptly christened Miss G. O. P. They led the elephant to the Annex and inveigled the vice presidential nominee into the neighborhood of the pachyderm.

"No, no, boys—that wouldn't be dignified—any thing but that, boys," said the senator.

A photographer got his consent for a photograph.

"But not near the elephant, you know—that wouldn't be dignified," added the senator, as he eyed Miss G. O. P with distrust.

Apparently fearing some trick of photography the senator refused to pose, except in the midst of a group of politicians and at some distance from the elephant.

Disappointed in their hopes of having the elephant carry the senator in triumphal progress, the Hoosier delegates made the best of it. They had chartered the elephant and proposed to have their money's worth. They kept the animal standing in Congress street for the admiration of the people returning from the Coliseum.

PLAN RECEPTION TO NOMINEE.

Indianapolis Citizens to Meet Senator Fairbanks on His Return from Chicago Tomorrow.

Indianapolis will give a nonpartisan reception to Senator Fairbanks on his arrival there from Chicago.

The Indiana delegation is expected to reach the capital of its state today, and arrangements then will be completed. A preliminary meeting was held last night.

The vice presidential nominee probably will reach Indianapolis tomorrow evening in a special car. It is expected stops will be made at several points en route, and at one of these towns the Indiana men will meet the train and accompany the senator to Indianapolis.

NATIONAL DRAMA REACHES CLIMAX.

Scenes of Wild Enthusiasm Follow Nomination of Theodore Roosevelt.

DAY GIVEN TO ORATORY

Speaker Cannon Again Predominates the Big Republican Convention.

When the republican convention curtain was raised yesterday it was evident that the great national drama had been reached. The third act was on. The accessories and supernumeraries, the secondary and supporting actors had played their parts; the preliminaries had been arranged; the action had been carried forward; the principals were in the wings; their cue had been reached.

It was evident that the last act had been reached. Every seat in the house was filled; every inch of standing room was occupied; even beams and rafters were supports for clinging spectators; aisles were packed, and crowds struggled at the doors. Delegations which had been sedate and phlegmatic during two acts were on edge and ripe for demonstrations. Even Cornelius Bliss carried a flag and showed symptoms of being about to yell if sufficiently provoked.

Other 8,999 Reasons Are Joyous.

Senator Spooner still looked at a dark and blistered world, but 8,999 other persons crowded within the Coliseum were joyous and conscious of their ability to yell long and loudly and aware, furthermore, that the occasion for it had arrived.

Among these 8,999 other persons the fifty-four delegates of Illinois could be counted at last, but gradually, as the action of the play developed, reached and passed its grand climax, Illinois became moody and solemn, without apparent cause or reason the delegation appeared Spoonerized.

Mayor Harrison Only Is Cheerful.

Possibly it was due to an extension of the Spooner atmosphere, or it may have been caused by Judge Haney or William Loriner, who sat with the delegates for the first time. To such an extent, whatever may have been the reason, did the cloud overshadow Illinois that in the end Mayor Carter H. Harrison, who was in the front row, a guest of the delegation, was the only relatively cheerful appearing "member" of it, and in comparison with the others Cornelius Bliss and Senator Platt, in the New York delegation across the aisle, were giddy and irresponsible young things.

In the beginning, when the curtain was first rising on the third act, Illinois was as enthusiastic and undignifiedly enthusiastic as the other delegates, alternates, and spectators who filled and overfilled the big hall.

Among the new spectators who had come for the final action was George B. Cortelyou, new chairman of the new national committee, who was welcomed to the platform by national committeemen.

Chairman Cannon Gives the Cue.

As Speaker Cannon was about to speak the words which gave the cue to the principals a woman came forward with a large bunch of roses to add to the picturesque effects with which he already was surrounded. The chairman accepted, with bows and embarrassment. The latter lasted only a moment and in the next he was walking down the broad gangway to face the delegates.

Immediately quiet settled over the convention as the chairman paused with the official program in his hands. Then quickly and clearly the next order of business would be a roll call of states for nominations for president of the United States.

"Alabama," shouted the secretary at his desk.

The cue had been given. Alabama "had the honor" to yield to New York. The Empire state, each delegate with a flag, was on its feet, former Gov. Frank S. Black with it. The delegates yelled as he found his way to the platform, where the chairman met him. Together they advanced down the gangway.

Grouping Is Picturesque.

The whole convention was on its feet now with New York. Speaker Cannon had drawn the former governor's left arm under his own right one and his stride as they walked together was picturesquely impressive.

Mr. Black was statuesquely passive. Mr. Cannon was rampantly active. The former held both hands behind his back, clasping a handkerchief tightly. He might have been standing before a grate fire looking at a picture for all the concern that showed.

The chairman in his left hand held his gavel, not the massive one with which he nearly destroyed the stage furnishings, but a mere triviality of seven or eight pounds, not more than a foot long. He is difficult to please with gavels. Earlier he had tried a lead pencil in preference to the assortment the property man had provided. . . .

With this gavel he cut circles in the air introducing the statuesquely immobile Mr. Black. He nearly brained two hardworking newspaper men sitting directly beneath him. They stopped writing and gave more attention to the proceedings, dodging the gavel as it swept down on them. Cannon saw them not and gave no heed to their peril. What he saw were 8,999 wildly enthusiastic persons and Senator Spooner looking at him and at the quiet man at his side who was about to nominate a president of the United States.

Slap Figures in Introduction.

The speaker exerted himself on that introduction and he started the play with a slap. With a parting slap on the back of Mr. Black he wheeled around and with three long steps was in his chair. Then did the New York man shake off his immobility and become mobile to a certain extent. He never became animated in gestures but those he used were effective.

The orator's collar retained its immaculate and starchy appearance as he spoke, and that may be accepted as an illustration of the kind of oratory used in nominating the president. Senator Beveridge's wilted, Senator Foraker's melted away, and the other orators coming later went through a very furnace of eloquence which was desperative to their linen, but not so with Mr. Black.

Nominates with Becoming Dignity.

What the ex-governor of New York said in his speech was composed of equal parts of humor, fine sarcasm, and good political eulogy. He had a president to nominate, and he did it with a becoming dignity. The best speech of a day of oratory did not reach all parts of the crowded hall. Mr. Black labored under the same difficulty which Mr. Root met. His voice would not carry and the furthest of his auditors lost something worth sitting in a crowded, hot auditorium to hear.

The carnation which Mr. Black wore in his coat lapel never quivered as he delivered himself of his sarcasm on the democratic party and his eulogy of President Roosevelt. The latter subject he approached skillfully, working his audience along with him, and at the proper moment the name was pronounced.

Sedate Citizens Become Riotous.

Black left the stage with the greatest applause of the convention rattling and roaring around him. New York was the most animated aggregation of sedate citizens who ever were led to riot as the merry populace in a play. Their part in it was not put on the stage. It went in front of the curtain. It eclipsed every other uproar in the hall and the total volume was something which threatened to shatter the skylights.

Cornelius Bliss was on a chair, waving a flag and making motions with his lips which led to the suspicion that he was cheering. Senator Platt was on the floor, but he had his flag and was using it. Elihu Root was as demonstrative as a college boy at a football game. They were the quiet ones of the delegation.

Spectacle of Dignity on a Spree.

Senator Chauncey Depew was an elderly whirlwind and Gov. Odell a juvenile one. It was a tremendous spectacle of dignity on a spree. Their statesman was the man nominated, and their statesman was the man who had done it. New York's place was right in the limelight, and New York occupied it.

"Roosevelt, Roosevelt, Roosevelt of New York." They sang it lustily, beating time with their flags. And New York was confined in a small part of a great hall, and everywhere were yelling spectators.

In the galleries spectators were waving handkerchiefs and applauding; on the floor delegates were waving flags and yelling; up in the band stand under the roof the band was playing, but nothing but an occasional note could be heard; on the platform the "distinguished guests" were yelling; men, women, and children were yelling. It wasn't hysteria, but it was a fair example of what 9,000, including Senator Spooner, can do when they all yell at once and all keep on yelling.

Scene of Wild Enthusiasm.

From his desk Cannon advanced along the gangway. He carried a torn flag fastened to a pole which had been snapped in the middle and bound together. He waved this flag over the New York delegation. Children with flags were raised to the platform.

From behind the stage two men rushed forward carrying a gigantic picture of the president. It swayed uncertainly in their hands as they ran through the crowd on the stage and out the gangway. Two other men went to their support and the four managed to hold it up to view, turning it to all quarters of the hall.

During five minutes the applause and yelling had been continuous.

New York left its seats and massed in the aisles. Cannon became hemmed in by the men with the picture and was forced to crawl under it to escape. Alaska started a tour of the hall, with the eagles mounted on totem poles held high in the air. A young man with a megaphone climbed to the stage and led a series of yells of "Roosevelt! Roosevelt!"

During ten minutes the yelling had been continuous.

Still the Uproar Continues.

Cannon came back out of the gangway with his torn flag and waved it. Men were congratulating Black as he made his way back to the New York delegation. Mayor Harrison was sizing up the performance and admitting to himself that for a cut and dried convention this exhibition did fairly well.

For fifteen minutes the applause had been continuous.

A little girl, Louise Roberts, from the California delegation, was held up to the convention on the shoulders of a man standing on the stage. Another little girl, Naomi De Foe, from the Michigan delegation, was placed beside her. Both were waving flags. On the floor and in the galleries the delegates and spectators still shouted. The men with the picture were making a circuit of the hall.

Gives Cue to Beveridge.

At the end of twenty minutes the applause had just begun to end.

Chairman Cannon, as property man, stage manager, and star actor, had been getting the stage arranged for the next scene, and it now was ready. He gave the cue, and from the wings came Senator Beveridge—an immaculate man, but with a collar destined to an untimely end. The Indiana man was vehement, and his energy did not run all to words. Part of it went into his arms. A wrinkle crept into the smooth surface of that tall and pure white band as he proceeded to second the nomination of President Roosevelt. Another followed. The collar wilted at the edges. Its surface took on the appearance of a lake ruffled by a brisk wind. It was sacrificed to oratory.

The senator's words reached every part of the hall. He, like the other speakers, showed no mercy to Mayor Harrison. All said unpleasant things of the democratic party. Beveridge said that "no mystery ever was elected president of the United States or ever will be." New York appreciated that reference to Parker, and led the applause.

California Takes the Stage.

The senator finished; the collar was a wreck; another demonstration followed and Cannon cleared the stage for the next actor. This was George A. Knight of California, speaking for the Pacific coast to second the nomination. The audience, not recognizing any well known limelight hero in this particular star, did not give much of a "hand," but coldly reserved judgment until it had been "shown."

That is just what Mr. Knight proceeded to do the moment he planted his solid bulk out on the gangway. Incidentally he didn't seem to like the gangway. There was about a nine foot drop if he went through. Mr. Knight, at a guess, weighs something more than 240 pounds. The gangway was a temporary structure covering a stairway from the floor to the platform.

Voice Jars Distant Bass Drum.

"Gentlemen of the convention," began Mr. Knight, and that was as far as he proceeded for the moment. The voice from the Pacific jarred the bass drum at the extreme end of the hall, up next to the roof.

Among delighted comments was this from the gallery:

"Not so loud, please!"

The Californian went on and said things. He said things about labor, socialism, and anarchy which started vigorous applause. When he referred to the right of men to work, Colorado set up a great shout which showed particular approval from the state of military rule and deportation. He said things about the canal which pleased every one. He pictured Uncle Sam with his foot on the spade, and his audience warmed up and said plainly that it liked this performer whom Cannon had presented.

Mr. Knight wore a collar of the low, unambitious variety, and it was better calculated to stand the oratorical test. From the laundry point of view he was fairly presentable when he took his seat.

Delegates Become Restive.

Then Stage Manager Cannon produced an actor from the south, Harry Stillwell Edwards. He was a nice young man in a light suit of clothes, quite at his ease, and entirely presentable. He had a good speech and he was prepared to give his part in an admirable manner, but unfortunately only New York and Illinois could hear what he was saying.

The rest took Stage Manager Cannon's word for it that he was seconding the nomination and were content for about five minutes. Then they became restive. After ten minutes they started to applaud. They were "booing" the actor when Chairman Cannon, who also had become restive and had been bouncing around in his chair, wrote a note and sent it out from the "wings." A page crept up behind Edwards and slipped it into his hands. In the middle of a sentence he stopped, bowed to Stage Manager Cannon, and retired. The applause was deafening.

Produces Star from Duluth.

Then did Manager Cannon produce yet another star to second the nomination, this one being Joseph B. Cotfon of Duluth. Mr. Cotton, seeing that the scene had been strung out too long already, promised that he would "cut it short." This tickled the crowd, but it was evident in about ten minutes that Mr. Cotton intended to speak his piece whatever the crowd thought about it.

Elihu Root, who is a pink of courtesy, gave most profound attention to the young man from Duluth. The others began to lapse into unconsciousness. They awoke after a while and found Mr. Cotton still talking. This seemed too much, and they began to applaud.

Cannon Refuses Him Protection.

The man from Minnesota was of different caliber from the man from Georgia. He jumped at his audience, holding up his hands commandingly.

"Just a minute," he said.

The crowd gave him a minute, and he took five. Then they started again and he jumped at them once more. This time they refused to quiet down. He turned to Speaker Cannon for protection, but Mr. Cannon also had ears and nerves and he refused to subdue the audience. Mr. Cotton finished his address in the face of great disorder and retired.

Negro's Brevity Wins All Hearts.

The last man to occupy the stage in this scene was the negro orator, Harry S. Cummings of Maryland. He stood before a crowd, ready to rebel against any more long speeches, and he came out of the dilemma with credit. He said in beginning that he intended to cut it short and he did. He talked five minutes and stopped. The crowd arose and called him blessed, cheering great cheers.

President Roosevelt had been placed in nomination and abundantly seconded, and the action moved rapidly to its climax. The roll of states began. One after another the votes for the president were given. There was a moment of silence and then Cannon pronounced him nominated, and the demonstration started anew.

Illinois Goes Into State of Coma.

It was while the stage was being set for the concluding scene that Illinois passed off the animated map. The cause may never be known, but the Illinois delegates, with the exception of Mayor Harrison, a democrat, went into a state of coma.

There was a vice president to nominate, but Illinois congealed and froze up. Possibly Mr. Cotton did it. Speculation might run riot trying to find a reason. The fact was there. During the speeches of Dolliver, nominating Fairbanks, and Depew, Foraker, Tom Carter, and Gov. Pennypacker, seconding the nomination, Illinois was asleep.

Shelby Cullom Stirs Uneasily.

Once in a while Shelby Cullom stirred restlessly, as if dreaming. Lorimer looked up occasionally as if wondering where he was. Vespasian Warner appeared to be considering what rotation of crops he would work next year. Mr. Lowden seemed to have similar thoughts. Gov. Yates looked as if meditating where he would like to hit Cullom and wondering if he could carom off and hit Hopkins at the same time.

New York, which has made a reputation for coolness and frigidity up to yesterday, was a tornado of excitement right next door, and Indiana, one door further on, was hitting only the high places in its excitement over Fairbanks' nomination, but Illinois was apathetic.

Illinois was the old, bald headed gentleman in the front row who goes to sleep and snores about the time the heroine is purring love into the hero's ears.

Illinois Affects the Speakers.

Every speaker who had a part in this last scene gave one look at Illinois and immediately forgot his lines or thought "what's the use." In nominating Mr. Fairbanks, Senator Dolliver took seven minutes. Senator Depew, who followed him, managed to last fifteen by keeping his eyes on New York all the time. Senator Carter passed under the Illinois influence in three minutes and off the stage in five.

Gov. Pennypacker is a robust Pennsylvanian, and he stood it better than the others. He said almost everything he had it in mind to say. Then Shelby M. Cullom woke up and announced that Mr. Hitt's name was withdrawn. Other states with "favorite sons" withdrew and the nomination was made by acclamation.

Calls for Fairbanks Fail.

The play was nearly over. If Fairbanks could be found and brought out to bow at the footlights it would be all over. The spectators yelled for the "gentleman from Indiana," but he responded not. Chairman Cannon finally was obliged to come forward with the excuses of the management. Mr. Fairbanks could not be produced. He had not come to see the act at all.

The nominee for vice president made it an almost perfect system of silence. He had declined to speak before and he kept himself away from the convention that he might not be obliged to speak afterwards.

The nominee's record of reticence was unblemished.

The audience was putting on its hats; the orchestra was playing the final march; the yelling and applause was ended; Cannon was almost ready to signal down the curtain; the third act was concluded; Graeme Stewart pronounced the epilogue; Cannon gave the signal and—

The curtain came down.

START FIGHT ON "STALWARTS."

La Follette Forces Before Close of Convention Send Many Thousand Circulars to Wisconsin.

During the closing hours of the convention, oblivious to everything else, a half dozen men toiled unceasingly in the hot La Follette quarters in the Victoria hotel, addressing and mailing thousands of circulars to the voters of the Badger state. The bombardment of the stalwarts from Chicago marked the opening of the Wisconsin state campaign by the La Follette forces. The ammunition —literature giving the La Follette side of its last contest over the delegates at large—was exhausted late in the afternoon, but the "appeal to the people" was on its way to nearly 200,000 voters.

And then—and not till then—did John Hannan, the governor's secretary, take a train for Milwaukee, there to renew the work where he had left off in Chicago.

Final Report Brings Bombardment.

Anticipating the reports from the credentials committee Gov. La Follette's fighting men had kept printing presses working every hour the day before grinding out their views of the issues and principles involved. The final report of the committee was the signal for the bombardment of the stalwarts.

Gov. La Follette and his retinue will go Tuesday to St. Louis for Wisconsin day and will remain at the exposition all the week. In the following week the governor will take the stump in the interest of his ticket, expecting to go more fully into the issues outlined in the circulars sent out by his orders.

"It will be a fight for principles for which Gov. La Follette has contended for years," said Lieut. Gov. Davidson. "The governor and President Roosevelt are personal friends and national issues will not enter into the campaign. If there will be any fight on Roosevelt it will be by the other side—representing the railroad interests—which are opposed to his administration.

"Will Not Be Poor Man's Campaign."

"It will not be a poor man's campaign," was the significant remark of another of the governor's advisers. "Three of the delegates at large turned down by the credentials committee are millionaires, and not only have the money to put into a campaign themselves but have the influence to enlist aid from the substantial men of the state. W. D. Connor, chairman of the state republican committee, is a quiet, well balanced business man, Isaac Stephenson has been a party leader for forty years, and James H. Stout is noted for his generosity and philanthropic works."

The Wisconsin state committee will meet today in Madison. It is expected that Henry F. Cochems of Milwaukee will be elected secretary. He is a young attorney who managed Gov. La Follette's campaign in Milwaukee, is a graduate from the University of Wisconsin, and is said to have been physically the strongest man that ever attended Harvard.

Will Take Stump for La Follette.

Among those who will take the speakers' platform in the interest of Gov. La Follette are James A. Frear of Hudson, a member of the state assembly and who studied law in Senator Spooner's office; J. L. Lenroot, speaker in the house the last term; Senator Hudnakl of Superior; E. C. Higby, and J. E. McConnell of La Crosse.

WILL NOTIFY THE NOMINEES.

Committee to Call on the President on July 27 and on Fairbanks on Aug. 3.

Congressman Joseph G. Cannon will deliver the address on July 27 formally notifying President Roosevelt of his nomination. That much was decided at the meeting of the notification committee held in the New York headquarters in the Auditorium yesterday afternoon.

The committee organized by electing Congressman Cannon chairman. This was formal, as the convention already had designated him as such. It also passed a motion that he deliver the notification address. This was in accordance with the custom of picking the chairman of the convention as the man to notify the nominee.

Will Go to Oyster Bay.

When it came to fixing the place, however, a difficulty arose. It was not known whether the president would be in Washington or at Oyster Bay on the date named or at which place he would care to receive the committee. So the secretary was instructed to inquire as to the president's wishes in the matter and notify the members of the committee as early as possible.

In the evening, however, word came from Washington that the president would be at Oyster Bay to hear the notification.

The committee will assemble at the Fifth Avenue hotel.

Will Tell Fairbanks on Aug. 3.

Elihu Root will head the committee which will wait on Senator Charles W. Fairbanks at Indianapolis on Aug. 3 to inform him officially that he has been nominated as the republican candidate for the vice presidency. This was decided by resolution of the convention, and following the custom that the temporary chairman of the convention is chairman of the committee to notify the candidate for vice president, while the permanent chairman holds a like position on the committee to notify the candidate for president.

The committee met afterwards in the Annex and ratified the action of the convention by choosing Mr. Root as its chairman, and also instructing him to make the address of notification. Senator Fairbanks has signified that he will be in Indianapolis on the date named, and the committee adjourned to meet at that city.

DECLARE TICKET CERTAIN TO WIN.

Leaders from All Sections Laud Its Candidates and Commend Platform.

FAIRBANKS VOTE GETTER

Depew Holds to Cannon, but with Rest Will Work for "Splendid" Chiefs.

After the nomination of the national ticket yesterday afternoon republican party leaders gave statements as follows to THE TRIBUNE:

Senator Chauncey M. Depew, New York—I never have witnessed more harmony at a political gathering. It argues well for the party at the polls in November. The ticket is a splendid one. I am satisfied with Fairbanks for vice president, but I join my New York colleagues in saying I believe Speaker Cannon would have been the stronger candidate from our point of view. "Uncle Joe" could have put a whole lot of ginger into the campaign. I suppose he will do his share on the stump. I have attended nearly every national convention since the one which nominated President Lincoln for his second term. I expect to spend the summer in Europe, returning to do my share in the speaking campaign. New York is certain to roll up a big majority for Roosevelt and Fairbanks.

Senator Quarles, Wisconsin—Roosevelt with Fairbanks is a splendid combination. It could not be better for us. I believe Wisconsin will roll up a good majority for the republican ticket.

Pennsylvania Chief Confident.

Senator Boies Penrose, Pennsylvania—The ticket is a strong one, and the platform meets all the requirements. It is eminently satisfactory to the republicans of Pennsylvania, and we will lead the van by polling our usual presidential year majority.

Henry Cabot Lodge, Massachusetts—The ticket is satisfactory to the republicans of Massachusetts, and I believe to all republicans. Naturally I am well pleased with the platform, having taken such interest in the deliberations. The Massachusetts campaign virtually will open next Tuesday at Gloucester at the outing of the Essex County Republican club. I expect to address the gathering.

Cornelius N. Bliss, treasurer national committee—A winning ticket has been nominated. The New York republicans will present a solid front for Roosevelt and Fairbanks, and I have no hesitation in predicting a sweeping victory. The democrats will put up a good fight. Senator Fairbanks will materially help the ticket throughout New York. His conservatism on the financial question will add to the ticket's strength among the financial men. The platform is excellent.

Ticket "the Strongest Possible."

Senator Henry E. Burnham, New Hampshire—The convention nominated the strongest possible ticket. The vice presidency was settled for the best interests of the party. The ticket will be a winner. Roosevelt and Fairbanks will carry New Hampshire by a magnificent majority.

Senator Albert J. Beveridge, Indiana—I expressed my opinion of the platform in my address before the convention. I also tried to express my estimation of Roosevelt. With Fairbanks on the ticket success is made doubly sure. The west is strongly represented.

Gov. Pennypacker, Pennsylvania—A man has been nominated for president who was born in New York, but with western associations, western habits of mind, and western progressiveness. What better combination could there be? The president will get New York's large electoral vote and he will carry the west. I suppose it is true that had Mr. Roosevelt not been a candidate Mr. Fairbanks would have been selected to head the ticket. With a man of presidential proportions in the second place the ticket is one of the strongest ever named. It would not surprise me if Pennsylvania gave Roosevelt and Fairbanks 200,000. The mining troubles will not affect the result.

"Sweep Washington Like Cyclone."

Senator Foster, Washington—The ticket will sweep Washington like a cyclone. Fairbanks will add great strength.

Senator Dryden, New Jersey—The ticket named is strong. The east has great confidence in Fairbanks on account of his conservatism, ability, and high character. The platform could hardly be better. If the opposition does not name an unusually strong ticket Roosevelt and Fairbanks will carry the state by 60,000.

Senator Foraker, Ohio—It is the strongest ticket ever named and the strongest platform ever penned. Roosevelt and Fairbanks both are recognized as men of strong character, great ability, and unquestioned integrity.

Senator Scott, West Virginia—A stronger ticket could not have been nominated. It is well balanced. Roosevelt is a young, energetic man who looks on the bright side of things, and Fairbanks is conservative, cautious, and experienced. It will carry West Virginia.

Fairbanks to Win Indiana.

Gov. Durbin, Indiana—Fairbanks will swing Indiana into the republican column without any difficulty.

Senator Platt, New York—The ticket can't lose. It will sweep New York and Fairbanks will carry the doubtful western states.

Former Gov. Black, New York—If any one has any doubt as to what I think of the ticket I shall be glad to convince him it is one of the strongest tickets ever named by any party.

Senator Spooner, Wisconsin—It is as strong a ticket as could possibly be named. Fairbanks will add strength. We intend to give the electoral vote of Wisconsin.

Declaration from Hawaii.

Dr. C. B. Cooper, Hawaii—If the Hawaiians could vote for president the democratic candidate would not get six votes.

Congressman Sereno E. Payne, New York—What do I think of the ticket? It strikes me that Roosevelt will get the votes not only of the stanch republicans but of the first voters of democratic families. He's a young man's candidate. I believe Fairbanks can discharge the duties of president if it ever devolves upon him.

Senator Shelby M. Cullom—Of course I should like to have seen Hitt nominated for vice president, but after putting that hope away I was glad to see the nomination of Fairbanks. He will insure the victory of the republican ticket in a doubtful state.

"That's Strong Enough, Ain't It?"

Senator Carter, Montana—Say, if you want to see what we think of this ticket our way, I would advise you to take a little swing round the circle in the early days of October. The northwest will be solid for Roosevelt and Fairbanks. That's strong enough, ain't it?

Gov. Cummins, Iowa—The republican vote in Iowa is going to be so overwhelming that I don't see where the democrats are going to "get off at." Any little ructions Iowa republicans may have over tariff matters already are buried in the determination to whoop it up for Roosevelt and Fairbanks.

Gov. Peabody, Colorado—Colorado is safe for the ticket. Roosevelt has long been a man after our own hearts, and every man in this delegation is returning home to spread the report that Fairbanks is all right.

Speaker Cannon—Mere commendation of the ticket would be perfunctory. Every one knows what I think of the president; every one knows I consider Senator Fairbanks the best man who could be selected to hold up the other end. I'm going to roll up my sleeves and help elect the whole ticket.

"Invincible," Says John Dalzell.

Congressman John Dalzell, Pennsylvania—The ticket is invincible and the platform perfect. Neither could be improved upon. I believe Roosevelt and Fairbanks will sweep the country.

DAY OF SPEECHES IN CONVENTION.

Closing Session of the Republican Gathering Is Marked by Oratory.

BIG AUDIENCE IS STIRRED

Final Adjournment Follows the Nomination of Roosevelt and Fairbanks.

Chairman Cannon called to order the third and last session of the republican national convention in the Coliseum at 10:30 a. m. yesterday. The Rev. Thaddeus Snively, rector of St. Chrysostom's Episcopal church of Chicago, offered a prayer.

The secretary then read an announcement of a celebration on July 6 at Jackson, Mich., of the fiftieth anniversary of the birth of the republican party. Secretary Hay and Senator Fairbanks will be among the speakers.

The chairman—The next business in order is the calling of the roll of states for the presentation of names of candidates for president of the United States. The clerk will call the first state.

Alabama was called and O. R. Hundley yielded its place on the roll to the state of New York. This action was greeted with prolonged cheering and applause.

Black Makes Nominating Speech.

New York then was called, and amid great applause former Gov. Black ascended the platform and was escorted to the front of the stage and introduced by Speaker Cannon. After the waving of flags and cheering subsided he spoke as follows:

"Gentlemen of the Convention: We are here to inaugurate a campaign which seems already to be nearly closed. So wisely have the people sowed, and watched, and tended that there seems little now to do but to measure up the grain. In one column, reaching from the Maine woods to the Puget sound, are those people and those states which have stood so long together that when great emergencies arise the nation turns instinctively to them. In that column, vast and solid, is a majority so overwhelming that the scattered squads in opposition can hardly raise another army.

"The enemy has neither guns nor ammunition—and if they had they would use them on each other. Destitute of all the effective weapons of warfare, the only evidence of approaching battle is in the tone and number of their bulletins. There is discord among the generals. There is discord among the privates. Each would fight in his own way, but before assaulting his republican adversary he would first destroy his own comrades in the adjoining camp. Each believes the weapons chosen by the other are not only wicked but dangerous to the man who carries them. That is true. This is the only war of modern times where on one side the boomerang has been substituted for the gun.

Opposition Is Disorganized.

"But whatever fatalities may occur among the discordant hosts now moving on St. Louis, no harm will come this fall to the American people. There will be no opposition sufficient to raise a conflict. There will be hardly enough for practice. There are no democratic plans for the conduct of the fall campaign. Their zeal chiefly is centered in discussion as to what Thomas Jefferson would do if he were alive. He is not alive, and but few of his descendants are among the democratic remnants of today. Whatever of wisdom and patriotism emanated from that distinguished man is now represented here in this convehtion.

"It is a sad day for any party when its only means of solving living issues is by guessing at the possible attitude of a statesman who is dead. This condition leaves that party always a beginner and makes every question new. The democratic party seldom has tried a problem on its own account, and when it has its blunders have been its only monuments; its courage is remembered in regret.

Democratic Motto Is "Forget."

"As long as these things are recalled, that party may serve as ballast, but it never will steer the ship. When all the people have forgotten, will dawn a golden era in this new democracy, but the country is not ready yet to place a party in control whose most expressive motto is the cheerless word 'forget.' That motto may express contrition, but it does not inspire hope. Neither confidence nor enthusiasm ever will be aroused by any party which enters every campaign uttering the language of the mourner.

"But there is one fundamental plank on which the two great parties are in full agreement. Both believe in the equality of man. The only difference is that the democratic party would make every man as low as the poorest, while the republican party would make every man as high as the best. But, whatever the democratic course may be, it will provoke no outside interference now, for the republican motto is that of the famous general, 'Never interrupt the enemy while he is making a mistake.'

Argument Springs from Contrast.

"In politics, as in other fields, the most impressive argument springs from contrast. Never was there a more striking example of unity than is offered by this assemblage. You are gathered here not as factions torn by discordant views, but, moved by one desire and aim, you are here as the chosen representatives of the most enlightened party in the world. You meet not as strangers, for no men are strangers who hold the same beliefs and espouse the same cause. The same traditions inspire and the same prophesies exait you. Never in our lives did these purposes stand deeper rooted than now.

"At least two generations have passed away since the origin of that great movement from which sprung the spirit which has been the leading impulse in American politics for half a century. In that movement, which was both a creation and an example, were those great characters which endowed the republican party at its birth with the attributes of progress, equality, and justice; which have held it to this hour in line with the most enlightened sentiment of mankind.

Party Needs No New Title.

"From these men we have inherited the desire, and to their memory we owe the resolution that those great themes of government and humanity inspired by their patriotism and established by their blood shall remain as the fixed and permanent emblems of their labors, and the abiding signal of the liberty and progress of the race.

"There are many new names in these days, but the republican party needs no new title. It stands now where it stood at the beginning. Only a memory is needed to tell the source from which the inspiration of the title flowed. A drowsy memory would be as guilty now as a sleeping sentinel when the enemy is astir.

Principles Are Firmly Fixed.

"The name of the republican party is over every door where a righteous cause was born. Its members have gathered around every movement, however weak, if inspired by high resolves. Its flag during fifty years has been the sign of hope on every spot where liberty was the word. The party needs no new aim or new platform to designate its purposes. It is as it has been equipped—militant and in motion.

"The problems of every age that age must solve, but never in any enterprise have the American people failed, and never in any crisis has the republican party failed to express the conscience and intelligence of that people. The public mind is awake both to its opportunities and its dangers. Never, in any era, did citizenship mean more than it means today in America.

Unanimity Seldom Seen Before.

"Men of sterling character are arraying themselves together with a unanimity seldom seen before. There is no use for groping in the dark, for the light is plain that any who will but raise his eyes. The American people believe in a man or party with convictions. They believe that whatever experience has proved it is idle to resist. A wise man is any fool about to die. But there is a wisdom which, with good fortune, may guide the living and the strong. That reason springs from wisdom, observation, and experience, and, guided by these, this thing is plain to you and to me.

"Young men may rely upon it that the history and purposes I have described, rising even to the essence and aspirations of patriotism, find their best concrete example in the career and doctrines of the republican party. But, gentlemen, not alone upon the principles of that party are its members in accord. With the same devotion which has marked their adherence to those principles, magnificent and enduring as they are, they already have singled out the man to bear their standard and to lead the way. No higher badge ever was offered, but, high as the honor is, the circumstances which surround it make that honor even more profound.

Country Calls for One Man.

"You have come from every state and territory in this vast domain. The country and the towns have vied with each other in sending here their contributions to this splendid throng. Every highway in the land is leading here and crowded by the members of that great party which sees in this splendid city the symbol of its rise and power. Within this unexampled multitude is every rank and condition of free men, every creed and occupation. But, today, a single purpose and desire have engaged us all, and from every nook and corner of the country rises a single voice to fill the most exalted office in the world.

"He is no stranger within these gates to be called suddenly into public life. The American people have seen him for many years and always where the fight was greatest and thickest he was seen. He has been alike conspicuous in the pursuits of peace and in the arduous stress of war.

"No man now living will forget the spring of 1898, when, among all the eager citizens surging to the front as soldiers, the man whom his convention already has in its heart was among the first to hear the call and answer his name. Preferring peace, but not afraid of war, faithful to every private obligation and yet first to volunteer at the time of national peril; a leader in civil life, and yet so quick to comprehend the arts of war that he grew almost in a day to meet the high exactions of humanity.

"There is nothing which so tests a man as great and unexpected danger. He may pass his life amid ordinary scenes, and what he is or does but few ever will know, but, when the crash comes or the fire starts, a moment's time will single out a hero in the crowd. A flash of lightning in the night will reveal what years of daylight have not discovered to the eye. And so the flash of savage war reveals that lofty courage and devotion which the American heart so loves and which you have met again to decorate and recognize. His qualities do not need to be detailed, for no man in that exalted place since Lincoln has been better known in every household in the land. He is not conservative, if conservatism means waiting until it is too late.

Quick to Grasp Opportunity.

"He is not wise if wisdom is to count a thing a hundred times when once will do. There is no regret so keen in man or country as that which follows an opportunity unembraced. Fortune soars on high and rapid wings, and whoever brings it down must shoot with accuracy and speed. Only a man with steady eye and nerve and courage to pull the trigger brings the largest opportunities to the ground.

"He does not always listen well to all the so-called sages speak, but every day at nightfall beholds some record which, if not complete, has at least been pursued with conscious and intrepid courage. He is not a slender flower swaying in the wind, but that heroic fiber which is nurtured only by mountains and forest breeze. He spends little time in review, for that he knows can be done by schools. A statesman grappling with the living problems of the hour, he gropes but little in the past. He believes in going ahead. He believes that in shaping the destinies of this great republic, hope is a higher impulse than record.

Believes in Preparation.

"He believes that preparation for future triumphs is a more important duty than the inventory of past attainments. A profound student of history, he is the greatest history maker in the world. With the instincts of the scholar, he has yet forced from the scholar's pursuits all those superb qualities which fit him to the last degree for these great world currents now rushing past with larger volume and more portentious aspect than for many years before.

"The fate of nations still is decided by their wars. You may talk of orderly tribunals and learned referees. You may sing in your schools the gentle praises of the quiet life. You may strike from your books the last note of every martial anthem—and yet, in the smoke and thunder, always will be the tramp of horses and signs of approaching hosts. Men may prophesy and women pray, but peace will come here to abide forever on this earth only when the dreams of childhood are the accepted chains to guide the destinies of men.

America Is Abroad in the World.

"Events are numberless and mighty, and no man can tell which wire runs around the world. The nation basking today in the quiet of contentment and repose still may be in deadly circuit and tomorrow writhe in the coils of war. This is the time when your great figures must be kept in front. If the pressure is great in material, to resist it must be granite and iron.

"Whether you wish it or not, America is abroad in this world. Her interests are in every street, her name is on every tongue. Those interests, so great and stupendous, should be trusted only to the care of those whose power and skill and courage have been tested and proved; and in the man whom you will choose, the highest sense of every nation in the world beholds a man who typifies as no other living American does the spirit and the purposes of the twentieth century.

Does Not Claim to Be a Solomon.

"He does not claim to be the Solomon of his time. There may be many things he may not know, but this is sure: Above all things else he stands for progress, courage, and fair play, which are the synonyms of the American name.

"There are times when great fitness is hardly less than destiny, when the elements so come together that they select the agent they will use. Events sometimes select the strongest man, as the lightning goes down the highest rock. And so it is with those things which for many months with unerring sight have led you to a single name which I am chosen only to pronounce.

"Gentlemen, I nominate for president of the United States the highest living type of the youth, the vigor and the progress of a great country and a great age—Theodore Roosevelt of New York."

Intense Enthusiasm Evoked.

The mention of the name of Theodore Roosevelt aroused intense enthusiasm. Delegates rose, mounted chairs, waving flags and canes, and cheered wildly, the demonstration continuing more than five minutes. The applause grew deafening as Speaker Cannon advanced to the front of the platform waving a flag, and, as he stepped back, a portrait of Theodore Roosevelt was brought to the front of the platform.

While Speaker Cannon stood in silence on the platform, holding in his hand the flag which had been presented to him by the Lincoln delegates from Missouri to the republican national convention of 1860, the demonstration proceeded and the enthusiasm grew in volume. The delegates from California, carrying the silken banner of that state, led the delegations in a march around the floor of the convention, waving banners, flags, hats, and canes, and in all the tumult was heard the continuous chant, "Roosevelt, Roosevelt, Roosevelt."

During the progress of the demonstration a small boy with long curls was lifted to the platform, where he stood waving a good sized flag. The California delegation, which was engaged in a second tour of the aisles, on this occasion came forward carrying on their shoulders a little girl dressed in white, who also was elevated to a position on the platform beside the boy.

After the demonstration had continued for twenty-five minutes Chairman Cannon called the convention to order and the secretary read the history of the flag the chairman was holding.

Beveridge Seconds Nomination.

In the midst of the applause the chairman introduced Senator Beveridge of Indiana, who said, in part:

"Mr. Chairman and gentlemen of the convention: One difference between the opposition and ourselves is this: They select their candidate for the people and the people select our candidate for us. This was true four years ago when we accepted the people's judgment and named William McKinley, whose perfect mingling of mind and heart, of wisdom and of tenderness, won the trust and the love of the nation then, and make almost holy his memory now. His power was in the people's favor, his shrine is in the people's hearts.

"It is true today, when we again accept the people's judgment and name Theodore Roosevelt [applause], whose sympathies are as wide as the republic, whose courage, honesty, and wisdom meet all emergencies, and the sum of whose qualities makes him the type of twentieth century Americanism; and the twentieth century American is nothing more than the man of 1776 facing a new day with the old faith.

Nominee of the Fireside.

"Theodore Roosevelt, like William McKinley, is the nominee of the American fireside. So were Washington and Jefferson in the early times. So was Andrew Jackson when he swore that by the Eternal the union must be preserved. So was Abraham Lincoln.

"Our president's plans, when achieved, are always found to be nearly the people's will accomplished and that is why the people will elect him. They will elect him because they know that if he is president we will get to work and keep at work on the canal after decades of delay. When the people want a thing done they want it done. The people will elect him because they know that while he is president the flag will stay put. No American advantage in the Pacific or in the world will be surrendered. Americans never retreat. They will elect him because they know that while he is president no wrongdoer in the service of the government will go unwhipped of justice. Americans demand honor and honesty, vigilance and fearlessness.

Upholds Protection Principles.

"They will elect him because they know that while he is president a readjustment of tariff schedules will be made only in harmony with the principle of protection. [Applause.] Americans have memories. They will elect him because they know that while he is president peace with every nation will be preserved at any cost excepting only the sacrifice of American rights and that the vigor with which he prosecutes war will be in itself a guarantee of peace. The American people, frank themselves, demand frankness in their servants. No mystery ever was elected president of the United States or ever will be. Uncertainty is the death of business. The people always can get along if they know where they are and whither they are going. His past is his proof.

"Of what measure of President Roosevelt's administration does the opposition dare even to propose the repeal, and has the record of any president met higher approval? Indiana seconds the nomination of Theodore Roosevelt." [Great applause and cheering.]

Gives California's Indorsement.

George A. Knight of California next was introduced. He was received with cheers, and a California banner was borne down the center aisle, followed by two delegates carrying a large wreath of flowers. Mr. Knight said in part:

"Mr. Chairman, and gentlemen of the convention: Geography counts but little amidst the enthusiasm and the sentiment that is here apparent today in favor of the one who is to be honored and given the duties and the high privileges of the president of the United States of America. The time now is ripe for real Americanism.

"What we prayed for, what we fought for, what we bled for, what we died for, we want cared for. Telegraph the world that the republican party was the first organization that beckoned the laboring man to his feet and made him know the quality and the equality of his own true self. The republican party has done more towards the alleviation of the workingman in the United States of America than any other organization known to man.

Social Disorder Threatens.

"While today we struggle not with an obstinate soldier, nor hear the exciting drum beat of war, dark clouds of social disorder have settled in some parts of our beloved republic and give cause for alarm. The poison virus of socialism is here and the torch of the incendiary and the anarchist has been felt. Socialism never can live in this republic. The anarchist has no home with us.

"We want a president typical of the country. One who will maintain our history, teach Americanism, enforce our laws, and fight the wrong. Theodore Roosevelt! thou are the man. The party needs him more than he needs the party. Dishonesty, duplicity, cowardice are never impulsive. Theodore Roosevelt is impulsive. He hypnotizes obstacles."

Edwards Speaks for Georgia.

In introducing Harry Stillwell Edwards of Georgia Speaker Cannon said:

"Even these old eyes will live to see Georgia give an electoral vote for a republican president."

When the applause subsided Mr. Edwards said:

"Fellow-countrymen, it is eminently fit and proper that a Georgian should on this occasion second the eloquent speaker from New York; that a voice from the motherland should blend with the voice from the fatherland when its statesmen declare that the destinies of this country shall for four years more rest with that great son born of the two empire states. The influence of the father may be responsible for the iron in the son's nature, but the gold is mined from the heart of the woman whose breast cradled him. And because I believe this, because the ideals of manhood have taken root in a soil that has been carefully prepared for it in advance by a good mother, I claim for Georgia and the south a greater interest even than New York in the next president.

"It is not pretended that the section from which I come to you is in sympathy with the republican party as a party, but I am as sure as that I stand here before you the great majority of intelligent business men of the south are in sympathy with the controlling principles of your platform. And I am sure that they recognize and respect the sterling integrity and the fearless honesty of your leader."

Bradley Represents Kentucky.

Former Gov. Bradley of Kentucky was introduced as "coming from that state and of that people who take their politics, like their whisky, straight." He said:

"Mr. Chairman and Gentlemen of the Convention: The republican party has made no mistakes, consequently it has no apologies to offer. The republican party has broken no promises; therefore it enters no plea of confession and avoidance. Its only guaranty for the future is the record of its past.

"During all these eventful years the democratic party have resisted every step of advancement or improvement. They have been stupid objectors, miserable malcontents, and common scolds. They have abandoned their Moses and have been unable to discover a Joshua.

Unsafe Only to Tricksters.

"We are told by his enemies that the president is unsafe. He is unsafe only to the trickster, to the grafter, to the man who would deny the equal protection of law to any class of American citizens. They tell us that he cannot be trusted, but the people know that one who does a right thing at the right time and in the right way is entitled to vast, implicit confidence.

"In Kentucky, my friends, we have contended with principalities and powers and the rulers of darkness. We have fought with all manner of beasts—not at Ephesus, but at Frankfort—but we are nerving ourselves for the conflict in November and we hope that we will break the chains that partisan legislation has thrown around us and restore freedom to the state which gave birth to Abraham Lincoln, and holds within itself the ashes of Henry Clay."

Cotton Puts Minnesota in Line.

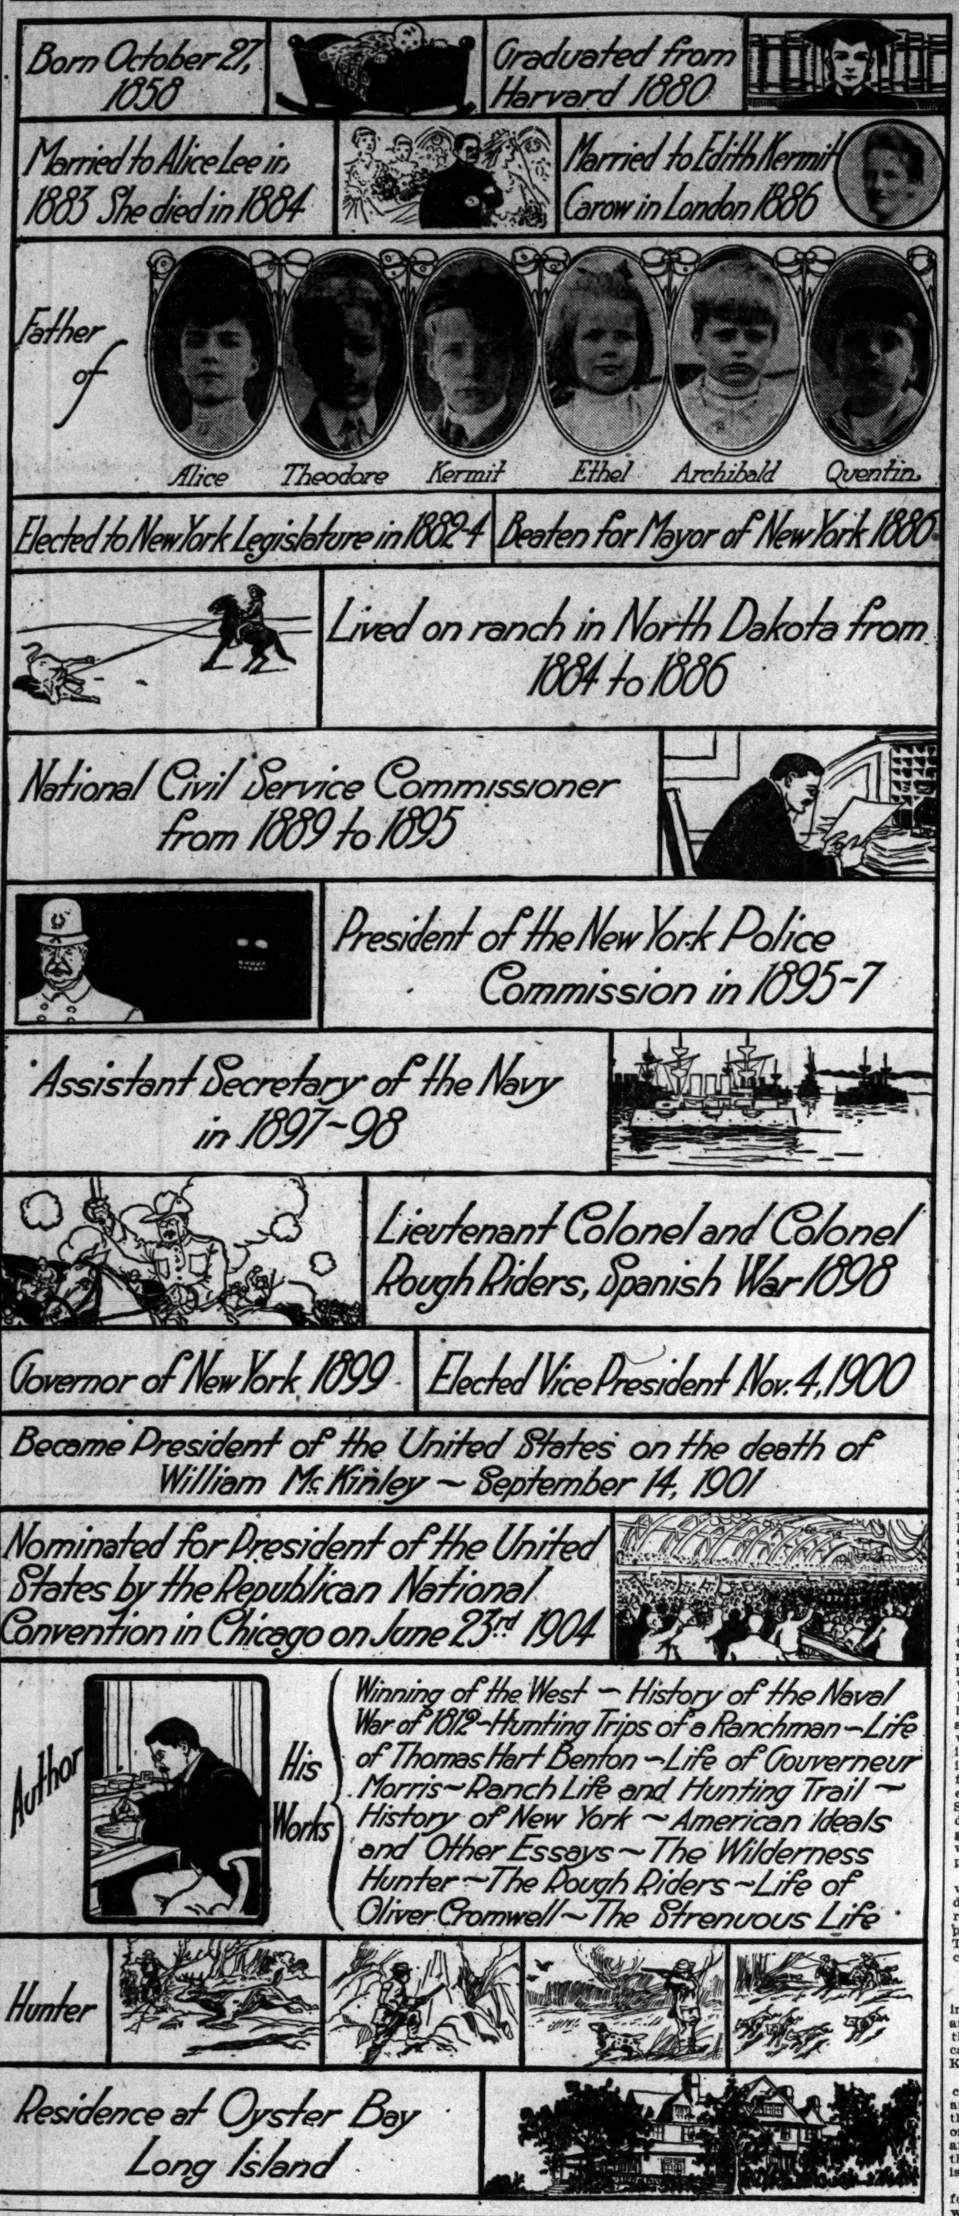

Joseph B. Cotton of Minnesota was the next speaker. He said in part:

"Mr. Chairman and Gentlemen of the Convention: Seconding speeches here are of no moment, for the nomination already has been made by the American people themselves. No words of any man are needed to tell you that he is preëminently qualified to be our great leader.

"The state of Minnesota, the mighty empire of the northwest, whose growth and prosperity will ever keep full pace with the giant trade of the nation itself, desires to

DAY OF SPEECHES IN CONVENTION.

Closing Session of the Republican Gathering Is Marked by Oratory.

BIG AUDIENCE IS STIRRED

Final Adjournment Follows the Nomination of Roosevelt and Fairbanks.

second the nomination of that intrepid leader, that potent statesman, and doer of things, that greatest workman upon the greater America—Theodore Roosevelt."

Negro Delegate Is Speaker.

The chairman then introduced Harry S. Cummings of Maryland, a colored delegate, who spoke as follows:

"Gentlemen of the convention: I have been admonished that the greatest service I can do the great American people today, and the opportunity of my life to make a hero of myself, is to speak as short as possible. It becomes the duty of this convention today to nominate a gentleman who shall lead the great republican host to victory in the coming contest; a man who stands and measures up in every particular to the responsibility of the high office of president of the grandest republic upon which the sun ever has shone. In our present chief executive, he has been named, and so surely as he will be nominated by this convention today, just so surely will he be elected by the people in November."

Roll Call Is Unanimous.

When the applause subsided the chairman announced that the clerk would call the roll. Every state cast its vote for Theodore Roosevelt. When New Jersey was reached Gov. Franklin Murphy said: "Mr. Chairman, New Jersey asks unanimous consent that the further calling of the roll be dispensed with."

There was such decided opposition to Gov. Murphy's motion that he did not press it, and the calling of the roll was proceeded with.

For Texas, Charles A. Boynton announced: "Texas casts her thirty-six votes for her adopted son, the 'rough rider,' who went from the Alamo to San Juan hill."

"The total number of votes in the convention is 994," announced Speaker Cannon. "Theodore Roosevelt has 994 votes. It only remains for me to announce that Theodore Roosevelt of the state of New York is your candidate for the presidency for the term commencing on March 4, 1905.

Dolliver Nominates Fairbanks.

The roll was then called for the nomination of candidates for the vice presidency. Alabama again yielded precedence; this time to the state of Iowa. Senator Dolliver placed Senator Fairbanks in nomination. He spoke as follows:

"Gentlemen of the convention: Everything in this convention has gone smoothly and easily because the American people did their thinking on these subjects before they commissioned us to come here and transact their business.

"Our hearts are saddened by the circumstance that the last four years have been amply stricken in the organization and leadership of the republican party. Gov. Hoyt is dead and gone; his name rendered immortal by legislation which began a miracle of industrial and commercial progress which opened the twentieth century to the United States. We miss calm Ned, who put an end to anarchy in the house of representatives.

Era of Younger Leaders.

"We are, in a sense—all hail to the old leaders of the republican party—we are in a sense face to face with a new era in the political history of the United States, an era that shall take its character from the traditions of their republican party and from the personality of men born since 1850.

"That is the significance, in part, at least, of the unanimous nomination of Theodore Roosevelt as president of the United States, and that, also, is the significance of the unanimity with which this convention, interpreting the will of the American people, has called into its service and is about to commission as his associate for the guidance and leadership of the republican party, Charles W. Fairbanks, our candidate for vice president. [Cheers and prolonged applause.]

"A farmer boy, a student making his way through college, a country lawyer, a statesman, a leader of the republican party, fit for any of its great responsibilities, I nominate this great republican and this representative type of the best there is in the republicanism of our times—Senator Fairbanks of Indiana.

Senator Depew Follows.

Cheers and applause followed until Chairman Cannon finally succeeded in securing order and introduced Senator Depew of New York.

Senator Depew was received with applause and friendly cries from all parts of the house. One remark coming from a delegate, "Have you had your dinner?" the senator selected and used as a text and said:

"My friend wants to know if I have had my dinner; but what I am about to say is in behalf of dinners for the American people. I cannot help contrasting, in listening to the eloquence with which we have been privileged this morning, what will be the difference when our democratic friends meet on July 6 to go through with their duty of nominating candidates and adopting platforms. We here have been unanimous as to our candidates, all agreed upon our principles, all recognizing and applauding our great statesmen, living and dead, and agreeing with them. In that convention there will be the only two living exponents of democratic principles.

"On the one side will be democracy's only president rising and saying, 'Be sane.' On the other side, in opposition, will come their last candidate for president, saying, 'Be democrats.' The two are incompatible.

Illustrates with a Story.

"Now, my friends, while we present the positive, the convention which meets on July 6 represents that element unknown heretofore in American politics, the opportunist. It is waiting for bankruptcy, waiting for panic, waiting for industrial depression, waiting for financial distress.

"There was an old farmer upon the Maine coast who owned a farm with a rocky ledge running out into the ocean called Hurricane point, and on it ships were wrecked and he gathered his harvest from the wrecks, and in his will he wrote: 'I devise my farm equally among my children, but Hurricane point shall be kept for all of you forever, for while the winds blow and the waves roll the Lord will provide.'

"But we have put a lighthouse on Hurricane point, a lighthouse of protection, with a revolving light shedding gold over the ocean, and American commerce going and coming is absolutely safe.

Of Full Presidential Size.

"Now, gentlemen, it is my privilege in looking for vice presidential possibilities to announce what you all know, that we have found a vice presidential candidate of full presidential size. Every one knows that if the towering figure of Theodore Roosevelt had been out of this canvass one of the promising candidates before this convention for president of the United States would have been Charles W. Fairbanks.

"New York, appreciating his great ability as a lawyer, appreciating the national name he has made for himself as a senator, appreciating his dignity, his character, and his genius for public affairs, seconds the nomination of Charles W. Fairbanks for vice president of the United States."

Foraker Addresses Convention.

Senator Foraker of Ohio then was introduced and spoke as follows:

"Gentlemen of the convention: We have come here to do three things: Make a platform, name the next president of the United States, and also name the next vice president of the United States. We have done two of these things and are about to do the third. And we have done both of the things well.

"On the ticket with Theodore Roosevelt as his associate for the presidency we want to place a man who represents in his personality, in his belief, in his public service, in his high character, all this splendid record the republican party has made; all these great declarations of these former platforms, and a man who will typify, as the leader of our ticket will, the highest ambition and the noblest purposes of the republican party of the United States.

"I will not stand here and detain you with a eulogy of Senator Fairbanks beyond simply saying that to all who know him personally, as those of us do who have been closely associated with him in the public service, he meets all the requirements so eloquently stated by Senator Depew."

Pennsylvania's Governor Is Next.

Gov. Pennypacker of Pennsylvania, who made the next seconding speech, said:

"Gentlemen of the convention: Pennsylvania recalls that Abraham Lincoln and Uncle Joe Cannon, both of them wanderers from the south to reach distinction in the north, before they came to Illinois had a preliminary training in Indiana.

"She remembers that when her own senator, he who did so much for the republican party and whose wise counsels, alas, are missing today, bore the commission to Washington, he had no more earnest supporter than the able and distinguished senator who then, as now, represented Indiana in the senate. Pennsylvania, with the approval of her judgment, with glad anticipations of victory in her heart, seconds the nomination for the vice presidency of Charles W. Fairbanks of Indiana.

Carter Speaks for Montana.

Former Senator Thomas H. Carter of Montana, who followed, said:

"Gentlemen of the convention: It will at once be consoling and reassuring to you for me to announce that I do not rise to make a speech, but to make a deliberate announcement. You will all remember how eight years ago the intermountain country, theretofore solidly republican, became tempest tossed and discredited. It will be remembered with regret that since 1892 republican electoral votes in the Rocky mountain country have been few and far between. I am here today to say to you that from the Canadian line to the south line of the Colorado and from the Missouri river to the Pacific ocean every electoral vote will be cast for Theodore Roosevelt.

"Of all those who have been sympathetic through good and evil report, while standing inflexible for the cardinal principles of the party, one of the strongest and most comforting of all who have helped has been Charles Fairbanks of Indiana, whose nomination I second."

Chairman Cannon—Are there any further nominations?

There were cries of "No, no."

Chairman Cannon—If not by unanimous consent the further call of the states will be dispensed with.

Cullom Withdraws Hitt's Name.

Senator Cullom obtained the floor and said:

"Before any votes shall be taken, Mr. Chairman, I desire to say a word in behalf of Illinois. Illinois had the great honor of having a candidate for the office of vice president, the Hon. Robert R. Hitt. Two days ago I received a telegram from that distinguished gentleman stating that as the drift seemed to be for Senator Fairbanks he desired that I should withdraw his name from consideration in connection with that great office. Therefore, Mr. Chairman, the Illinois delegation met, accepted the suggestion by Robert R. Hitt, and then voted that we should give our solid vote for Charles W. Fairbanks for vice president of the United States."

Favorite Sons Are Dropped.

Senator Depew asked unanimous consent that the roll call be suspended and that Senator Fairbanks' nomination be made by a unanimous vote. W. P. Miles of Nebraska objected and seconded the nomination in behalf of his state. L. W. Parker of Missouri followed and withdrew the name of Cyrus Wallbridge as its candidate.

The chairman—Is there objection? The chair hears none, and it only remains for the chair to declare that Charles W. Fairbanks of the state of Indiana is the candidate for vice president for the term beginning March 4, 1905, by the unanimous choice of the convention. [Great applause.]

Assigns Heads of Committees.

The following resolution, offered by Senator Dolliver, then was adopted:

Resolved, That the permanent chairman of this convention, the Hon. Joseph G. Cannon of Illinois, be appointed chairman of the committee to notify the Hon. Theodore Roosevelt of his nomination for president, and that the temporary chairman, the Hon. Elihu Root of New York, be appointed chairman of the committee to notify the Hon. Charles W. Fairbanks of his nomination for vice president; and that the committee notify the candidate for president on July 27 and the candidate for vice president on Aug. 3.

Senator Heyburn of Idaho offered the following resolution, which was adopted:

Resolved, That the thanks of this convention are tendered to the temporary, the permanent chairman, the secretary and his assistants, the sergeant at arms, and his deputies, the tally and reading clerks, the official reporters, and their messengers.

Another resolution offered by Gov. Murphy of New Jersey and adopted was:

Resolved, That the thanks of this convention are hereby tendered to the Hon. Samuel B. Raymond, chairman; and the members of the Chicago committee on arrangements, the members of the subcommittee of the republican national committee, and the citizens of Chicago, for the hospitable and perfect provision made for the sessions of the convention, and the entertainment of the delegates, alternates, and visitors.

The clerk then read the list of the committees to notify the nominees.

On motion of Graeme Stewart the convention adjourned sine die, at 2:26 p. m.

MR. ROOSEVELT—"THIS IS SO SUDDEN."

URGES HITT FOR THE CABINET.

Senator Cullom Wants Congressman to Get His Place if Secretary Hay Retires.

Senator Cullom said yesterday that if John Hay should relinquish his position as secretary of state to become a member of The Hague peace tribunal or for any other cause, he would urge the selection of Congressman Robert R. Hitt as Mr. Hay's successor.

"Mr. Hay," said he, "has been the best secretary of state we have ever had, and he is almost an Illinois boy, having studied law in my office. But if he should relinquish his office I shall certainly urge that Congressman Hitt be appointed to the vacancy. Mr. Hitt is well fitted for the office, and his name has often been mentioned in connection with it in Washington.

"It was a great regret to me and others of the Illinois delegation that the state of Mr. Hitt's health interfered with his candidacy for vice president. Had he been able to be here I believe his chances would have been good."

NEGROES TO OPPOSE GAINES.

Will Make Concentrated Fight Against Re-election of Congressman in Third District of West Virginia.

Prophesying the defeat of Congressman Joseph H. Gaines of West Virginia, the delegates to the National Negro Suffrage league, which has been in session here, left the city last night to invade the congressman's district and try to prevent his reelection.

Mr. Gaines was a member of the elections committee which ruled against several negro contestants in the election last March. The Suffrage league has taken up arms against him for his share in the decisions. They have already issued 10,000 pamphlets attacking Mr. Gaines and will now continue the fight until next August.

In the resolutions which the Suffrage convention adopted Gaines is accused of "a plain and open violation of the oath of office, a contemptuous disregard for the constitution and laws of the United States—a precedent, which, until reversed, will prevent further contests from any of the disfranchised states of the south."

CORTELYOU CHIEF; TO BE SUPREME.

Elected Head of Republican Committee, Says He Will Be Manager in Fact.

VOTE FOR HIM UNANIMOUS

Headquarters to Open Probably in the Latter Part of Next Month.

On assuming the chairmanship of the republican national committee yesterday, George B. Cortelyou gave the members to understand that he would be the chairman in fact as well as in name.

Immediately after the convention adjourned the new committe met and organized, electing three officers as follows:

Chairman—Mr. Cortelyou.
Secretary—Elmer Dover.
Sergeant at Arms—William E. Stone.

Apparently all opposition to Mr. Cortelyou had disappeared. No protest was offered and not a single vote was cast against him. He was introduced to the committee as its chief executive by Postmaster General Henry C. Payne, who in a short speech proclaimed him "the man of the hour" and said that he would soon demonstrate his fitness in every way for the position.

Will Object to Interference.

On taking the gavel Mr. Cortelyou thanked the committee for the honor conferred on him and expressed the hope that they would get along together harmoniously. At the same time he intimated strongly that he would not brook dictation from any source and said: "As the responsibilities will be upon my shoulders I propose to be the chairman. We may as well understand each other at the beginning as to what our duties are and thus avoid conflict over plans for running the campaign.

"I want your confidence and support at all times. I shall always be pleased to receive suggestions from any member of this body and hope you will not be backward in making them. An exchange of opinions from time to time will be of great benefit to all of us. Undoubtedly I shall want the benefit of your experience on all matters pertaining to the carrying out of policies and to the conduct of the campaign. I want you to feel yourselves at liberty to confer with me, on any and all occasions. We will, I am sure, work in perfect unison and harmony for the triumph of our ticket next November."

Executive Committee Authorized.

On motion of Mr. Payne Chairman Cortelyou was authorized to fill all vacancies in the committee and to select an executive committee of nine which shall have full charge with the chairmen of the campaign. He was also given the power to choose the members of this smaller body from outside of the main committee. The officers of the big committee are to be the officers of the executive campaign organization.

The chairman stated that no appointments would be made until his successor as secretary of the department of commerce and labor is ready to relieve him and he can get out of the cabinet.

In reply to requests as to when the battle would begin he said:

"The headquarters in New York and Chicago will not be opened earlier than the latter part of July."

As to who will be in charge, next to himself at the respective stations, Mr. Cortelyou declared that no formal action had been taken. The understanding as to the Chicago station, however, is that Committeeman Harry S. New of Indiana will step into the place that Mr. Payne occupied as right hand man to Chairman Hanna throughout the last two campaigns.

Louisiana Has Vacancy.

Chairman Cortelyou will be called on soon to fill the Louisiana vacancy in the committee. The two factions could not agree on a representative, so they reported "no selection."

HUNDREDS GO TO ST. LOUIS.

Republican Delegates Depart in Special Trains as Guests of the Exposition.

When the chairman's gavel struck its last whack on the memorable table in the Coliseum, announcing that the national republican convention had adjourned sine die, there was a scramble for hotels, a payment of bills, and then "Now for St. Louis" became the rallying cry. Some of the older and more sedate and distinguished of the delegates remained in Chicago, but the majority took advantage of an invitation from the Louisiana Purchase exposition and there was a migration at 9 o'clock last night over three railroads for the southern city. Three trains of eight coaches each departed on the Illinois Cenral, Chicago and Alton, and Wabash lines, and in addition one section of a train on the Alton left at 10:30 with the Rhode Island delegation.

The delegations were divided as follows:

ILLINOIS CENTRAL—Alabama, California, Florida, Illinois, Kentucky, Louisiana, Massachusetts, Mississippi, Montana, New Hampshire, New Jersey, North Carolina, Oregon, Rhode Island, South Carolina, Tennessee.

CHICAGO AND ALTON—Colorado, Connecticut, Idaho, Iowa, Kansas, Michigan, Missouri, North Dakota, Pennsylvania, Texas, Virginia, Washington, West Virginia, Wyoming.

WABASH—Arkansas, Delaware, Georgia, Indiana, Maine, Maryland, Minnesota, Nebraska, Nevada, New York, Ohio, South Dakota, Utah, Vermont, Wisconsin.

It is expected that all the trains will arrive in St. Louis between 6 and 7 this morning and reach the fair grounds half an hour later.

The first delegates to leave Chicago departed on the Pennsylvania line at 6:30 in the evening for the east. It was the Leede special. This was followed by another Pennsylvania special which left fifteen minutes later with most of the state delegation.

Speaker Cannon departed late in the afternoon for his home in Danville. "No exposition for me—not just yet," he said. "I want to rest up."

The Massachusetts delegates left at 9:30 for St. Louis on their private train.

By midnight the hotels were in a normal condition once more.

SENATOR PLATT AND DEPUTY IN GAME OF HIDE AND SEEK.

New Yorker Ultimately Served with Summons in a $3,000,000 Suit Begun by James Donovan.

Senator Thomas C. Platt of New York was served yesterday with a summons in a $3,000,000 damage suit. The suit was brought by James Donovan, 3224 Calumet avenue, who charges that the Platt & Underwood company cut $3,000,000 worth of lumber from Donovan's land in Wisconsin and Michigan. J. Platt Underwood of Chicago is also a defendant.

Deputy Sheriff Flynn, who had been told Senator Platt was old and feeble, thought the serving of the summons an easy matter. It was not.

At the convention hall Flynn's troubles began. Before the cab bearing the deputy and Donovan reached the Coliseum the New York senator had been warned. He spoke to the sergeants at arms nearest the New York delegation and they saw to it that Flynn never reached Mr. Platt.

Back to the Annex hurried Senator Platt and after him rushed Flynn. The deputy was thirty seconds too late to see the senator enter the hotel. At his room Flynn was turned away three times by a big guard. At length the guard answered a summons from Senator Depew. Flynn made a dash for the room. He said of his interview with the senator:

"I knew the old man was there, but I couldn't see him any place. The room was kind of dark. I walked out in the center of the room and finally saw Platt away over in a corner.

"'I've a summons for you here,' I said to Platt, who hadn't seen me.

"'Who let you in here?' says he. He was mad and looked it.

"'Nobody,' said I.

"'How'd you get in then?'

"'Walked. The door was open.'

When seen later at the Auditorium hotel Senator Platt said he didn't care to discuss the matter. Mr. Underwood, who has an office in the Old Colony building, said:

"We never cut timber on any land except where we had a right. Talk of a forged deed is nonsense. A man named Baker, whose partner Donovan claims to have been, owned land in Wisconsin adjoining that controlled by Senator Platt and myself, but that land was never invaded by men from our camps."

GEMS OF POLITICAL THOUGHT FROM NOMINATING SPEECHES AT CONVENTION.

WE of the south believe Roosevelt is animated by a spirit of patriotism as broad and as bright as has ever streamed from the White house over our beloved country; and we believe that when he has fulfilled his mission, he, the son of the north and south, will carry with him the consciousness that fatherland and motherland, once divorced in sadness, through him and because of him, have been drawn together again in the bonds of the old affection.—HARRY STILLWELL EDWARDS.

THE democratic course will provoke no outside interference now, for the republican motto is that of the great commander, "never interrupt the enemy while he is making a mistake."—FRANK S. BLACK.

IN the democratic convention there will be only two living exponents of democratic principles. On the one side will be their only president rising and saying "Be sane." While on the other side, in opposition, will come their last candidate for president, saying "Be democrats." The two are incompatible.—SENATOR DEPEW.

THE things upon which we are agreed are so great, and the things about which we differ are so small, that we are able, without sacrificing sincere republican convictions anywhere, to unite as one man in defense of our common faith.—SENATOR DOLLIVER.

THE PRESIDENT knows how and when to plan, and, better still, how and when to execute. Alert of mind, he has quickly seized every opportunity. In the procurement of concessions for the Panama canal he accomplished more in a few hours than his predecessors accomplished in more than a hundred years. He did not attempt to unloose, he cut the Gordian knot. His enemies say that he cannot be trusted, but the people know that one who always does the right thing at the right time and in the right way is entitled to their implicit confidence.—WILLIAM O. BRADLEY.

WE stand at the beginning of the new era, and while the republican party leans upon the counsel of its old leaders, it has not hesitated to summon to the responsibilities of public life the young men who have been trained under their guidance to take up the burdens which they are ready to lay down, and finish the work which comes to them as an inheritance of patriotism and duty.—SENATOR DOLLIVER.

FORTUNE soars with high and rapid wing, and whoever brings it down must shoot with accuracy and speed. Only the man with steady eye and nerve and the courage to pull the trigger brings the largest opportunities to the ground.—FRANK S. BLACK.

THERE are times when great fitness is hardly less than destiny, when the elements so come together that they select the agent they will use. Events sometimes select the strongest man, as lightning goes down the highest rod. And so it is with those events which for many months with unerring sight have led you to a single name which I am chosen only to pronounce: Gentlemen, I nominate for president of the United States the highest living type of the youth, the vigor and the promise of a great country and a great age, Theodore Roosevelt of New York.—FRANK S. BLACK.

PENNSYLVANIA, with the approval of her judgment and with glad anticipation of victory in her heart, following a leader who, like the chevalier of France, is without fear and without reproach, seconds the nomination for the vice presidency of Charles W. Fairbanks of Indiana.—S. W. PENNYPACKER.

THE PEOPLE will elect Roosevelt because they know if he is president he will get to work on the canal after decades of delay. When the people want a thing done they want it done.—SENATOR BEVERIDGE.

WHAT we prayed for, fought for, bled for, and died for we want cared for.—GEORGE A. KNIGHT.

WE want this younger Lincoln—the keeper of our great eagle—we want him with his handas on the halyards of our flag, we want him the defender of our constitution and executive of our law, and when we have used him and the best years of his young manhood for the good of the nation he will still be holding out banner of liberty with stars added to its azure field, its history sacred, its stripes untarnished, and by command of the majority hand it to the American patriot standing next in line.—GEORGE A. KNIGHT.

THE GREAT MISSION of the republican party will not be performed until every section of our constitution and every amendment thereof shall be respected and made effective, and until every citizen of every section, of every race, and of every religion shall proclaim in one grand chorus of that constitution, "Thou are my shield and buckler."—H. S. CUMMINGS.

ONE difference between the opposition and ourselves is this: They select their candidates for the people and the people select our candidate for us.—SENATOR BEVERIDGE.

THE AMERICAN people, frank themselves, demand frankness in their servants. No mystery was ever elected president of the United States or ever will be.—SENATOR BEVERIDGE.

THEODORE ROOSEVELT wanted to give Uncle Sam a job and he did it and Uncle Sam wanted the job and he took it. He belongs to the union. We see him standing today with his feet upon the spade, his garments are made of his flag, his inventive yankee whiskers are brushed, there is an American smile on his face, and his heart is gladdened as he looks at his commercial future.—GEORGE A. KNIGHT.

THEODORE ROOSEVELT hypnotizes obstacles, looks them in the eye, and overpowers them with honesty of purpose. Dishonesty, cowardice, and duplicity are never impulsive; Roosevelt is impulsive.—GEORGE A. KNIGHT.

THEODORE ROOSEVELT unhesitatingly measured swords with the giant coal corporation, which threatened the people with wrong and oppression, and brought it into subjection.—WILLIAM O. BRADLEY.

THERE are no democratic plans for the conduct of the fall campaign. Their zeal is chiefly centered in discussion as to what Thomas Jefferson would do if he were living.—FRANK S. BLACK.

ROOSEVELT is not conservative, if conservatism means waiting till it is too late. He is not wise, if wisdom is to count a thing a hundred times when once will do.—FRANK S. BLACK.

Floyd Campbell's Cartoons.

One of the most popular newspaper features of the republican convention has been the work of Mr. Floyd Campbell, the cartoonist of the Philadelphia North American. Many of the delegates have expressed themselves to THE TRIBUNE as being particularly pleased and amused by Mr. Campbell's drawings. The cartoonist certainly has something of the portrait painter in him. Not only can he take off the big politicians in his caricatures but he also can get their actual temperaments into his pen and ink sketches. The cartoon of Senator Lodge, which appeared yesterday, was especially fine, indicating with perfect fidelity the character of the Massachusetts statesman.

In the name of its readers THE TRIBUNE wishes to extend to the North American its hearty thanks for the Campbell drawings.

LAST DAY OF SCHOOL.

Chicago will have an old but ever new municipal problem facing it again tonight. Approximately 300,000 children of all ages are turned out of school upon the streets of the city. Ordinarily the occasion is referred to as merely a commencement day proceeding. In reality, it is a social cataclysm, the shock of which is tremendous.

Strictly these 300,000 young people are an army released of military discipline and off on furlough. In school, and at study out of school, for ten months they have been in leash for perhaps ten hours of a sixteen hour waking day. Now, with their papers of discharge and furlough in hand, Chicago must absorb without a single social hitch these tens of thousands of bookless children.

The summer school and the municipal playground will relieve much of the strain in the congested quarters. The 5,600 teachers who have dealt with the individual pupils have been relieved, but their burdens are falling upon 100,000 mothers. For the next two months a double duty will devolve upon the grade crossing watchman, upon the gripman and motorman of the street railways, and upon the park policeman.

But here is the compensation: This is the happiest day in the year for 300,000 children.

COBB'S COMPLAINT.

Henry Ives Cobb might have spared the republican national convention the suggestion that it influence a future congress to absolve him of his immediate past.

National committeemen, delegates, visitors, and citizens have the federal building for reference. They may look for the eight point granite of the specifications and find six point and even four point work. A school boy can pick out the patchwork "dutchmen" which mar great blocks of costly stone. Vital defects in the basic plans of the building may be pointed out by cabmen whose stands are on the corners of the square. The Cobb bills of "expenses" that were disallowed at Washington certainly are of record somewhere.

Cobb is writhing as he deserves to writhe. He did not resign from the position of special architect of the Chicago postoffice. He was discharged. Cobb does not take kindly to resignations. When the American Institute of Architects asked for his resignation from that body in 1900 Cobb refused to resign, and that body let him stay in. Secretary Shaw was more businesslike. He "fired" Cobb, and for causes too plain to need analysis. Therefore Cobb is grieved, simply grieved. He has had to strike balances in profit and loss for nearly a year, leaving out the $4,500 salary which went with his position before removal. He is grieved just $4,500 worth annually for each of the indefinite number of years stretching out into the future during which he expected to hold down his job.

COURTESY IS SPREADING.

New York has been smiled at for trying to legislate the passenger from the end seat in the car. Brooklyn is risking a laugh in trying to eliminate the redundant one who insists in standing up between two seated passengers. Chicago has just gone through a brief application of the law against spitting in public places. And all for the reason that man, for a mere lack of education, offends his fellow man unwittingly and unconsciously.

Five months ago Chicago moved against the offender who spat on sidewalks and in public conveyances. Scores of men were arrested and fined. In the public thoroughfares these arrests were regarded first as outrages. Later the victims of police activity pleaded forgetfulness. Finally the arrests ceased altogether. But today Chicago is benefiting from the anti-spitting ordinance. Hundreds of old time offenders against the unwritten law of decency, for the first time, had attention called to the written ordinance. They spat beyond the curb line at the first, reluctantly. Then, recognising the purpose of the law, they stepped to the curbstone willingly. Now one may see a dozen men step to the edge of the sidewalk where he sees one spit upon the path. There is not one chance in a hundred that to spit upon the walk would cause arrest of the offender; it is that the offender has had his offense called to his attention. He has had a lesson in community decency. The need of the lesson had never occurred to him before.

One of these days the man who sits across from another in a double seat may refrain from piling up his feet opposite and penning up his vis-a-vis who is riding backward. He may even move over from the end of the seat which he is blockading, or he may use a car strap to such purpose that the people sitting will not be required to think of the luxury of being able to stand. Things are moving in that direction.

ROOSEVELT AND FAIRBANKS.

Theodore Roosevelt was vice president. Death elevated him to the presidency. At the ensuing convention of his party he is nominated to succeed himself as chief magistrate. This is the first time in American history that such a thing has happened. Mr. Roosevelt has broken another precedent.

His career has been made by breaking precedents. Customs, habits, mannerisms, traditions of the past which existed not because of any sound underlying reason but because they merely happened to exist, because things fell out that way, because it had not been otherwise, have never frightened Mr. Roosevelt into not doing something which he thought ought to be done.

The vice president who reaches the White house through the death of a president has a hard position to fill. Especially is this true if the dead president was killed by an assassin. In such case a halo of almost holy sorrow encircles itself around the memory of the departed leader. The elevation of the vice president takes place not in rejoicing but to the sad strains of the funeral march. He begins his administration under the most depressing auspices. The dead statesman's friends and admirers regard his successor almost as an intruder. This is all natural, and the result of some of the finer and more loyal traits of human nature, but it threatens the success of the new president.

Against this situation Mr. Roosevelt had to contend. McKinley, the greatly beloved, had been killed by an anarchist. He was in the full tide of his great career. He had but just delivered the Buffalo speech, which showed him to be the greatest and most far seeing statesman in the country. At his zenith he was shot. He suffered for seven sad days and passed away like a hero, with brave, pious words on his lips.

The veterans in congress who knew McKinley intimately, who had fallen into perfect harmony of thought with him, knew little about his young successor. Many of these veterans had gray hair and were in public life when Roosevelt was in the cradle. They thought of the new executive as a broncho buster, a rough rider, a boisterous, professional "reformer," a man of much but undirected energy, little judgment, and a startling absence of tact. If the veterans of congress had been correct in their estimate of Roosevelt he would yesterday have been defeated with almost the same unanimity that he was nominated.

From the day he was sworn in at Buffalo, the opposition to Roosevelt has grown steadily less. People have come to realize that after all he is safe, that behind his energy there is the sound judgment to direct it. The favorite predictions about him have not come true. He has not plunged the country into war, but on the contrary has brought it safely through some rather delicate diplomatic crises. He has enforced the laws against capital, but he has not thereby interrupted the business continuity of the nation.

He has had enemies, like every other strong man. Certain Wall street magnates have been, and doubtless still are, displeased with him because he settled the coal strike, prosecuted the Northern Securities case, and made it the duty of the new department of commerce to throw publicity upon corporations. But these enemies have been unable to make a case against him strong enough to submit to the people. They have been unable to pick out any man who could make headway against him as a candidate for the nomination.

The convention did not nominate Roosevelt; it merely ratified the nomination which had already been made by the people themselves. The selection of Roosevelt by the delegates was not merely the logical thing but also the inevitable thing. He is the best vote getter in his entire party. If Roosevelt is not elected, no republican could be elected.

Fairbanks of Indiana was nominated for vice president, also unanimously. His selection is expected to take Indiana out of the doubtful column and to make it surely republican. The politicians always like to have a "well balanced" ticket. They have framed one this time. The east and the west are represented. It has been said that Roosevelt is an eastern man with western ideas, while Fairbanks is a western man with eastern ideas. This presumably makes the balance more complete.

The delegates have adjourned, realizing that they have named the strongest ticket it was possible for them to select.

THE SLOCUM INVESTIGATION.

The following facts have been brought out in the investigation of the Gen. Slocum disaster:

No fire drills were held on the boat. No life preservers had been bought for nine years. The fire hose cost 16 cents a foot, as compared with $1.50, the price paid for the same size of hose used in the fire department of New York. No water was turned on the fire through the fire hose, as a rubber washer had been placed in the stand pipe that supplied it. The crew were too excited to remove this obstruction. The mate was not licensed, and held his position in violation of a specific statute. One of the steamboat inspectors refused to testify on the ground that he might incriminate himself.

In addition to the local and national bodies which will investigate the Slocum tragedy the government has appointed a special commission under charge of Secretary Cortelyou to undertake a sweeping inquiry into the causes of the disaster. Four years ago congress appointed a special commission to investigate the matter of steamboat inspection. The recommendations of the commission were so radical that the entire mercantile marine interests rose and prevented any reform so sweeping as the report contemplated. Now that a terrible calamity has shown the need of reform in the regulations of excursion boats, it may be possible to take up the work which should have been done four years ago.

The present investigation will be useless if it confines itself to an attempt to fix the responsibility of the last steamboat horror. It will be incomplete if it limits itself to the study of fire drills, fire apparatus, life preservers, and lifeboats on ships.

Lifeboats can accommodate but a fraction of the passengers, even when safely launched. In case of panic people will become so frenzied that any mechanism, no matter how simple, will be beyond their ability to adjust properly. The pitiable failure of the best fire fighting brigade to extinguish fire by means of hose when once the flames are well started is too well demonstrated in every large conflagration to need additional proof. Moreover, there will always be laxity in the enforcement of stringent laws, and the full efficiency of the laws cannot be logically expected.

The government should not try to disguise the fact that excursion boats which carry large numbers of women and children are in need of radical reforms in construction as well as equipment. Nowadays ships can be made practically noncombustible. The water tight bulkhead has reduced the danger from collisions to a minimum. Ships—especially excursion boats which carry cargoes of human beings—should be built with water tight bulkheads to prevent disaster from collision and with steel hulls to prevent disaster from fire.

IT is all right—Mr. Fairbanks will accept.

THE celebration of the fourth is now about ready to begin.

NEVERTHELESS, some Indiana poet will work "Roosevelt and Fairbanks" into rhyme all right.

THERE is the fear, of course, that if Secretary Shaw takes any drastic action in the matter of the St. Louis exposition gate money the state of Missouri may go democratic this fall.

THUS far no serious dent has been made in the smoothness of our illustrious Unc' Sheib Cullom.

IF the democrats will accept a friendly suggestion, let them get the gentleman in the White house to select their convention orators for them.

TODAY the can opener will be produced at Chicago and the embalmed principles of the republican party will be cautiously exposed to the open air.—New York World.

The can, however, will be firmly attached to the tail of the democratic donkey.

IT was a sane and sensible out not a noiseless convention.

THE people, having nominated their candidate, will proceed in due and regular form to elect him.

IN his calmer moments Dr. Depew will acknowledge that those nominating speeches were entitled to an entire day.

MR. BRYAN labors under the disadvantage of being no longer an unknown quantity. Nothing he can do will take the democratic convention by surprise this year.

KEYNOTE sounded by the orator from California: "He hypnotizes obstacles."

EVEN the weather warmed up perceptibly under the spell of Mr. Black's eloquence.

SENATOR BEVERIDGE'S remark, "they select their candidate for the people, and the people select our candidate for us," will hold the democrats for awhile.

IN their haste and enthusiasm some of the delegates forgot that the accepted pronunciation of the nominee's name is Roseyv'lt.

HARRY STILLWELL EDWARDS' point is worth considering. Mr. Roosevelt is a fusion candidate—half New Yorker and half Georgian.

EDITOR BRYAN, the Vladivostok squadron of the democratic situation, will make a dash into the St. Louis convention, demolish a few transports, and achieve his getaway safely.

MAYOR HARRISON feels that he has done all that ought to be expected of him, and he can go fishing now with a clear conscience.

THE California delegation will go home with light hearts and a great deal less baggage than it brought here.

FOR several days it has been possible to forget all about Common Seaman Jamieson, marooned.

THE St. Louis theaters are in hard luck this summer. The opposition of the Pike is too much for them.

INASMUCH as the Peerless Leader is still reiterating that he "stands just where he stood in 1896," his choice for president cannot have undergone any radical change.

THE duty of doing something to placate Gov. La Follette was relegated to Wisconsin as belonging strictly to the domain of home industry.

WITH a western vice president and a cabinet composed mainly of western men President Roosevelt will have to be the "eastern question" himself during his next term.

Contrast.

The tall Cossack was taking his first look at a Japanese soldier.

"Littleovitch, but O, myski!" he exclaimed, feeling this to be the style of dialect that was expected of him.

Her Triumph.

"I have come to tell you," said the primary teacher, "that I am about to be married."

"Well, of course, Miss Jones," the superintendent replied, "you know what our rules are. You will be expected to resign your position."

"That's all right, sir," rejoined Miss Jones, "I expect to hold a better one—by proxy. I am going to marry a school principal."

The Great Leader.

The Prophet of Zion City was making a flying visit out of Australia.

"See how enthusiastically they are following me!" he exclaimed, as he turned his head to take a fleeting glance behind him.

Sprinting still harder, however, he managed to keep a block or two in advance of his maddened followers.

Poetic Justice.

"What are you going to do with that fashionable apartment house you have bought?" they asked him.

"I'm going to turn it into a children's school," said the philanthropic millionaire, almost savagely.

Tragedy.

Naggus (literary editor)—"I've forgotten how that society novel of yours ended."

Borus (struggling author)—"I wish I could forget it. It ended with most of the copies still unsold."

Trifling Delay.

Irritated Wife—"Jared, you have kept the dinner waiting ten minutes beyond the usual time."

Apologetic Husband—"I couldn't help it, Jane. On my way home I had to stop and make an official inspection of an excursion steamer."

Large Financial Transaction.

LETTER OF MARQUISE DE FONTENOY

Copyright: 1904: By the Marquise de Fontenoy.

GEN. HORACE PORTER, although the first citizen of the United States to receive the grand cross of the French Legion of Honor, is by no means the first American envoy to have a foreign decoration conferred upon him. For Charlemagne Tower, the United States ambassador to the court of Berlin, has received the second of the five grades of this French national order—namely: that of grand officer, besides which he received the grand cordon of the Russian order of St. Anu from the czar when he presented his letters of recall to him at Lividia on being transferred from the post of ambassador at St. Petersburg to Berlin. Henry Vignaud, the first secretary of the United States embassy at Paris, is a commander of the order of the Legion of Honor.

The late Gen. Meredith Read, while United States envoy to the court of Athens, received from the king of Greece the grand cordon of the Order of the Savior by way of recognition of the help which he had accorded to him in winning an immense fortune by speculation in American grain during the Turko-Russian war of 1877. Perry Belmont, when minister to Spain, received the cross of a commander of the Legion of Honor from the French government, while Judge George Batcheller during the time that he was United States envoy in Portugal was wont to appear at court functions at Lisbon with the stars of the Turkish orders of the Osmanieh and of the Mejidieh, which had been conferred upon him by the late khedive while fulfilling the duties of judge of the international court in Egypt.

These are only a few of the more notable instances of United States citizens holding diplomatic positions abroad who have received orders of knighthood from the foreign governments without any objections being offered either by the state department or by congress to their acceptance or to their being worn.

If Gen. Porter were a French citizen instead of a foreigner the possession of the grand cross of the Legion of Honor would have carried with it a pension for life of $750 a year. But foreign knights, no matter what their grade, receive no pecuniary indemnity. However, as a knight grand cross of the Legion of Honor, the general will even after he retires from the post of ambassador at Paris be exempt from the jurisdiction of the ordinary tribunals in France, the only court competent to deal with any offense with which he might be charged being the Supreme court. In all official and social functions in France he will be entitled to precede everybody who does not happen to be a grand cross of the order, and should he die there he would have a right to the most imposing military honors, the presence of troops being "de rigueur" at his funeral. A grand officer of the order is entitled to a brigade, a commander of the order to a battalion, an officer of the order to a company of infantry, and a chevalier, or knight of the order, to half a company under the command of a lieutenant. Of course this does not afford any satisfaction to the dead man, but these military honors serve to assuage the grief of his relatives and friends.

There are but three women who have the grand cordon of the Legion of Honor—namely: the queen of Holland, her mother, Queen Emma, and Queen Christina of Spain. The German emperor, the king of Würtemberg, and the present king of Saxony are the only European sovereigns who have not been decorated with the grand cross of the Legion of Honor. Curiously enough, there is one of the Orleans princes, however, who possesses this distinction—namely: Prince Gaston of Bourbon. Comte d'Eu, who received the decoration when his father-in-law, the late Dom Pedro, was still emperor of Brazil and his wife was heir apparent to the throne.

These details concerning the Legion of Honor may be of interest, as quite a large number of crosses are likely to be given away this year in this country by the French government in connection with the St. Louis exhibition.

England is proud of being the only country with a parliamentary form of government that does not accord any remuneration to the members of either of the two houses of the national legislature, and only the other day the house of commons rejected by a large majority a bill submitted to it providing for the payment of its members. But in view of the discovery recently brought to light upon the most indubitable testimony to the effect that the late Benjamin Disraeli, at the time when he first received the appointment of chancellor of the exchequer, was not merely some $300,000 in debt but was forced a few days after receiving the seals of office to apply to the well known London usurer Padwick for a large loan, it is calculated to give rise to discussion as to whether, after all, it would not be well to give stipends to legislators in order to preserve them from becoming the prey of the money lenders.

The idea of the principal financial officer of the British empire, the legislator who has in his hands and in his control all the tangled reins of imperial and national finance, being in the power of the most infamous professional money lender in London is, to say the least, unpleasant—at any rate for Britain.

Padwick was popularly known as the "Spider," and contributed to the ruin of a large number of well known men, including the last marquis of Hastings, the late duke of Newcastle, and many others. He likewise reduced the fortunes of the late duke of Hamilton and Brandon to their lowest ebb. But in this red headed peer who in his younger days was the most insanely extravagant scion of the British aristocracy he found his match. For the duke, when he got older, was shrewd enough to discover some legal flaw in the documents by means of which Padwick had obtained control of his revenues and estates, and forced him to refund every penny that he had extorted from the ducal estates by way of interest or repayment of loans, besides securing heavy damages. Indeed, Padwick died a completely broken and ruined man—the only instance on record, I believe, of a famous usurer being ruined by one of his former victims.

Padwick's associate was the late Sir Claude Scott, husband of Lena Lady Scott and father of the now doubly divorced countess of Russell. Indeed, it was the discreditable rôle played by Sir Claude as a lieutenant and tout for Padwick that handicapped so severely his widow and his daughters in the earlier stages of their social career.

I may add that the late duke of Hamilton, whose only child, Lady Mary Douglas Hamilton, has made her début this year, is far from having denuded the dukedom of all its property, with the exception of $50,000 a year, in order to benefit his daughter at the expense of the distant cousins who inherited his honors. While he made splendid provision for his daughter, who is one of the richest heiresses in the united kingdom, he left the bulk of the ducal estate in trust, with the stipulation that Hamilton palace should be maintained by the trustees for his successor and that the latter should receive a free and untrammeled allowance of $50,000 a year in addition thereto until all the incumbrances on the estates had been liquidated, when the possession of the property, which is large, will pass into his hands.

From this it will be seen that the present duke of Hamilton, who now has a son and heir, will in a few years' time be one of the wealthiest, instead of the poorest, of the dukes of the united kingdom.

How Maud Got Square.

(From the San Francisco Call.)

Maud Muller, on a summer's morn,
Heard the toot of an auto horn.

She saw the judge go whirling past,
"Gee!" said Maud, "he's going fast."

And then she thought of the sighs and tears
The judge had caused her all these years.

"He's breaking the law at that speed," quoth she,
"Ha! ha! ha! ha! here's revenge for me!"

So she set her teeth, and ne'er e'en flinched,
While she took his number and had him pinched.

Making It Easier.

"O, Gertrude, I cannot stand it to have you say the cruel words."

"Well, George, I'll telephone to you after you go home."—Cincinnati Commercial Tribune.

"MR. WEATHER MAN, YOU DONE NOBLE."

Old Temples in Japan.

Buildings Many Centuries Old at Uji Contain Historic Relics of Priceless Value.

[BY ELIZA R. SCIDMORE.]

UJI, May 8.—The temple proper at Uji, the Kondo, has an image of Takushi Nyorai, the Healing Buddha, whom the faithful pray to heal, in the next life, man's miserable present existence, that the next incarnation may be a step higher and happier. The floor is of dark wood, polished by centuries of rubbing until it shines like lacquer, and in the cool, sunless interior it feels like ice or iron as one steps on it stocking footed.

In the Founder's hall the images of Kobo Daishi and of Rigen Daishi, the sainted first abbot of the temple, are enshrined on the altar. The treasures of the Daigo are famous, and slowly they show one the golden tokkos, or small pronged maces, which Kobo Daishi used in celebrating temple services, and the plans he drew for his mountain top monastery at Koya, where this "Great Teacher Spreading Abroad the Law" now sleeps.

***

A treasure of historic interest to Japanese scholars is the journals of the abbots of the temple for the last 300 years. These precious manuscripts are not opened to the vulgar, but they will show one a book of paintings by Matahei, that first artist of the popular school, who broke from the classic and conventional schools, and painted the life of the common people, city street scenes, country road life, festival crowds, and humble folk at work. Like all his work, these paintings at Daigo are not signed, the fact that has enveloped his personality in so much of mystery, and even made some oriental art critics declare that Matahei, the individual, never lived—that there never was such a one—an opinion violently combated by certain Boston and New York collectors who have spent their thousands upon paintings that bear such stamp of genius that one cares not to whom they attribute them. Matahei, by any other name, surpassed his contemporaries, and led a movement that resulted in some of the most feeling and appealing works of Japanese art.

***

Before reaching Uji one passes the long white walls hiding the black roofed dwellings of the priests who attend the Mampukiji, or Obakusan, a famous temple of the Zen sect. Obaku is not 300 years old as yet, but its fame is great, and it always enjoyed the highest esteem because of the great learning and high scholarship of its priests during all its existence. It was founded by a Chinese priest from Foochow, who first came over and preached at Nagasaki, whence the fame and sensation of himself and his teachings spread throughout Japan. He was summoned north by the shogun, Iyetsuna, to explain his doctrines, and then the emperor, Gomizuno, who had abdicated and absorbed himself in the practices of the Zen sect of Buddhism, interested himself in this sainted Ingenosho. Shogun and emperor made gifts to him, and this temple was built, with its many gateways and pavilions, and long, connecting corridors and cloisters, in Chinese style.

Ingen and his early scholarly successors being Chinese retained the dress of Chinese priests. The garments do not greatly differ from those worn by other Buddhists, but the Chinese cap and shoes are distinctive marks of the Obaku priests. The founder lived and preached here until his eightieth year, when he closed his eyes to the fifteen beautiful views in the little landscape garden he had designed by the abbot's residence.

***

The third abbot was an indefatigable book collector, and assembled a complete collection of all the manuscript books on Buddhism known in Japan, had the wooden plates engraved, and printed copies made. This fact gave Obakusan distinct fame. All the learned priests in Japan have at some time made pilgrimage to this stone floored Chinese temple, where Shaka in golden glory, with Kasyapa and Ananda attendant, occupy the central altar, and, with the disciples ranged on either side wall, furnish a company of statues of unusual merit.

This great collection of wooden text blocks was stored in a thick walled, fireproof building, high on the hill behind the other structures, until a few years ago, when the government demanded lease of it for a powder magazine to store the extra supplies from the Uji powder mill, just below the temple grounds.

The old printing blocks are now piled ceiling high on labeled racks in the service hall, and the 60,000 carved boards, black with ink and age, are carefully watched in their tinder wooden storehouse.

The Rev. Ekai Kawaguchi, the Japanese priest who went to Tibet and successfully maintained his disguise for fifteen months of study in the Sera university in Lhassa, spent several years at Obakusan, and the fifty priests in attendance and every retainer about the place speak proudly and admiringly of him. His studies of Chinese and Tibetan books here probably inspired him to his great undertaking of seeking for more Buddhist texts and studying the Tibetan ritual on the spot; and, despite his hasty flight from Lhassa, he brought back a great treasure of Buddhist scriptures, including several texts unknown in Japan.

The Rev. Kawaguchi is most anxious to return to Tibet, now that it will soon be possible to study and work openly in Lhassa. A letter from the Chinese government commissioner who is going in with the Younghusband expedition to join the Amban at Lhassa, lately written to his friends in Japan concerning that interesting undertaking, and concerning the many foreigners who have traveled in Tibet and attempted to reach Lhassa, gives the accounts of explorers related by Tibetan officials, and some sensational reputations are laid low by his revelations.

This entry of the English expedition into Tibet will be a blow to many explorers whose reputations have rested on their own narratives. Fortunately, the Japanese priest is known of by every Tibetan merchant and official so far encountered by the English expedition, and messages have been sent through to the Rev. Kawaguchi from the friends in Lhassa who sheltered and assisted him and were imprisoned on that account. They have all been freed as the result of his efforts in interesting Nepalese officials in their behalf.

Uji town, on the banks of the Uji river, just below where it issues from its picturesque gorge, has one endless street, like most Japanese country towns, but one sees little of it in the progress between the bridge, the Phœnix temple, the tea shops, and the railway station. The Biodo-in, or Phœnix temple, was chosen to be duplicated at the world's fair at Chicago in 1893, and the little buildings in Jackson park repeated the design of this temple of the eleventh century. The Biodo-in is now in the hands of restorers, covered with scaffolding and matting. Its bronze phœnix is on the ground, the central coffer of its pearl inlaid ceiling is against one wall, and the altar is boxed up while the roof is being renewed.

One of the famous wistaria vines of Japan, more photographed than any other in the empire, spreads over a trellis more than twenty feet square in the garden of the Biodo-in, and its three feet long tassels are now dropping their last purple petals.

A rough bowlder cut with praises of Uji tea is a most striking monument, as it stands high in air by the river bank and is so characteristically Japanese. Where have we anything comparable to that in praise of American wheat, corn, or tobacco? And what does it look like, if such a tribute has been paid to any one of our staple products? A monument in praise of pork, for instance!

"Will you be so good as to tell me what is the difference between a democrat and a republican in this country?" asked Mr. Robert Hall of Manchester, England. "I confess," said Mr. Hall, "that I have been trying to find out the distinction ever since I landed in America, but so far have not been able to get any light on the matter. One republican of prominence told me that the democrats were free traders, but this was denied by every democrat I subsequently interrogated.

"Later a democrat told me that the republicans were in favor of putting the negroes on an equality with the whites, but as to this I got such universal contradiction that I think my informant must have been mistaken. Probably the republican who told me that the democrats were in favor of breaking up the union and starting up another southern confederacy was trying to impose on my credulity, and at the same time endeavoring to ascertain if an Englishman could catch on to a joke.

"Anyway, I am no wiser now than when I first set out to investigate, and I shall go home in the same ignorant condition."

RUSSIAN ARMIES NEARLY TRAPPED.

Kouropatkin Forced to Give Battle with Enemy in Front and on His Flank.

REPORTS SENT TO CZAR.

Official News Indicates Steady Advance to the Attack on Liaoyang.

[BY CABLE TO THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.]
LONDON, June 23.—The Russian army, it is feared by military experts, has become hopelessly entangled in the meshes of Japanese strategy.

Kouropatkin has taken the field in person to lead the main part of his force against the enemy advancing upon Liaoyang from the south.

On his front Kouropatkin is facing twelve divisions of Japanese troops—144,000 men. On his left another army, strength unknown, has occupied Kuandiansian, with at least eighteen guns. This point is north of east of Liaoyang.

Russians Forced to Fight.

Kouropatkin is now being forced to fight on his front with nearly all of his army. He is not ready to fight, and won't be until August or September. The Japanese are compelling him to fight, unprepared as he is, against a superior force on his front and another force on his flank.

Japs Repulse an Attack.

A dispatch from British correspondents with Gen. Kuroki's headquarters record a Russian attack on the Japanese post at Aiyungmen on Wednesday. The Russian force consisted of two regiments of cavalry, a regiment of infantry, and a battery of artillery. They were repulsed and retired to Shintailing, it is supposed, with considerable loss. The Japanese lost a major killed and nine men wounded.

Shintailing is presumed here to be identified with Santalling, which is nearly midway between Haicheng and Kaiping.

The correspondents add that considerable forces of Russians occupy the towns and main roads on Gen. Kuroki's front, but say there has been no fighting of consequence during the last few days. Gen. Mistchenko commands the Russians in the neighborhood of Siuyen. The heavy rains have stopped and the country is drying quickly.

Real War to Begin Now.

The announcement at Tokio that Field Marshal Oyama has been appointed to the supreme command of all the Japanese armies, with Lieut. Gen. Kodama as his chief of staff, indicates that the months of preparation are ended and that the real campaign is about to begin.

JAPS ADVANCE IN FORCE.

[BY CABLE TO THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.]
ST. PETERSBURG, June 23.—Gen. Kouropatkin has notified the emperor that the Japanese army is advancing from Kaichau in force and that the enemy has occupied and fortified Kuandiansian, east of Liaoyang.

The Japanese have occupied Sapenhai, twenty-five miles northeast of Saimatze, and have strongly intrenched their position. They hold Senuchen, on the road to Kaichau, with more than a division of infantry, a brigade of cavalry, and thirty-two guns.

Drawing Close to Kaiping.

The Japanese having occupied Siouyaocheng are within twenty-five miles of Kaiping. Persistent reports are in circulation of fighting at Haicheng, whither Gen. Kouropatkin has sent reinforcements.

Dispatches from Liaoyang describe the arrival of a large number of wounded. They say that fighting at the outposts has been going on briskly during the last week. Gens. Nodsu, Oku, and Kuroki have joined hands and intend to provoke a decisive battle. Kouropatkin is stated to deliver a curious address to his troops, remarking: "It is necessary for us to have done with the Japanese at once. Otherwise you will not get home."

Deceived by Jap Strength.

Stackelberg's force at Wafangow was larger than hitherto had been imagined. It comprised 40,000 men. It is asserted that the Russians hoped to cause the enemy to abandon the siege of Port Arthur, but the Japanese upset all their calculations by landing 15,000 more men and superior artillery. The Japanese thereupon won a great battle. The casualties have not yet been disclosed, but the losses were such as to make the battle the most sanguinary of the campaign.

Sends News to the Czar.

Gen. Kouropatkin's official dispatch to the czar, with dispatches from Gen. Sakharoff, confirm the foregoing. Kouropatkin's message, dated June 23, says:

"A Japanese army from Kaichau is gradually advancing northward.

"Gen. Kuroki's advance from Siuyen has been suspended, evidently to effect an alignment of the two armies.

"The strength of the enemy's vanguard is approximately a division and several squadrons of cavalry, and the Siuyen force of nine squadrons, supported by a strong column of infantry toward the south.

"The enemy's position on June 19 and June 21 extended within seven miles southward to Semuchen along a line from the sea to the mountainous and difficult district east of the railway.

Japs Hold Mountain Passes.

"The enemy's advance lines are being strongly held by cavalry and a screen of infantry. The passes and defiles in the mountains east of the railway are also vigilantly guarded.

"A movement of strong Japanese mounted patrols with infantry supports was noted on June 20 from 5 in the afternoon onwards. We had no losses in the firing which ensued, while the Japanese had several killed and wounded.

"An increase in the Japanese forces has been noticed south of Vanfiapudze and near the villages of Manzeapudze, Takziapudze, and Khakahei. Reinforcements are also reaching the Japanese at the furthest point of the road between Siuyen and Tanchi via Paiahanlou and Siakhotan.

Erecting Field Defense.

"The Japanese are erecting field fortifications on the road from Siuyen to Kaichau.

"The enemy's outposts have occupied the pass between Pangrabsi and Paichang, on the northern road, nine and a half miles east of Siakhotan and the Chapan pass, seven and a half miles south of Siakhotan.

"On June 19 two Cossacks were wounded by Chinese ruffians.

"The Japanese have fortified Kuandiansian, mounting eighteen guns, with a strong screen.

"The enemy has occupied the village of Sapenhai, twenty-five miles northeast of Saimatsze, and is firmly intrenched."

Tells of Jap Advance.

The general staff has received the following dispatch from Lieut. Gen. Sakharoff under date of June 22:

"At 8 o'clock on the morning of June 21 the Japanese vanguard resumed its advance against our outposts four miles south of Senuchen. The outposts retired slowly towards Senuchen and farther on in the direction of Kaichau.

"At noon a Japanese column consisting of nine squadrons of cavalry, a battery of artillery, and a considerable number of infantry was observed advancing in the direction of Senuchen. Other strong columns of the enemy appeared and the Japanese occupied Senuchen towards evening with over a division of infantry, a brigade of cavalry, and thirty-two guns.

Japs Hold Two Passes.

"According to information received from our scouts and the inhabitants, the enemy over a division strong is concentrated southwards of Chapan pass near Changtaitien and Longliatien.

"The Japanese did not advance beyond Chapan pass in the direction of Tanchi and the enemy on the morning of the 22d had not occupied the pass between Paitsiapei and Panchingine on the Siuyenliahotang road.

Russians Nearly Surprised.

"Our scouts report that a large detachment of all arms advanced from Siuyen to Khranza on the morning of June 22. A battalion of the enemy taking advantage of a thick fog tried to surprise our vanguard near Vandiapudze, on the road from Siuyen to Haicheng.

"The movement was discovered in time and the Japanese received volleys from five companies of Russians. The enemy retired with some losses towards Siuyen. One Russian sharpshooter was wounded.

"The Japanese occupied Vafangtien, on the main road to Liaoyang, on the evening of June 19 with a battalion of infantry and a squadron of cavalry. A detachment of the same strength occupied Chandinju, in the valley of the Tsuo river, seven miles north of Fengwangcheng."

Russian Plan Fails.

The occupation of Siungyoshan by a Japanese detachment indicates that the connection between the enemy's armies is practically assured. Siungyoshan is half way between Gen. Oku's and Gen. Kuroki's positions, at Senuchen and Siuyen, respectively.

The information of the war office accounts for the position of twelve Japanese divisions. The whereabouts of two others is unknown. These are the sixth and seventh, which probably were the last to arrive, as they come from Hakodate. One or both may have just landed, furnishing a link between the armies of Kuroki and Oku.

Russia Will Send Icebreaker.

It is stated that the ice breaker Yermak, designed by the late Vice Admiral Makaroff, is preparing to start for the far east.

Grand Duke Cyril, cousin of the emperor, and Capt. Jakovieff, who commanded the battleship Petropavlovsk, which was sunk off Port Arthur, have been presented with gold swords in recognition of their bravery and services at Port Arthur.

Keeping Watch on India.

The Russ, commenting on Lord Kitchener's scheme for army reorganization in India, says that it is primarily directed to make the army effective in northern India and that Russia must not lose sight of what is happening on the far side of the Hindu Kush.

Ready to Attack Kaichou.

LIAOYANG, June 22.—[Delayed.]—According to reports received at the Russian headquarters, the Japanese intend to attack either Kaichou or Tatchekiao from two sides. Their armies continue to advance from the south and west. Constant skirmishing is in progress between the enemy and the Cossacks.

Gen. Kuroki's army has appeared on the road leading westward from Siuyen and, in the neighboring valleys. The success of the Japanese plan would mean that Corea will lose its value as a base, Newchang then being available for this purpose.

Another Cossack detachment has fallen into an ambush of Japanese infantry, losing a number of men wounded.

Changes in Japanese Staff.

[BY CABLE TO THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.]
TOKIO, June 23.—It is believed the places made vacant on the headquarters staff by the appointment of Field Marshal Oyama as commander in chief of the forces in Manchuria, and his selection of Gen. Kodama as his chief of staff, will be filled temporarily. This shows that the changes are not connected with recent Japanese losses, as first supposed, but that they are an indication of larger field operations.

The report of the occupation of Liaoyang by the Japanese is not credited here. It is thought the report originated from some cavalry raid.

Port Arthur is being heavily fortified on the land side. The newspapers believe a big battle has occurred at Tuchintsz, fourteen miles from Port Arthur.

It is thought here the Russian position can be turned from Shplington at the end of June and that Port Arthur will not be attacked before the middle of July. It is reported the Russian cruiser Novik is harassing the Japanese on Pingtou promontory.

CANADIAN MINISTRY ATTACKED.

Mr. Borden Moves Vote of Censure for Minister of Agriculture Because of Militia Affairs.

Ottawa, Ont., June 23.—In the house of commons today Mr. Borden, leader of the opposition, attacked the government for the infusion of politics into military affairs. He moved that the minister for agriculture, the Hon. Sydney Fisher, should receive the censure of the house. The motion concluded:

"The house regrets that this unwarrantable interference has been approved by the government and that it has not only unduly delayed the organization of the regiments but has culminated in depriving the militia of Canada of an experienced and distinguished commanding officer (Lord Dundonald)."

Mr. Fisher replied that his sole object of interfering was to keep politics out of the militia.

In the debate which followed Sir Frederick Borden, minister of militia, spoke in defense of Mr. Fisher and severely criticised Lord Dundonald.

The debate was adjourned until tomorrow.

HAYTIANS STONE ENVOYS.

GERMAN AND FRENCH MINISTERS INSULTED IN PORT AU PRINCE.

Palace Guards Attack Them and Their Wives as They Drive Through the Streets—French Government Preparing to Take Vigorous Action in Case and Demand Redress—Recent Financial Complications Cause of Ill-Feeling Toward Foreigners.

PARIS, June 23.—The foreign office has received a dispatch from M. Deprez, the French minister at Port Au Prince, Hayti, saying that while he and the German minister were driving past the palace yesterday they were attacked and stoned by soldiers forming the palace guard.

M. Deprez was struck on the leg by a stone and was slightly injured. The ministers' wives, who were in another carriage following, were also pelted. The wife of the French minister is an American.

Bitter Feeling Against Foreigners.

The affair was the outcome of the feeling among the population and the government against foreigners, the natives desiring to hold them responsible for the wretched financial situation of Hayti.

The proceedings against the French and German officials of the national bank charged with participation in the issue of $200,000 in fraudulent securities early in 1903 have not been ended. Some of the officials are still in prison and others have sought safety in flight. Persons prominently connected with the national bank have been protesting against the long detention in prison of the officials.

France Will Demand Redress.

As Foreign Minister Delcasse has only just received the dispatch he has not yet determined what steps shall be taken, but the officials consider it certain that France will make an energetic demand for redress.

One French warship is near the scene and another is at the French naval headquarters in the West Indies. It is expected that Germany will make a similar demand for redress.

More than a month ago the American state department was forewarned of this approaching trouble by its agents in Hayti, and has been watching the republic closely, keeping a naval force near at hand. The Detroit will return to San Domingo, as it is proposed to keep three vessels in close proximity to Hayti and San Domingo.

Germany Has Not Yet Acted.

BERLIN, June 24, 3 a. m.—Persons close to the foreign office have received no intimation as to what steps Germany proposes to take regarding the attack on the German minister, who, with the French minister, was stoned by the palace guards while passing the palace at Port Au Prince, Hayti, Wednesday last.

RANSOM ON WAY TO RAISULI.

Expedition Which Is Expected to Secure Release of Perdicaris Has Left Tangier.

[Copyright: 1904: By the New York Herald.]
LONDON, June 23.—A special dispatch to the Daily Telegraph from Tangier says: "At dawn today the ransom party, headed by Prince Achmed, shereef of Mazan, left Tangier for the headquarters of Raisuli. The shereef and his attendants led the way with an armed guard on horseback, an escort of twenty of the sultan's soldiers carrying mausers followed, and the prisoners, forty-three in number, at perfect liberty and unshackeled, walked in a throng. Then came a number of pack mules laden with carpets, tents, and stores. Another armed escort joined the column on the road to Fez.

"It is said no more American marines will be landed.

"The sultan is credited with the intention of punishing Raisuli himself without waiting to be asked to do so by the powers."

HARMSWORTH A BARONET.

BRITISH EDITOR HONORED ON KING'S BIRTHDAY.

Knighthood Is Conferred Upon Prof. James Dewar, the Scientist, and Dr. Edward Elgar, the British Composer—Widow of Phil May, the Artist, Granted Pension of $375 a Year—No New Peers Are Created, but Many Persons Are Remembered.

[Copyright: 1904: By the New York Herald.]
LONDON, June 23.—Among the most notable of the king's birthday honors announced in the Gazette is the conferring of a baronetcy on Alfred C. Harmsworth, editor and principal proprietor of the Daily Mail and other newspapers. Prof. James Dewar, the scientist, was knighted and the same honor was bestowed upon Dr. Edward Elgar, the foremost living English composer. Charles Booth, the social reformer and author of "Life and Labor of the Poor in London," is made a privy councilor.

No New Peers Created.

No new peers were created, but three privy councilors, seven baronets, twenty-six knights, and a large number of appointments and promotions were made and various orders bestowed.

The list of annual pensioners contains the name of Mrs. Phil May, widow of the artist, who will receive $375 in consideration of "the services to art of her late husband and her straitened circumstances."

Honors Conferred in Canada.

Ottawa, Ont., June 23.—The following official notice was given out from the government house tonight:

"To be knight commander of most distinguished order of St. Michael and St. George, the Hon. George Alexander Drummond, senator, Montreal.

"To be knight bachelor, Hugh Montagu Allan of Allan line, Montreal.

"To be companions of the imperial service order: A. Gobiel, deputy minister public works; John Roberts Wallace, assistant receiver general, department of finance; A. A. Boucher, assistant master in chancery, the senate; David Pottinger, general manager Intercolonial railway; Gustave Grenier, clerk of the executive council, Quebec."

LOOMIS CLEWS CONFLICT.

STEAMSHIP COMPANY FEARS AMERICAN IS DROWNED.

Information Received at Scotland Yard, However, Leads to Belief That the Envoy Went Ashore at Plymouth and Is Safe—One Passenger Who Was on Ship Insists He Saw Him Land with Party—Search for Him Will Not Be Abandoned.

[BY CABLE TO THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.]
[Copyright: 1904: By the New York Herald.]
BREMEN, June 23.—Investigation by officials of the North German Lloyd Steamship company into the whereabouts of Kent Loomis have been without result. They think he must have fallen overboard and drowned.

The efforts of the authorities of London, Paris, and Washington to ascertain what has become of Mr. Loomis have not been relaxed, and there is still one hope that he is safe.

Some mystery is said to be connected with one American who landed from the liner at Plymouth and who subsequently left for London, and the police are endeavoring to trace him. No reason, however, can be suggested to account for Loomis leaving the ship when so near the end of his journey.

Insists He Saw Loomis Land.

[BY CABLE TO THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.]
PARIS, June 23.—Mr. Flamm of San Francisco, who was a passenger on the steamer Kaiser Wilhelm II. from which Kent Loomis mysteriously disappeared just before the steamer arrived at Plymouth Monday morning, reiterated in an interview here today his previous statement, that he saw Loomis going abroad a tender at Plymouth, and it therefore is impossible he could have either fallen or jumped overboard. Flamm declared he stood by the rail and saw Loomis descending the gangway with a crowd of other passengers. He added that Loomis' demonstrative gayety at the dinner table at sea caused the remark.

Loomis Was Bearer of Treaty.

Washington, D. C., June 23.—[Special.]—Kent J. Loomis, it is stated at the department today, was the bearer of a treaty which the United States is sending back to Abyssinia. This was the only important paper he had and it reached Paris safely, having gone on with his baggage.

DOUBT BROKERS; CUT OUT PHONES.

Members of Stock Exchange Committee Take Steps to Stop "Grapevine" Messages.

BIG MAN HUNT STARTED.

Sheriff's Posses Are Out Along the Hudson Seeking Band of Italian Robbers.

NEW YORK BUREAU CHICAGO TRIBUNE } New York, June 23.

Eleven stock exchange firms discovered upon trying to get their customary telephone connections with the floor just before the opening of business today that since the day's end on Wednesday they had been ruthlessly and without warning "cut out." Eleven queries went straightway to the telephone company's manager for the Broad street district and eleven affable replies stated that the company had been ordered to disconnect the wires and did not know anything about the matter.

Stock Brokers Find Telephones Are "Cut Out."

Within half an hour thereafter there were a number of interesting developments. Members of the firms of J. A. Blair & Son, S. L. Blood & Co., Mendham Bros., Cohen, Green & Co., C. Schumacher Jr., Raborg & Manice, Yates, Ritchie & Pope, Roberts, Cahn & Co., J. F. Pierson Jr. & Co., and Alley, Conger & Co., with Philip London of 10 Wall street, made for the offices of the exchange and wanted explanations. These were not forthcoming, and so far as can be learned are yet to be made.

From various sources, however, it is learned that the committee on arrangements in charge of which the telephone system of the exchange is placed, had had its suspicions aroused that there were somewhere between eleven and twenty wires running out of the stock exchange booths with "grape vine" connections leading to the Consolidated exchange, with which members are forbidden to trade.

Then under the cover of darkness and with all due secrecy the committee with emissaries from the telephone company sought out the booths of several suspected brokers, unscrewed the receivers from their phones, and inserted wires leading to as many phones in the committee's lair. On these telephones the committee listened daily as orders went back and forth between the "big" and "little" boards.

The prevailing opinion was that three or four firms would be suspended and the rest would get their telephones back when it was considered they had sufficiently learned their lesson.

A man hunt of unusual proportions is in progress up the Hudson near the works of the Hudson River Bluestone company. A small band of Italian robbers is being sought by sheriffs' posses, numbering over 200 men in all. The robbers in the afternoon held up O. C. Longyear, paymaster of the Bluestone company, and robbed him of $2,766 and his horse and wagon. A guard following in another wagon was disarmed and his horse and wagon taken also.

Big Posses Start Man Hunt Up the Hudson.

Bloodhounds from the Eastern New York reformatory, at Napanoch, were used tonight to trail two of the bandits, who were seen at Old Hurley, three miles from the scene of the robbery, and who resisted attempts of armed farmers to restrain them. Later shots were exchanged between the fugitives and a sheriff's posse. Hundreds of deputies are guarding the highways and taking part in the man hunt tonight.

Benjamin Rich walked along Leonard street, Williamsburg, for a block today declaring he never had had so much fun as when he teased that "waffle man." Pedestrians turned to gaze after him as he passed, his sides shaking with merriment. Their wonder changed to alarm when at Humboldt and Varet streets, in the midst of a paroxysm of laughter, Rich pitched forward on his face.

Laughs Himself to Death Teasing "Waffle Man."

When an ambulance surgeon saw him he pronounced the man dead, stricken by apoplexy brought on by merriment.

The "waffle man" is Nathan Block, a well known character of the neighborhood, and between the two there has been constant trouble. Rich knew how to stir the aged peddler's wrath with a few words, and when the "waffle man's" rage had reached its height he would always leave, chuckling over his fun.

Persons who have been prophesying the payment of interest in the immediate future on Wabash debenture B will be disappointed after the meeting of Wabash directors today, when it will be announced that not only no interest has been declared on the B's but the interest on debenture A bonds has been passed for the first time since 1893.

Wabash Will Pass Interest on Two Bond Issues.

The failure of the Wabash directors to declare interest on debenture A's will surprise well informed railroad circles. The necessity for doing so was not realized by the majority of Wabash directors themselves until they were informed this morning that the Wabash surplus would not justify the declaration of the regular interest. It then was deemed advisable to pass the interest altogether. Practically all debenture A bonds are held by members of the Gould family or Russell Sage.

When the examination of Daniel J. Sully of the suspended firm of D. J. Sully & Co. in bankruptcy proceedings was continued today it was brought out that he gave a mortgage of $82,000 on the house at No. 6 East Sixty-second street, the property which he refuses to turn over to the receivers on the ground that it belongs to his wife. He said in a previous examination that he gave it to her as a Christmas present.

D. J. Sully Had Mortgage on Wife's House.

It was also learned that he paid the insurance premiums, but that Mrs. Sully controlled the household expenses. An automobile he bought in London for $5,500 he said he had given to his daughters.

A bill of $6,800 for furs was for his wife and daughters. The hearing was adjourned to July 11.

The strike of the United Garment Workers growing out of the "open shop" policy of the National Association of Clothing Manufacturers has seriously interfered with the work of the manufacturers and contractors in this city. According to the strike committee, 10,000 more tailors went on strike today.

More Tailors Strike Due to Open Shop Issue.

The cutters, who struck first, held continuous meetings during the day and renewed their pledges to stand out with the other workers in the trade. The employers admit tonight that their shops are crippled and that the nonunion men, with the union men who have remained at their benches, are unable to cope with the situation.

Suffering with probably mortal injuries received in a fall down an airshaft thirty feet deep, Richard Johnson, night watchman at the office of the Kings County Trust company in Brooklyn, climbed the thirty foot perpendicular ladder from the bottom of the pit and dragging himself the length of the building sent in a burglar alarm call for assistance. When help came he was unconscious beneath the teller's cage with a revolver in one hand and a policeman's whistle in the other. His right leg is broken and he is suffering from internal injuries.

COLLEGE BACHELOR IS HIT

HEAD OF CORNELL SCORES THOSE WHO ELECT CLUB LIFE.

Declares It Is Not Worth While to Maintain Universities for "Production of Froth Like That"—Students Applaud Sentiment of Commencement Address, While Members of Faculty Look Uncomfortable—Big Class Is Graduated at Michigan.

Ithaca, N. Y., June 23.—[Special.]—President Schurman in his address to Cornell graduates today created a sensation by denouncing the college man who as a matter of choice lives the life of a bachelor.

"I have no patience," said President Schurman, "with the college graduates who deliberately elect bachelordom, whose social circle is the club, and whose religion is a refined and fastidious epicureanism. It would not be worth while maintaining colleges and universities for the production of froth like that. Certainly Ezra Cornell contemplated a worthier product when he founded this great democratic university, dedicated both to practical and liberal education."

Seated upon the platform were several old bachelor members of the Cornell faculty who were graduates of the university in its earlier years. Prominent among them was Dean Earnest W. Huffcut of the college of law, who received the invective of his chief with a smile, while the graduates applauded.

Five hundred and twenty-seven degrees were conferred as follows: Arts, 259; law, 49; agriculture, 14; veterinary, 16; forestry, 5; architecture, 4; civil engineering, 37; mechanical engineering, 140.

Commencement at Ann Arbor.

Ann Arbor, Mich., June 23.—[Special.]—A graduating class of 784 received diplomas at the University of Michigan commencement exercises today. The commencement address was by Prof. Calvin Thomas, professor of German in Columbia university. His subject was "Culture and Service." He said: "Culture, fullness of life for its own sake, the progressive realization of the larger self, is per se the best social service that can possibly be rendered. Nothing in the world can be more useful to society than men and women who are simply living out their lives on a higher plane of aspiration and endeavor. The quiet pursuit of one's vocation, so it be not pursued in a spirit of narrow selfishness, is a social service of the most admirable kind. It is not well to idealize the strenuous life or a life of 'hustling' which must spell failure unless it lead to the external rewards commonly called success."

Degrees Are Conferred.

Honorary degrees were conferred as follows:

A. M.—James Munson, superintendent of the Northern Michigan asylum; Charles Freer of Detroit; J. F. Millspaugh, principal of the Normal school at Los Angeles; the Rt. Rev. G. Demott Williams, Episcopal bishop of the Marquette diocese.

LL. D.—M. H. Gerrish, professor in Bowdoin Medical college; Lawrence Maxwell Jr. of Cincinnati, O., formerly solicitor general of the United States; Charles M. Gayley, professor in the University of California; Prof. Calvin Thomas, professor of German in Columbia university.

As the students received their degrees those who are popular were cheered. The greatest demonstration went to Heston, the football half back, who graduated from the law department.

Bishop Fallows Speaks.

Appleton, Wis., June 23.—[Special.]—Bishop Samuel Fallows of Chicago this morning delivered the annual commencement address before the students of Lawrence university, taking as his subject "Talent for Growth." Later a banquet was held, one of the speakers being Senator Robert J. Gamble of Dakota. The commencement closed tonight with a reception to students and visitors by President and Mrs. Plantz.

Fourteen Graduates at Wheaton.

Wheaton, Ill., June 23.—[Special.]—At the forty-fifth annual commencement exercises of Wheaton college fourteen were graduated. The salutatory was delivered by Miss Brown of St. Louis and the valedictory be Mr. Swink. After the orations by the graduates R. J. Bennett delivered an address. The commencement exercises will close with the president's reception and a concert.

DETECTIVE SHOOTS TO KILL WHEN HIS PRISONER RUNS.

Harry Kiefer, Metropole Bell Boy, Suspected of Theft, Tries to Escape and Is Probably Fatally Wounded.

While he was trying to escape arrest, Harry Kiefer, suspected of robbing a guest at the Metropole hotel, yesterday was shot and probably fatally wounded by Detective B. Cronin. The man is 22 years old and resides at 3008 Indiana avenue.

George Miller, a guest at the Metropole, complained to the police that his room had been entered in his absence and $97 taken.

Suspects Bell Boy of Theft.

Cronin was assigned on the case and learned that Kiefer was engaged as bell boy to work during convention week. He was not on duty and the detective went to his residence on Indiana avenue.

Kiefer denied the theft of the money, but Cronin insisted that he accompany him to the police station. At Twenty-sixth street and Prairie avenue the prisoner broke away and ran. He was ordered to halt, and ignored the command. Cronin then fired four shots in the air.

Fires at the Fugitive.

When the fugitive did not stop Cronin took aim and fired at him. The bullet struck Kiefer in the back and he fell to the pavement. He was carried into the Mercy hospital. The bullet had passed through his body. An operation was performed, but the surgeons said there was little hope of saving his life.

SAD MAN MADE A MERRY JEST.

Street Car Passenger of Funereal Visage Has Some Fun with a Cop and a Conductor.

New York, June 23.—[Special.]—At the transfer station at Myrtle avenue and Fulton street today a tall, lean man stepped on a De Kalb avenue car, conspicuously displaying a yellow transfer slip. The conductor immediately halted him with "Hey, you, you can't get on this car."

"O, yes, I think I can," said the would be passenger, apologetically, looking still more sad.

"No, you can't," again said the conductor, this time more emphatically than at first.

"Well, I guess I can if I want to," almost sobbed the thin one, as he attempted to step into the doorway of the car.

"We'll see about that. Say, officer, here's a man wants to get on this car with a transfer."

The policeman appealed to, whose face was like unto the sun at the close of a hot summer's day, stepped up to the car and officiously announced:

"No more guff about this. Yer can't get on this car with a transfer, see?"

"Well, I guess I can pay my fare if I want to, can't I?" said the thin one.

"Sure," said the policeman, his face redder than ever, as he stepped off the car.

"Sure," snarled the conductor, as he viciously yanked the bell twice and snatched at the proffered coin.

SHORTAGE OF WATER IS FEARED

Oak Park Lawns Must Go Dry Until Break in Machinery Is Repaired.

Oak Park is threatened with a water famine and much danger from possible fires due to bursting of the large compressors which force the water from the artesian wells into the reservoir. Until the compressors can be repaired, which will take considerable time, no water can be pumped, and the supply on hand will gradually dwindle. The police of the village have been ordered to notify all users to discontinue sprinkling lawns and wasting water. It is feared that in a short time the pressure of the water will be so slight that it would be difficult for the firemen to play a stream on a two story building. Lawns will undoubtedly suffer.

LIFE PRESERVERS IN BAD CONDITION

Witnesses at Slocum Hearing Testify of Conditions After Disaster.

PRAISE FOR THE CAPTAIN

Burial of More Victims of Horror—Inquiry Adjourned Until Monday.

New York, June 23.—Much of the testimony offered at today's hearing relating to the Slocum disaster had to do with the condition of the life preservers, and witnesses almost without exception said they were of little value. Many instances were given where the straps attached to the life belts broke easily when subjected to strain, and where the canvas covering was torn and the filling of granulated cork released. Numerous witnesses testified that much granulated cork was seen floating on the surface of the water in the vicinity of the burning steamer while the work of rescue was going on.

Paul Liobenow, a passenger on the Slocum, who lost six members of his family in the disaster, declared that when the wires by which the preservers were secured in the racks would not give, he took hold of the preservers and they crumbled like so many soda crackers.

Known Dead 907.

Twenty-four additional bodies were recovered today, bringing the number of known dead up to 907. One hundred policemen who have been making a canvass of all districts where persons were reported to be missing completed their work tonight, and the number of dead, including the missing, is estimated at about 1,000. The hull of the Slocum was raised, but no more bodies were found.

Other witnesses said they thought the captain exercised good judgment in beaching the vessel on North Brother island.

Assistant District Attorney Garvan said he hoped to complete his inquiry Monday, to which day the case was adjourned.

With the approval of the district attorney, the members of the crew, who were held at the house of detention, were released from custody.

The bodies of fifty-one unidentified victims of the disaster were buried today in the Lutheran cemetery, Long island. The bodies of fifty identified victims also were interred, a majority of them being relatives of victims already buried.

Relief Fund Reaches $90,000.

Jacob H. Schiff, treasurer of the committee appointed by the mayor to solicit subscriptions for the relief of the victims, reported that the committee thus far had received over $90,000. Contributions, he added, have been on such a generous scale and the amount already so large that a further swelling of the relief fund seemed to him both unnecessary and undesirable

Policeman James Collins testified that with another policeman, Farrell, he got a yawl and roved over to North Brother island, where the Slocum was beached. They made three trips and took fifty women and children from the paddle boxes and picked up sixteen bodies. He saw many life preservers floating and a lot of cork floating, but none of the persons picked up wore life preservers.

As Herbert C. Farrell, the policeman who was with Collins took the stand to corroborate Collins' story, Capt. Van Schaick was brought in on a stretcher. It was decided, however, not to call Capt. Van Schaick today and he was taken back to the hospital.

Could Have Saved Five Minutes.

The Slocum could have been beached at the foot of One Hundred and Thirty-first street and from three to five minutes saved, according to the testimony of John Van Gilder, superintendent of the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad lighter service. Van Gilder said he went over the course taken by the Slocum and contended that One Hundred and Thirty-first street could have been reached by slightly changing the course, the flood tide would have helped and the wind would have carried the flames outward instead of inward. The reputation of Capt. Van Schaick as a commander was declared by the witness to be "first class." He had no doubt the captain had done what he thought best under the circumstances.

Capt. Edward Van Wart, senior pilot of the Slocum, said 250 new life preservers were purchased for the Slocum in 1895. He was not sure whether they were examined at the beginning of the present season. He did not examine the fire hose, but did examine the lifeboats and found them in good condition. He had not given the signal for the fire drill this season.

Found Life Preservers Rotten.

Reuben H. Tudor, who assisted in the work of rescue, said four or five of the corpses he picked up had on life preservers. One of the preservers, he said, was full of powdered cork and was so rotten that he pulled it to pieces with his finger nail.

Joseph F. Gaffney, a chief engineer of North Brother island, told of seeing a small boy float safely to shore with the aid of one of the life belts. A moment later he saw a woman floating on a life preserver, and then the life preserver parted and floated away from her and she sank.

John L. Wade, engineer and owner of the tug J. W. Wade, who was conspicuous in the work of rescue, said they did not stop to count the number they saved. He told his men not to bother about the dead, but to save all the living they could. Some of the living passengers they picked up had life preservers on.

"Did you see the captain and pilot?" asked Assistant District Attorney Garvan.

"I did not, and I'll take my oath they stuck by the ship to the last," the witness said.

To Mr. McManus, counsel for the Knickerbocker Steamboat company, Capt. Wade said he thought the Slocum was beached with good judgment and that, considering its great length, the captain did the best he could after the fire was discovered.

WEDDING DINNER BILL UNPAID.

New York Caterer Sues to Recover for "Spread" by Mrs. Leonora Hertzberg.

New York, June 23.—[Special.]—Those who were bidden to dinner at Sherry's by Mrs. Leonora Hertzberg on the occasion of her daughter's marriage to Max Tannenbaum will be surprised to learn that their hostess has been brought into court in supplementary proceedings through her failure to pay for their entertainment.

Sherry provided an elaborate repast, with wine and cigars, for ninety-seven persons on Sept. 3 last and sent in a bill for $872.20, which, according to his lawyer, Thomas M. Rowlette, is a most moderate charge for the viands which were supplied. Mrs. Hertzberg sent a check for $200 on account and four separate letters containing apologies for delay and promises to remit. Rowlette, acting for Sherry, brought suit and obtained judgment for $712, the balance due with costs. No property belonging to Mrs. Hertzberg was found. She said she had no income except remittances from her father and that she made her home with her daughter.

NEW FACTOR IN SCHOOLS.

New York Board of Education Holds Boys Must Qualify in Discipline to Graduate.

New York, June 23.—[Special.]—Owing to a call made by the police department upon the board of superintendants of the city schools to help maintain discipline among boys who stone automobiles, the board of education has passed a resolution requiring that every boy must qualify in discipline just as in a regular study before he can take an examination to be promoted or graduated from the schools.

IN THE SOCIETY WORLD.

MISS BELLE M'CULLOUGH MARRIED TO CHAUNCEY BORLAND.

Ceremony Takes Place at Presbyterian Church in Lake Forest at 4 O'Clock in the Afternoon—Engagement Announced of Miss Frances Spencer of the Hotel Del Prado to Mr. Jean Henri Nicholas—Lawn Fete for North Shore Congregational Fund.

One of the most fashionable of the summer weddings took place yesterday in Lake Forest, when Miss Belle McCullough was married to Mr. Chauncey Borland. The bride, who is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hiram R. McCullough, is well known in society, both in Lake Forest and Chicago, while the groom is the son of Mrs. John J. Borland, and a Harvard man of 1901.

It was an afternoon wedding, the service being read at 4 o'clock in the Lake Forest Presbyterian church, the Rev. James G. K. McClure officiating. The pretty church was decorated with masses of hydrangeas, peonies, and palms, the general color scheme of pink and white being carried out. The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Florence McCullough, as maid of honor, the maids being Miss Ethel Dean of San Francisco, Miss Margaret Winterbotham, Miss Helen Lord, and Miss Adele Louise Seaverns. Mr. Bruce Borland served his brother as best man, and the groomsmen were Mr. Ralph Gilchrist, Mr. Hugh Johnston, Mr. Walter B. Smith, Mr. Cyrus H. Adams Jr., Mr. Charles Raymond, and Mr. Uri B. Grannis.

The bride wore white liberty silk, which was trimmed with point lace. Her veil of tulle was worn full over the face, and the bridal bouquet was a shower of white sweet peas. Miss Florence McCullough was dressed in white chiffon trimmed with pale blue ribbon and lace, the other maids wearing similar costumes, and all carrying pink sweet peas.

After the ceremony a reception was held at the McCullough home, which was beautifully decorated with pink and white flowers, southern smilax, and ferns. In the dining room the table was done in pink, a large centerpiece of roses being used to decorate. After a wedding journey Mr. and Mrs. Borland will reside in Chicago.

Announcement has been made by Mr. and Mrs. William Edward Spencer of the Hotel Del Prado of the engagement of their daughter, Frances, to Mr. Jean Henri Nicholas. No date has been set for the wedding.

The marriage of Dr. Sherman E. Wright of this city to Miss Katherine Best of Minneapolis, Minn., will take place in that city on June 29. It will be a double wedding. Miss Best's sister, Miss Lillian, to be married at the same time. Dr. Wright left for Minneapolis yesterday.

Mr. and Mrs. O. D. Pillsbury of the Vendome hotel are spending the summer at Long Beach, Gloucester, Mass.

The Misses Frances and Madeline Buckner, 4526 Greenwood avenue, have returned from Miss Brown's school in New York. Mr. J. L. Buckner has returned from college in Fulton, Mo.

The Woman's society of the North Shore Congregational church will give a lawn fête tomorrow afternoon and evening in Sheridan road, one block north of Montrose boulevard. The proceeds will be devoted to the building fund of the church.

Mrs. A. H. Cohn, 4450 Calumet avenue, will entertain tomorrow afternoon in honor of her daughter, Hannah, who graduates from the South Division High school tonight.

Miss Mary S. Nixon, daughter of Mrs. William Penn Nixon, 177 Lake View avenue, arrived in the city yesterday, after two years spent in Florence, Italy. She will remain in Chicago during the summer, returning to Italy in September.

Mr. John F. Stacey sails for Europe on Saturday, going directly to Naples, where he will join Mrs. Stacey.

The Rev. Dr. and Mrs. T. D. Wallace leave Chicago this morning for New York, whence they sail on Tuesday for a three months' trip in Europe.

Mrs. M. A. Wedeles, 5402 Indiana avenue, gave a luncheon yesterday for twelve guests in honor of her niece, Miss Hattie Bernstein of Memphis, Tenn. The decorations were of American beauties.

One of the prettiest affairs of the week was a luncheon given yesterday at the Wellington hotel in honor of Miss May Lemer, one of the principals of the Villa Du Pont school, Paris. The young women who acted as hosts were all pupils of the school at various times, who had come together recently to attend the wedding of Miss Helen Young in Evanston on Monday. They are Miss June Brown of Denver, Miss Margaret Sweet of Buffalo, Miss Mary Stockton of Buffalo, Miss Emma Brownell of Peru, Ind.; Miss Margaret Burnham of Evanston, Miss Marion Aldridge of Evanston, Miss Dorothy Fuller of Evanston, Miss Ruby Chapin of Chicago, Miss Lanbourne Smith of Chicago, Miss Margaret Freer of Hinsdale, Miss Marion Sharpe of Oak Park, Miss Lina Parker of Chicago. Miss Lemer is the guest of Mrs. Charles Baldwin of Winnetka.

Mrs. Parry L. Wright, 193 East Thirtieth street, is arranging a breakfast to be given by the officers of the D. A. R. to Mrs. C. W. Fairbanks tomorrow morning at the Union League club.

WINS CUSTODY OF CHILD DURING A SINGLE WEEK.

Mrs. Katherine G. Brown, Divorce Defendant, Secures Court Order Allowing Her to Have Teddy for a While.

For one week Mrs. Katherine G. Brown will have custody of her little son, Teddy, her plea being granted in court yesterday. Charles E. Brown, divorce plaintiff, has kept the child at Lake Forest for the last month, and is alleged to have refused to let the mother enter the house there. Brown is maintaining his Indiana avenue residence for Mrs. Brown, and paying her $200 a month alimony.

Elopers Held for Trial.—Because the 17 year old girl's mother would not consent to the marriage, Rose Causeman, it is alleged, left home with Emil Vandemeyer, her cousin. The girl was held to the Juvenile and Vandemeyer to the Criminal court.

Relatives Cause of Trouble.—Ida M. Gottscheidt, divorce plaintiff, against Max E. Gottscheidt, alleged he allowed his relatives to address her "in threatening language." They lived at 739 Sedgwick street.

More Want Ties Severed.—Other divorce cases of the day were as follows:

Anna against William Lloyd Farrier, drunkenness; married at St. Joe in 1899; parted in three years.

Elizabeth A. against Robert R. McConaghy, alleged he drove her and three children from 512 Stevenson street on June 7; married in 1896.

PHONOGRAPH STOPS RUNAWAY.

Horse Attached to Sewing Machine Wagon Hears Its Name Through Megaphone and Halts.

Philadelphia, Pa., June 23.—[Special.]—A runaway horse attached to a sewing machine wagon on Park drive was stopped today at the Falls of the Schuylkill by a phonograph playing at the window of Samuel MacWhinney's residence near the drive. The horse had run from Main street and Walnut lane, Manayunk, nearly two miles, when the phonograph sang out through a megaphone attachment the old song:

"Hey, Nellie, Hi, Nellie, listen unto me."

The horse, which happened to be named Nellie, pricked up its ears and stopped and the driver soon arrived and took charge of it.

Indiana Bank Closes Doors.

Shelbyville, Ind., June 23.—[Special.]—The Home bank of St. Paul closed its doors yesterday. It refused to pay depositors until its affairs are settled in the courts. Fred Gillman, president of the Goodland bank, which failed for $200,000, had drawn extensively on this bank, of which he was also president, although he only held $2,000 of its stock. Deposits to the amount of $61,000 are tied up.

OBITUARY.

C. H. CHAPPELL, late vice president and general manager of the Chicago and Alton railroad, will be buried today. The funeral will be held from the family residence, 3657 Michigan avenue, at 1:30 p. m. The body will be placed in the family vault at Oakwoods.

Your Corner.

The worker is not a Cinderella of drudgeries and poverty with rich sisters of leisure and pleasure.

The worker is the darling of the gods who has received lavishly of talent and skill.

Fingers must be far cleverer to create a Parisian toilet than to hook it up to wear at a ball.

Imagination must be much livelier to invent an automobile than to enjoy a ride beside a chauffeur.

If the worker is Cinderella he is Cinderella after her godmother's visit. Then she has the riches denied her sisters, and a prince to do her homage.

LUCILE W.: This child will have a calm and determined desire to put all opposition out of the way and will be full of sagacity, resource, and resistance. Will be determined to make her own way in the world, although she will have a most severe struggle. She will be extremely fortunate in business, will bear the best of reputations, and rise to a high position in her chosen profession, which is likely to be that of a teacher. She is certain to marry more than once, but neither marriage promises to be happy.

M. F. T., June, 1869: You have a great desire to give your children a grand start in the world and to provide them with financial as well as mental endowments to give worldly success. You make enjoyment of position and comfort your first consideration, and unless you become more economical and look better to financial matters you are likely to end your days in extreme poverty. Children will bring great good into the life, but you have been given such great vitality that you are likely to outlive them by many years. You will gain some wealth by inheritance.

FELIX ROSE, July, 1869: You have great endurance and are courageous and determined in money matters. Would make a most excellent trained nurse, and were you not so tender hearted would do well as a physician or surgeon. Are shown to gain wealth by inheritance and will also make a most fortunate marriage. If not already married, you are certain to marry within two years. You are very much attached to home and family.

JIMMIE H., January, 1864: You have high motives, are fond of activity, have great hopefulness, good cheer, and foresight. Are determined to make life a success, but are too kind hearted to succeed in the life of a large city. Are shown to make a most happy marriage and to gain wealth by inheritance. During the coming year you will be very successful in financial matters, but will be subject to many annoyances in social life, and you should avoid accidents for several months. In about four years you will experience a period of wonderful prosperity.

"MY HUB": You are shown to have made an exquisitely happy marriage, and the wife will be the chief factor in your ultimate success. You have great love of your home and kindred, and are a power in the social and business world in your own walk in life. You are under rather unfortunate configurations, and are likely to have either slow and trying business affairs during the coming year, or else a severe loss. In about four years a time of wonderful prosperity will be ushered in, when you are likely to be able to provide for the remainder of your life to be passed in surroundings of great wealth.

"SUDY," June, 1874: You were born to make a great financial success, but after a hard struggle. Marriage is your greatest blessing, and if not already married you are certain to do so this year. You should avoid running risks in money matters at the present time, and should look well to health and business. In about three years you will be under a most fortunate transit of Jupiter. You are kind and domestic, and especially fitted to make a happy home life.

"LILL," August, 1879: You are fond of ease and luxury and of the good things of this life. You should cultivate a consideration of the elements of success and strive to get an insight into real needs distinct from those supposed to be necessary and beneficial, if you would achieve the greatest success in life. You are now under a most unfortunate transit of Saturn, and should look well to your health, and also avoid making undesirable acquaintances. In business you will experience a very prosperous year, and should avoid making any changes. There are signs for either marriage or inheritance in about four years, and at that time you will begin a period of greater prosperity than has hitherto been your lot in life.

HECKLEGARN, January, 1871: You have a strong love for home comforts and are inclined to be very industrious in small matters, but are lacking in economy in the broad sense, so that you are likely to experience much trouble in financial affairs. Marriage does not promise to be a happy union because of your failure in making provision for financial setbacks. The coming year shows that you are likely to have some good fortune in business, but you are also likely to lose money through speculation or by an accident. In about three years you will be under the most fortunate transits that will occur during the entire life.

HAZELL DELL: This child has a great amount of self-will and suffers under restraint, but she has generous and kindly impulses and should be allowed employment of some sort that she may keep her mind occupied. She will succeed in domestic life and will be most happy with her husband, home, and children. Should she be given a thorough training in domestic sciences she would be successful as a teacher therein.

"RUBE," April, 1903: This child is destined to much success in life and will be a prominent figure in either the business or the professional world. He will be the subject of much praise and also of much criticism. He is well adapted to succeed in the law or in a religious calling, and has also the best of configurations for success as a physician or as a journalist. He will be talented in music and in elocution. He will inherit much property and will also gain wealth through marriage.

LOU, July, 1880: You have a vivid conception of beauty and are apt to be critical rather from intuition than from artistic study. You appreciate elegance in movement and in form and have a disposition to work ceaselessly to gain the appreciation of others. You are now under most fortunate planetary configurations and are likely to marry this year. Your home life will be ideally happy, but your greatest fortune will be your children. You will gain some by inheritance, but most by marriage.

MOSE, September, 1883: You are especially adapted to succeed as a teacher, either in the line of elocution, physical culture, day school, or kindergarten. There is also marked literary and dramatic ability. During the coming year you will be exceedingly successful in business and you are also liable to receive an offer of marriage which you would do well to accept. In about six years you will be under the most fortunate configuration of the entire life. At some time in life you are likely to make money through a fortunate speculation or through an inheritance from an unexpected quarter.

J. C.: You are sensitive and are easily impressed by surrounding conditions and by those around you. You are lacking in positiveness and determination, and could be most successful should you cultivate these qualities. Money invested in mining, farming land, fruit farms, or floriculture would be likely to prove profitable. During the coming year you will have much anxiety in business matters and are likely to experience a loss of money and to make a change which will not prove fortunate. Next year you will be under better configurations for financial success.

JOHN A. ARMBRUSTER, August, 1871: You are the incarnation of energy and activity and will rise to a high position in life through your own industry. You are keenly alive to the accumulation of wealth and though you are able to hold a subordinate position, yet you desire freedom and the least restraint possible. You are now under most fortunate planetary influences for making a change either of business or residence, but especially avoid disputes or litigation, a prophecy which holds good during the entire life.

SAMPSON, May 1879: You are friendly and congenial and fond of social life and study. Marriage promises to be ideally happy and will occur before the 30th year. You would succeed in the employ of the government or in a large corporation. There are no signs of poverty or of affliction and the general horoscope is exceedingly fortunate. Next year you are likely to take a long journey, which will prove exceedingly profitable.

R. S. V. P.: You have a vast amount of system and orderly attainment, incline to fretful energy, and dislike restraint and to be disturbed by any interruption in your plans. Under no circumstances are you pleased with dictation, but like suggestions and are fond of flattery. During the coming year you are likely to experience sickness and trouble in your immediate family, but business and financial affairs will proceed as usual. The year 1911 will be the most fortunate period of the entire life, but immediately following that you are likely to have a long season of financial reverses. The end of the life is shown to be passed in circumstances much less favorable than the earlier years.

E. B. C., July 1869: You are bright and active and dislike long tasks and prefer matters of common and general interest. You are destined to be fortunate in the last years of the life and are likely to marry more than once. One of the marriages promises to be happy, the other to be unhappy. You are liable to make mistakes in the bestowal of your friendships and during the coming year you will suffer much from the treachery of a supposed friend. In about three years you will either make money unexpectedly through a fortunate investment or else you will receive a legacy.

LILLIAN, June, 1866: You are fond of home and friends, have taste in dress, and are an excellent housekeeper. More than one marriage is almost certain, and if the married life is not altogether happy it will not be owing to any inharmony of disposition on your part. During the coming year avoid traveling or placing yourself in danger. In about two years you will experience much good fortune, and are likely to take a long journey. This horoscope is that of one who will lead a generally quiet, uneventful life.

Keep the Difference Yourself

We don't talk about three-cent cigars—the kind you think we mean—but when we know we can show you in one minute that we are selling for three cents as good a cigar as can be produced and retailed for five cents in any way except through our system of buying and selling, then we are bound to tell about it.

We want everybody to know it. It's just an example of what our selling system does all along the line—rips out the old time "in-between" profits and expenses and saves it all to the consumer, and gives the smoker dependable cigars at the price the jobbers ordinarily pay.

Santa Bana Perfectos

$1.50 box of fifty. Three cents each.

Think of it! Hand-rolled, wrapped with genuine Sumatra, filled with rich, well-matured tobacco—long, clean, sweet as a nut. This cigar, although sold by us for only three cents, is one of the best nickel cigars obtainable. Try a box to-day.

END THEIR WORK IN MANY SCHOOLS

Hundreds of Pupils Graduated and 300,000 Begin Their Summer Rest.

AWARDING OF PRIZES.

Commencement Exercises Held in Both High and Grammar Grades.

Chicago's public schools were given over to commencement exercises yesterday. The form of study was changed to speaking and music. In several instances elaborate exercises were held before throngs of proud parents and admiring friends.

With the last of the graduations today the school year will come to an end, and the big buildings will be deserted, except the few in which vacation classes will be conducted.

With the closing of the schools 300,000 children will be dismissed for their summer vacation and 6,000 instructors will be given two months' vacation.

One of the greatest advancements in the public schools in the last year is in the large number of school buildings erected. The finest building under construction at present is the Chicago Teachers' college, which will cost about $400,000.

The McKinley and Wendell Phillips High schools, which will be completed by September, each represents a cost of about $300,000. It is likely that the new Commercial High school, for which $500,000 has been appropriated by the board of education and concurred in by the city council, will be begun before fall. It will be erected at Harrison street and Plymouth court.

Hyde Park High School.

One hundred and ninety-one graduates of the Hyde Park High received their diplomas in the evening at Mandel hall. Principal C. W. French presided. Dean Harry Pratt Judson of the University of Chicago gave the commencement address. Lester J. Felsenthal won the first Lawson medal and Theodore Rubovits the second. The graduates:

BREAKS TEN YEARS' SILENCE.

Frank Schleminger Speaks at Last When Questioned in the Insane Court.

His answer to a question put to him yesterday by Dr. Hunter in the court for the insane at the detention hospital were the first words spoken by Frank Schleminger, 368 North Lincoln street, in ten years, according to the testimony of his father, Christian Schleminger.

Surprise was great when the young man, who is 26 years old, promptly answered the questions put to him by Dr. Hunter.

"I have remained at home for about ten years and did not speak because I did not care to," said young Schleminger.

The father gazed at his son in amazement.

"The first words I have heard him say in all that time," he said.

Young Schleminger said he did not know how long ago he had stopped speaking to the family or how it came about.

It is believed that the situation is due to an old quarrel between father and son, but neither would reveal what it was. Dr. Hunter continued the case for a week.

Reunion of Moody School Pupils.

The former students and teachers of Dwight L. Moody's Northfield school living in Chicago and vicinity will hold a reunion and lawn party at the home of Col. H. P. Davidson, Highland Park, tomorrow afternoon and evening. The Chicago contingent will leave by the 2 o'clock train from Wells street depot.

Educators Going to St. Louis.

Educators tomorrow will begin to leave for St. Louis to attend the forty-third annual convention of the National Educational association, which will be held June 27 to July 1. It is expected that more than 500 of the Chicago teachers will be present at the sessions and many are on the program for addresses.

$20.50

Chicago to Atlantic City and return via Pennsylvania Lines. Tickets on sale July 10 and 11. You can go via Washington if you wish. Get tickets at 248 Clark street.

The Tribune's Vacation Guide

SULTRY days like yesterday make the summer resort people glad—the hotel keepers because the heat brings the crowds and the guests because they believe they are escaping greater sultriness elsewhere. Many Chicago people took the excursion boats during the day for points across the lake, and the nearby resting places already are beginning to entertain their usual summer crowds. To those who have not yet decided where they will spend their vacations THE TRIBUNE below offers more places for selection:

LAKE IN THE CLOUDS.—A lake of diamond clear water, hemmed in by the towering giants of the Canadian Rockies. Banff is the nearest stopping point and has a wonderful hotel set on the edge of a small precipice, and charging rates only a little less steep. But you get value received. You can take the most beautiful mountain drive to the Cloud lakes and to the snow topped peaks in the vicinity. There is a partially extinct geyser not far away with its cone made into a warm water bathing pool. Banff is 1,672 miles northwest of Chicago and railroad rates had best be specially inquired into before starting on so long a trip.

LAKE MILLS, IA.—The Iowa idea of a good place to spend your vacation. The Hawkeye vacationers do not set much store on style, but they are past masters at all the secrets of obtaining solid, homely comfort. That's what you'll get at Lake Mills. The lake itself is a typical midwestern body of water, about four miles long. Chicago is 400 miles away. Hotel rates are $2 a day, or less by the week.

LAKE MILLS, WIS.—Its advertising folder says "it abounds with all kinds of highly prized fish." This doesn't mean gold fish or anchovies, but merely our old friends, bass, pickerel, and pike. Rock lake is the largest in the neighborhood. Its shores contain more varieties of natural beauty than are usually crowded into a lake three miles in length. The general tone of the summer settlement is quiet and inexpensive. Outdoor life in outdoor clothes has the first call on everyone's efforts. Two hotels and a cottage offer good accommodation at from $5 to $7 weekly. The ride from Chicago requires three hours and forty minutes and the round trip costs a $5 bill.

LAKE VILLA, ILL.—One of the nice little lakes just this side of the Wisconsin border line, about the proper psychological point of distance from town. Simple in every way. No towering bluffs or headlands, but quiet, prairie like scenery where the flat waters of the lake begin almost at the level where the flat shores cease. Eminently respectable groves of trees line the clean pebbly beaches and in the shallows grow wild rice and celery, which attract the migrating wild fowl. Cedar, Deep, and Sun lakes are nearby, and the drives to them are well worth taking. Crooked, Sand, and Hastings lakes are only a little farther off. In the neighborhood there are five good, comfortable hotels that give you real country fare and charge from $7 to $12 a week for doing it. A round trip from town costs only $2.25, with commutation possibilities.

LAKE OF THE WOODS, CANADA.—Around 1,000 miles north of Chicago. Vacation goers have become accustomed to traveling 1,000 miles east or 1,000 miles west, and it is time they realized the summer possibilities of a trip of that length into the lonely northern part of the continent. Lake of the Woods is not too lonely, because the Canadians have discovered its vacation usefulness and there are pleasant quarters there for man, woman, and child. For these $1 a day and upwards is asked. There are hundreds of islands in the lake and you can make a 180 mile trip by steamboat upon its waters. The round trip from Chicago costs $47.

LAKES OKOBOJI, IA.—On the highest ridge of land between the Alleghanies and the Rockies—the Mississippi-Missouri watershed. A chain of beautiful lakes like the peaceful waters of southern Wisconsin. The Okobojis are so similar to the lakes nearer home that there is not much reason for traveling the 474 miles to them, unless the visitor is looking for new fields to conquer. The last Indian killed in Iowa met his death in 1861, but only four years previously the Sioux descended upon the Okoboji settlement and massacred or captured all of the forty families in the district. A monument and a survivor of this raid are part of the present summer attractions. The round trip from Chicago costs $21.20. Weekly hotel rates vary from $7 to $14.

LAKE ZURICH, ILL.—Just outside of Cook county, only fifty-four minutes' ride from the city hall. You can't be much nearer the office than that and have green grass around you, unless you try to spend the summer at the foot of the Logan monument or in one of the "small parks" in the Nineteenth ward. Zurich has these urban beauty spots beaten. It's a little bit of a lake, not much bigger than a minute, but it's mighty pretty. There is no wild scenery scattered about the place, but the air is just as good as if Chicago were a thousand miles away, and the hotels decline to charge more than $6 weekly. The village of Barrington, five miles away from the lake and connected with it by stage lines, is the railroad station. Week end round trips to this town cost only $1.35. This seems cheap when you bear in mind the fact that Zurich boasts so pretentious a thing as a nine hole golf links.

LANSING, IA.—On the father of waters, between Mounts Ida and Hosmer, two bits of scenery that look as if they belonged in Vermont instead of Iowa. Islands with lakes inside of them are scattered over the surface of the Mississippi at this point, and afford good fishing and some hunting. Hotel rates range from $4 to $7 weekly, and the round trip from Chicago costs $7.70.

LAUDERDALE LAKES, WIS.—Where stout, jolly, middle aged men go and get the backs of their necks all sunburned by fishing twelve hours a day. Where their wives sit on the broad verandas and prepare themselves for the astounding fish narratives they are bound to hear in the evening. Where the children run, and shout, and play till they're tanned as brown as berries. Every one seems to have a particularly good time at Lauderdale, and to pile up great stores of health to draw upon during the indoor city life of the winter months. There are three lakes in the chain—Green, Middle, and Mill. You can rent cottages with everything in them except the bedding, or you have your choice of good hotels at from $6 to $12 a week. A round trip to Elkhorn, the nearest railroad station, costs only $3.25, and the time required to go from Chicago is short.

THREE STRAIGHT FOR WHITE SOX.

Comiskey's Men Make Clean Sweep of Series by Beating Cleveland 2 to 1.

SMITH THE WHOLE THING

Young Pitcher Holds Sluggers to Six Singles, One of Them a Scratch.

The White Stockings wound up the greatest series that has been played in this city in years by taking the third straight game from Cleveland yesterday in an errorless contest by the score of 2 to 1.

The first game was a ninth inning victory for Comiskey's men, the second a tenth inning victory, and yesterday's a seventh inning swoop, but what swelled the delight of the fans more than anything else was the fact yesterday's scrap was won by one of Comiskey's experiments, Frank Smith, who shone with such genuine effulgence that several of the horsemen, who took advantage of the lapse in racing to see a little weekday baseball, were seen to remove their diamonds in disgust. The youngster's radiance made them look like cut glass.

Smithy Surprises Blues.

Consider the situation and the eventuation. Smith was stacked up against the hardest batting aggregation in the country, and the blues were mad all through with the ire of two previous defeats. They were out for gore and their bats fairly quivered with anticipation when they saw Smithy walk to the supposed slaughter pen. What the slaughteree did to the would be slaughterers was to hold them down to six singles, one of which was a rank scratch, due to McFarland's failure to get under a pop fly, and those six hits would have scored absolutely nothing in the way of runs if McFarland had not let a pitch get away from him at an inopportune moment. Besides he struck out such knights of swat as Lush, Hickman, and Bradley.

Two Bagger Ties Up Game.

But that was not all Smith accomplished. It was his two bagger that tied up the game in the seventh round after two were out and the game had gone so far with so many false hopes faded that victory was beginning to be despaired of by the faint hearted. It happened something like this: With Isbell and Tannehill shot down at first, McFarland lobbed a safety into left and scratched gravel around first until Smith slapped the ball squarely in the countenance, sending it far out along the left foul line. Lush put on all the steam in his boiler, but before he could get the thing back to the diamond Smith was squatted on second base and McFarland had tied up the game. Dundon, who has worn out one suit this season doing bench duty, followed with his second clean shot to right, scoring Smith with what proved the winning run.

How Cleveland Scored.

Cleveland's bachelor run had occurred in the third round, as the result of a plunk by Abbott, his sneak to second, a passed ball, and Flick's two mile fly to Callahan. Thus it went into the ninth with the score 2 to 1 in the Sox's favor, and that ninth was enough to try the nerve of a pile driver. It was up to the top of Cleveland's batting order to wipe out that little gap of one.

Flick, and Lush, and Bradley, and Lajoie, and Hickman—those folks can hit some, and they did. Flick's hit started for the clouds and came down in McFarland's mattress. Lush's hit winged its way far out to left in safety, and the fans gasped, but the fleet man with the booze name was stopped at first. Bradley fouled mightily once or twice, then raised a twister which Davis coppered. The mighty Lajoie was next and slashed away at nothing once amid mighty shouts, but the next ball met his bat squarely and rebounded into left like a rifle ball. Yet it advanced Lush only to second.

Callahan Averts Trouble.

Hickman came up, and what that fellow has been known to do to the ball under such circumstances needs no rehearsal here. It was so still one could hear the wind snapping the flag far out in center field. It was a supreme test of Smith's sand, but he had some left, for he shot the ball across the plate once, twice, and that "twice" got an awful bump, but it went soaring skyward in Callahan's direction, and that was how the youngster pitched himself to victory, for Callahan squeezed that ball as it had never been squeezed before, and the blue giants faded away St. Louisward. Score:

Notes of the White Sox Game.

It is the first time Cleveland has been defeated "three straight" by any team this season.

Lush robbed Tannehill of one of the prettiest drives of the game by cutting off the ball in the air after a great dash.

Capt. Chance and Catcher O'Neil of the Colts, who were sent home from Cincinnati on the hospital list, watched the game from the stand.

Jones would have registered a hit in the third, but Hickman managed to get the ball up just in time to force Dundon, who had been at first base.

There has been more sensational fielding condensed into the series with Cleveland than has been seen here in a similar period for many weeks.

"Ducky" Holmes has gone to his home in Des Moines to nurse his injured knee, but is expected to return on Monday and may be sufficiently recovered to get into the game again.

The White Stockings left last night for Detroit, where they are scheduled to play today and tomorrow. As the two teams return here for a game on Sunday only Owen, Altrock, and Walsh of the pitchers were taken on the trip.

Smith was wild at the start and passed the first batter, but settled after that and proved steadier than the veteran Bernhard during the rest of the game. He is a hard man to catch, with a wealth of speed and some tricky curves, but McFarland was equal to the occasion.

While Smith was the feature all the way, the fact could not be overlooked that he was getting clockwork support, with the exception of McFarland's two slips, when he misjudged Bradley's pop fly in the fourth and let the ball pass him in the third, which resulted in scoring Cleveland's only run.

There was a costly mixup in the fifth, which cost runs. McFarland was at second, with one out, when Dundon singled to right, but Eddie could not make the plate on it and was stopped at third. Bernhard cut in and caught Flick's good throw to the plate, shooting it to first in time to cut off Dundon, who had overrun that bag on the play. The result was that McFarland was run down at home.

ATHLETICS DEFEAT BOSTON.

Connie Mack's Men Win Victory Over the Champions by a Score of Five to One.

Washington, D. C., June 23.—Washington and New York had an interesting tie contest today until the eighth inning, when Selbach's three errors let in five runs, giving New York the game by the score of 7 to 4. A sensational stop by Coughlin was the feature. Score:

RIOT FOLLOWS ST. LOUIS FIGHT.

Attel Wins Decision Over Reagan, Who Then Attacks One of His Rival's Seconds.

St. Louis, Mo., June 23.—[Special.]—An incipient riot followed the decision of Referee Sharp of the West End club tonight when, after the Abe Attel-John Reagan fight had finished its fifteen round course, he made the award to the former.

The general fighting that followed, however, was not a result of the decision. Tommy Brammel, a second of Attel's, was doing a few acrobatic stunts, giving vent to his joy, and it is said made a caustic remark which Reagan overheard. The defeated fighter, still with gloved hands, led a right to Brammel's jaw and followed with lefts and rights in quick succession. Several were in the ring by that time and the fighting became general. Referee Sharp used his efforts to quell the trouble and was rewarded with a decisive but unmeant blow from one of the squad of police that had just reached the scene of the fighting. Jack Root took a hand in the mêlée and used his experience to advantage. Several lesser lights were tossed through the ropes by a dozen bluecoats.

Attel had much the better of the fight until the closing rounds. Then Reagan made an almost sensational finish.

Munroe's Manager in a Fight.

San Francisco, Cal., June 23.—[Special.]—Munroe came near going east without his manager. Harry Pollok and E. C. Lonogen were found at an early hour this morning by Policeman F. W. Roble having a setto in Ellis street. The mill was fast and furious while it lasted, so Roble summoned a patrol and took the two men to the central police station. Pollok was charged with being drunk and gave $5 bail. This he forfeited by taking a train for Chicago.

Pugilistic Pointers.

Otto Sieloff and Harry Fagin will contest the windup at the next Apollo hall show.

Johnny Thompson and "Kid" Farmer were yesterday matched to fight the windup at the benefit to be tendered to Jimmy Barry at the Waverly Athletic club's arena next Monday night. Other bouts arranged yesterday were: Frankie Baker vs. Jimmy Malley, Johnny Ruse vs. Georgie Quinn, and "Young" Kelly vs. Pete Savoas.

Billy Finucane, who recently fought Kid Herman to a draw, and Tommy Mowatt clash in the windup at the Battery D show tonight. Taking the reputation of the boys into consideration, Finucane looks like easy picking for the stockyards scrapper, but figuring on the showing made by Billy against Herman, his defeats of Paddy Nee, Jack Flanagan, and "Kid" Abel, he appears a most formidable opponent. He is a slashing, aggressive fighter, can hit a few licks, and is just as liable to win with a knockout as is Mowatt. His defense is the weakest part in his fistic makeup. One of the features of the show will be the first appearance in this city of John L. Sullivan Jr., a Boston product, who holds victories over such good ones as Patsy Sweeney and George McFadden. Ed Johnson has been selected to try out the Bostonian. Harry Griffin, the wild and woolly one, and "Kid" Farmer will have it out in the semi-final.

Eckersall in St. Louis Meet.

Coach Stagg announced late last night that he had added to the list of the team he will take to St. Louis today that of the much protested Walter Eckersall. After a long period of ineligibility on account of scholastic difficulties the speedy little athlete has straightened out his accounts with the faculty. With reference to the protest made by Princeton the midway director said he did not think it would receive serious consideration by Chairman James E. Sullivan, especially as the A. A. U. had agreed that college contests should be governed by college eligibility rules. Capt. Blair is again in condition and will run in the 100 and 220. Other prominent teams entered are Leland Stanford, Princeton, Amherst, Purdue, Indiana, Illinois, and the Michigan Agricultural college.

Vincents to Play Buffalos.

The Vincents and Buffalos, composed of baseball players from west side college and high school teams, will play tomorrow at the Club Chaperons' picnic at Reissig's grove. Ald. James Scully will umpire.

COLTS WIN LAST GAME FROM REDS.

Defeat Cincinnati Team in Final Contest of Series by the Score of 6 to 4.

EVERS IS BATTING HERO.

Corridon Outpitches Hahn, but Weakens Toward End, and Briggs Goes to Rescue.

Cincinnati, O., June 23.—[Special.]—The Colts won their final game of the season in this city today by a score of 6 to 4. The reds were guilty of many faulty deeds, but not all that were committed, for the winners contributed several costly misplays and fought hard against the generosity of the red men.

Hahn, the premier twirler of the local staff was on the firing line and the Colts were able to gather in eight fat hits at his expense, Evers being the batting hero of the visitors again today with three hits, one of which was a three bagger.

Corridon was credited with wining for the Colts, but he had to call for assistance in the seventh inning and "Buttons" Briggs was sent out to stave off a threatening defeat.

By downing the reds the Colts moved up into second place and left here tonight in a much better frame of mind than they were in the early part of the week.

Reds Soon Lose Lead.

The reds took a lead in the beginning of the game, but the one run made in the opening inning did not lead for long. Huggins started with a single and Donlin followed with a smash to right, which sent Huggins to third. Then Donlin stole second, and Odwell drew a pass, filling the bases. Corridon settled and struck out Seymour. Dolan sent a grounder to Casey and was an easy out, but Huggins scored. Steinfeldt retired the side with a fly to Slagle.

Double Steal by Chicago.

After Tinker was out in the third, Corridon smashed one safely to right, Slagle did likewise, and Casey reached first when Steinfeldt fumbled his grounder. Corridon came home on Williams' long drive to Seymour. Slagle and Casey then pulled off a neat double theft, aided by a bad throw of Corcoran to get Slagle at the plate.

Evers made the circuit in the fourth after one was out on a three base hit to deep left and came home on Kling's grounder to Steinfeldt. The sixth inning was where the Colts got in their best work, Williams starting the picnic with a base hit, stealing second, going to third on McCarthy's out, and scoring on a safety to left. Evers waited for a slow one and soaked it past Donlin, Kling's long fly scoring the second run of the round.

In their half the reds pushed "Cy" over the plate by the aid of two fumbles by Tinker. Corridon was rapidly weakening in the seventh. Huggins poked the ball into center for a base hit and Donlin contributed his fourth hit of the day.

Briggs Displaces Corridon.

Odwell forced Mike at second and Seymour sent Huggins home with another safe one. Corridon hoisted the white flag and Briggs, who had been sent out to warm up, was led in. Dolan waited for a base and then Steinfeldt's long fly scored Odwell and Seymour, Dolan moving up on Slagle's throw to the plate, which passed both Briggs and Kling, and went to the grand stand. Corcoran popped a fly into Kling's big mitt.

Tinker added the last run to the visitors' column in the ninth. He rolled the ball within easy reach of Hahn, who threw a little wide to first, and Donlin let it go until Tinker was on third, from where he scored on an outfield fly. Score:

Notes of the Colts' Game.

The Colts left here tonight for Sharon, Pa., where they will play an exhibition gme tomorrow, and then go to Pittsburg for Saturday.

Huggins was out in the fifth inning while trying to reach third base on Donlin's hit to right field. The throw reached Casey in plenty of time to get Huggins six feet off the bag.

Donlin was the worst offender on the reds' side during the game, although he was not charged with an error. He could easily have saved Tinker from getting beyond first on Hahn's throw, but only tried for the ball with one hand. He was also caught napping on first in the third inning, and his display of temper during the game was disgusting even to the home fans.

HARVARD WINS FROM YALE

CAPTURES FIRST GAME OF SERIES BY SCORE OF 5 TO 3.

Contest Is Played on New Soldiers' Field Before 12,000 People and Both Teams Put Up a Poor Exhibition—Pitcher Jackson's Wildness Gives Crimson Nine Its Runs, While New Haven Players Count Through Passed Balls and Errors.

Cambridge, Mass., June 23.—[Special.]—Harvard defeated Yale, 5 to 3, in the first game of the series played this afternoon on the new Soldiers' field diamond. The weather was ideal, and more than 12,000 enthusiasts gathered to cheer the great rivals.

Both teams played miserable ball, Yale getting its three runs on passed balls and errors, while Harvard had its quintet of tallies passed on a silver platter through the wildness of Jackson and a bad error by Capt. Winslow. McKay, the crack Eli twirler, was unable to pitch today, but in the exhibition given before the game he showed terrific speed and good curves. He will face the crimson batters at New Haven next week.

Coburn pitched a good game for Harvard, holding Yale down to two small hits. A similar number were made off Jackson, and Bell, who replaced him, was touched up for two also. Neither team batted with any life, and the outfielders had little to do.

O'Brien scored for Yale in the first inning. He walked, and went to second and third on passed balls. Miller brought him home with a single. In the third Harvard did some effective stunts on the bases, and four runs resulted. Kernan walked and Coburn singled. Carr filled the bases when Jackson's inshoot caught him in the ribs. The Yale twirler drove a low ball by Winslow, and Kernan and Coburn crossed the rubber. Carr made for the plate, and on Winslow's wild return of the ball easily connected. Stephenson and Randall were safe at first, and then to third and second respectively The former was caught at the plate, but Matthews' double enabled Randall to score the fourth run. The big blond first baseman of the crimson team was hit by Bell in the fifth, and he scored on Greenough's single.

O'Brien made Yale's second run in the sixth, and in the seventh Cote scored on Kernan's errors. Score:

GOSSIP OF THE BIG HANDICAP.

Shields Says Tomorrow's $50,000 Race at St. Louis Is a Gift to Hermis.

St. Louis, Mo., June 23.—[Special.]—The west's racing champion of last year, Dick Welles, and the eastern star, Hermis, will not meet on Saturday in the World's Fair handicap, according to representatives of the Respass stable.

Gold Heels is broken down, according to the lessee of his services, T. P. Hayes, and will only start in case the track is soft. McChesney's chances of going to the post in the $50,000 stake are infinitesimal. Hermis, Sambo, Colonial Girl, Witful, McGee, Bernays, Six Shooter, and Old Stone will go to the post in the big event.

"The race is a cinch for Hermis," said Thomas Shields, "and it would be throwing away $50,000 for us not to send the son of Hermence to the post, no matter what the going may be. There is nothing in the field that can make the great horse move."

When it was rumored that McChesney, Gold Heels, and Dick Welles were probably out of it there was a tendency to hand over the race to Hermis. This was accentuated when it was learned that Ed Ballard, partner of Plunger Joe Yeager, had bet $2,000 at 2 to 1 on Hermis.

As against this Pat Cavill and T. P. Hayes spent the afternoon making bets at even money that Hermis would not even show.

Moharib, the crack from the Schorr stable, which arrived yesterday, was breezed a mile in 1:44.

Colonial Girl is the sweet one to all St. Louis horsemen. Sambo, almost despised by the outsiders, is believed by the Civill stable to have a royal chance. It was stated today that Corrigan's McGee would be a sure starter.

The probable starters are as follows: Hermis [Redfern], 130 pounds; Six Shooter [T. Knight], 112; Witful [Fuller], 108; Judge Himes [H. Booker], 105; Moharib [Aubuchon], 103; McGee [Lawrence], 101; Flying Torpedo [Higgins], 101; Bernays [Carmack], 100; Sambo [D. Austin], 97; Colonial Girl [Pollak], 97; Old Stone [C. Howell], 92.

TODAY'S HIGH SCHOOL MEET.

Cook County Track and Field Championships to Be Decided at Marshall Field.

The long track season of the local "prep" school athletes, which began last winter with the indoor meets in the Bartlett gymnasium, will be brought to a close this afternoon with the Cook county interscholastic meet at Marshall field. All the Chicago high schools are entered.

The Hyde Park team is regarded among the scholastic dopesters as a slight favorite over North Division, the indoor champions. The meet bids fair to resolve itself into a dual contest between these two, with Oak Park and Englewood as the only "outsiders" of any importance. Capt. Comstock's men are expected to win 35 points, while North Division is counted on for about 30.

For Hyde Park Comstock is depended on to win points in the fifty yard dash, the quarter, half, low hurdles, and relay race. Brunjes is expected to score in the high and broad jump, Coyle in the high jump. May in the low hurdles, Parker in the high hurdles, Taylor in the quarter, and Barker in all three sprints.

North Division is strong in both hurdles and the weight events. Capt. Steffen should have no difficulty over the high sticks, and has a good chance to win the low hurdles. He is also counted on for points in two of the dashes. Graham should win the hammer, with his team mate, Rennacker, second. In the shot put Graham will have a strong rival in Maddigan of Englewood. Rennacker has a good show for first place in the discus.

Illness in Cornell Boat.

Poughkeepsie, N. Y., June 23.—Captain Coffin was out of the Cornell varsity crew at practice this evening on account of sickness. He and Stroke Nutting have both had colds for several days and today the former developed malarial symptoms, which, however, did not deter him from rowing this forenoon, when the crew went over the course on a hard row. This afternoon Coffin had a chill and Coach Courtney instructed him not to go out. Coffin expects to resume his seat soon. Edward Foote, stroke of the varsity four, took his place, and Folger, a substitute, stroked four. Forbes, No. 3 in the varsity four, who is in Vassar hospital with blood poisoning, was able to sit up today for the first time. It is practically settled that George Foote, No. 5 in the varsity, will row in both the varsity and four races, taking Forbes' place in the latter. The Wisconsin crews are expected here tomorrow.

CHICAGO RACING RESUMES TODAY.

Hawthorne Track Begins Ten Days' Session with Old Officials.

TALK OF A RACING BILL.

President Young of Washington Park Believes Such a Measure Possible.

Racing, which came to an abrupt end at the Washington park last last Tuesday, will be resumed at Hawthorne today with six races up for contention.

According to the schedule arranged by the Western Jockey club at its meeting on Wednesday Hawthorne's meeting will run to July 5, ten days, after which Harlem will break into the game for the same number of days.

The officials of these tracks take but little stock in the rumors circulated yesterday that a movement is on foot to stop racing, and say they will do business on the same lines as heretofore. Neither did they place much reliance in the reports that the Washington park club officials were making efforts to secure a racing bill.

Lawrence A. Young, president of the club and also president of the Western Jockey club, yesterday said: "An effort was made to get a racing bill through the last legislature and another effort probably will be made this winter. If there is a racing bill racing will be continued at Washington park."

Secretary Nathanson of the Harlem Jockey club favors a bill and thought the time ripe, since the Washington park troubles, to secure it.

The officials at the Hawthorne meeting will be the same as officiated at the recent spring meeting.

HANDICAP WON BY GRAZIALLO.

Captures June Event at Sheepshead Bay from Good Field—Drake Drops $20,000 on Savable.

New York, June 23.—[Special.]—Racing of an unusually high order delighted a crowd of more than 20,000 people at Sheepshead bay today. The real racing feature was the second June handicap at Sheepshead Bay at a mile, with thirteen starters.

It was an open betting affair, in which John A. Drake's Savable and J. E. Follansbee's Roehampton closed equal favorites at 4 to 1. E. R. Thomas' Stalwart was well played at 5 to 1, with 6 to 1 against M. Corbett's Hurst Park, which carried a crushing impost of 130 pounds. Salvatolla, Proper, Graziallo, and Ingold all had support, too. Graziallo went up to 12 to 1, the talent evidently forgetting he ran second to Delhi in the Belmont and second to Fort Hunter in the Buffalo Derby. He gave scale weight to everything in the race except Hurst Park and Savable.

Roehampton and Savable went out in front at the start and set a killing pace. Roehampton began to stop on the far turn and blew up completely in the middle of the stretch. Martin held Graziallo well in check behind Ingold, which was third, but when the former got his head he ran over both Ingold and Savable as if they were standing still. Martin eased Graziallo up at the end, where he won by three lengths in the remarkably fast time of 1:38⅘, a second slower than the best record for the track. Savable stood a drive to get the place by a length from Ingold, with Hurst Park, coming from away back, a head behind. Proper was evidently stopped by the weight.

John A. Drake and his associates lost a heavy wager. They figured Savable had the handicap at his mercy. Their commissioners placed almost $20,000 on the Salvator colt, backing him down from 8 to 4 to 1. Summaries:

First race, 11-16 mile—Voladay, 116 pounds [Phillips], 3 to 1, won; Hot Shot, 112 [Hicks], 7 to 2, second; Phoebus, 112 [Martin], 18 to 5, third. Time, 1:08. Asterisk, Jerry C. Lochinvar, Bill Bailey II., Crusher, and Red Reynard ran.

Second race, 1¼ miles—Reveille, 101 pounds [Martin], 5 to 1, won; Bobadil, 105 [O'Neill], 5 to 2, second; Agnes D., 113 [Miles], 30 to 1, third. Time, 1:55. Seymour, Naughty Lady, Glisten, Allan, Stonewall, Dr. Chapin, Sir Shep, Conkling, Latchet, Oradell, and Alack ran.

Third race, the Rockaway cup, steeplechase, about 2½ miles—White Crest, 146 pounds [E. Heider], 3 to 1, won; Bonfire, 132 [G. B. Wilson], 30 to 1, second; Tom Cogan, 145 [G. Green], 7 to 5, third. Time, 5:14 2-5. Gottnagallon, Agio, Twilight, Pure Pepper, Wace, and Ailanthus ran. Princess Chic fell.

Fourth race, the Sheepshead Bay handicap, 1 mile—Graziallo, 104 pounds [Martin], 12 to 1, won; Savable, 124 [O'Neill], 4 to 1, second; Ingold, 99 [E. Walsh], 15 to 1, third. Time, 1:38 4-5. Hurst Park, Proper, Salvatella, Lady Prudence, Stalwart, Roehampton, Pentaur, Dick Bernard, and Orthodox ran.

Fifth race, ¾ mile—Winchester, 94 pounds [Coleman], 5 to 1, won; Little Buttercup, [Crimmins], 9 to 6, second; Fleur de Marie, 96 [Travers], 10 to 1, third. Time, 1:14. Torchello, Flying Redskin, Dance Music, Prince Joseph, Raiment, Harpoon, Beniala, Hildebrand, Only One, Knight of Weston, Cashier, Maggie Stroup, and Ida Stack ran.

Sixth race, handicap, 13-16 mile—Sweet Alice, 98 pounds [Hildebrand], 3 to 1, won; Montreson, 113 [O'Neil], 16 to 5, second; John F., 111 [E. Walsh], 8 to 1, third. Time, 1:19 1-5. Gold Dome, Norbury, New York, Grand Opera, Niskayuna, Old England, and Stamping Ground ran.

TIE TEAM MATCH AT GOLF

HINSDALE AND RIVERSIDE PLAY WITH HONORS ALL EVEN.

First of the Suburban Championship Contests Is Held at the Riverside Course—Strong Southwest Breeze Fails to Bother the Players Materially—Miss Carpenter and Warren K. Woods Win at Exmoor—Other Events on the Local Links.

Hinsdale and Riverside golfers met yesterday afternoon at the Riverside course in the first team match of the suburban championship, and when the last pair holed out the score was a tie at 23. Scoring was on the point system, one for each nine holes, a third for the whole match, and the outcome would indicate that this method is an improvement over the old.

A strong southwest breeze sweeping over the course did not worry the majority of the contestants. Although beaten by E. B. Bliss, the best player on the local team, J. P. Gardner, the Hinsdale veteran, made the south paw player get around in 86 in order to capture his three points. Bliss' card was as follows:

Out	5	4	8	5	3	6	4	5	5	—45
In	5	4	7	5	4	5	3	5	3	—41—86

Herbert Templeton took two points from H. K. Allen, but A. P. Bowen, Bert Havemeyer, and E. Waller, by their joint efforts, added nine points to the credit of Riverside. Dr. Heywood took two points from Ralph Hoagland and young Gerald Bowen did good work against A. R. Robinson. Summary:

Riverside.	Points.	Hinsdale.	Points.
E. B. Bliss	3	J. P. Gardner	0

Sixteen pairs started in the first of the monthly open mixed foursomes at Exmoor, Miss J. A. Carpenter of Westward Ho and Warren K. Woods of Homewood winning with a net count of ninety-nine. Their gross count of ninety-four was the best of the afternoon. Summary:

	Gross.	Hdcp.	Net.
Miss J. Anna Carpenter, Westward Ho, and Warren K. Wood, Homewood	94	Pl. 5	99
Miss E. Young and A. R. Gates, Calumet	105	3	102
Miss C. Lewis and A. W. Sherman, Evanston	120	16	104

Judging from the results of yesterday and several previous events there does not seem to be much interest in the women's golf at the Glen View club. In the first round for the Bartlett cup scheduled for the afternoon there were only two matches, the other two being won by default. Summary:

Mrs. P. Manchester won from Miss M. Lewis, 4 up and 3.

Miss J. Durell won from Miss Janet Hibbard by default.

Miss Keyes won from Miss Knapp by default.

Miss M. Bokum won from Mrs. Lapham, 5 and 3.

Semi-final matches for the Hill cup were played yesterday at Westward Ho, C. H. Burras defeating T. H. Gale, 1 up, and Jacob Mortenson defeating Dr. Beebe, 2 up and 1.

Secretary Congdon of the Glen View club announced yesterday that the president's cup presented by President F. S. James would be played for July 4. The contest will be at 36 holes, medal play, handicaps being limited to 18 strokes on each round. In addition to this competition children's day will be celebrated and a lengthy program of amusements provided. The club has sent notices to its members asking if their services will be available as scorers in the national open championship on July 8 and 9.

Judge Wins the Feature.

Buffalo, N. Y., June 23.—A big crowd at Kenilworth saw Judge win the Whirlpool handicap by an unexpected exhibit of sprinting ability. Results:

First race, 1 mile—Last Knight, 6 to 1; Cantaloupe, 4 to 1; Benckhart, 2 to 1. Time, 1:42.

Second race, 4½ furlongs—Conjuress, 3 to 1; Belknap, 2 to 1; Dictator, 3 to 1. Time, :56 3-5.

Third race, 6 furlongs—Paget, 3 to 1; Alibert, 4 to 1; Pittacus, 10 to 1. Time, 1:16.

Fourth race, 6 furlongs, Whirlpool handicap—Judge, 5 to 2; Reticent, 10 to 1; Easy Street, 5 to 1. Time, 1:14.

Fifth race, 5 furlongs—Losiola, 3 to 1; Maggie Mackey, 6 to 5; Miss Kart, 5 to 2. Time, 1:02 4-5.

Sixth race, 1 mile and 70 yards—Spring, 2 to 5; Albula, 5 to 2; Merriment, 6 to 1. Time, 1:45½.

Notes of the Tracks.

H. T. Griffin has gone to New York.

B. J. Johnson recently returned from England and is in New York.

Sam Hildreth will start either Witfull or McChesney, and probably both, in the $50,000 World's Fair handicap to be run tomorrow. Both horses have been shipped to the Mound city, and Jockey Milton Henry, who will ride one of the horses, left for St. Louis last night.

Women's Tennis Matches.

Philadelphia, Pa., June 23.—Miss May Sutton of Pasadena, Cal., and Miss Helen Homans of the West Side Tennis club of New York won their matches in the semi-final round of the woman's tennis tournament. Miss C. B. Neely of Chicago and Miss Moore beat Misses Stotesbury and Potter, 6—0, 6—1, in women's doubles. Miss Neely and H. F. Allen were beaten by Miss Moore and W. C. Grant in mixed doubles, 7—5, 6—4.

Tennis at Edgewater Tomorrow.

The second annual tennis tournament of the Edgewater Tennis and Skating club will begin tomorrow afternoon at Granville and Winthrop avenues at 2 o'clock. Entries can be made to P. G. Beach, 2468 Kenmore avenue, Edgewater.

GUPHILL IS THE BEST SHOT

MINNESOTA MAN WINS GRAND AMERICAN HANDICAP.

In a Remarkable Finish with William Randal of Telluride, Colo., Which Requires a Third Shootoff of a Tie, the Gopher Marksman Finally Lands First Prize—Score of Ninety-six Beats All Previous Records Made in the Annual Event.

Indianapolis, Ind., June 23.—With a thousand enthusiasts crowded about the handicap lines, and in probably the most exciting finish ever witnessed in a Grand American tournament, Richard L. Guphill of Aitkin, Minn., handicapped at nineteen yards, won the Grand American trophy, a silver tea service, and $1,000 in cash in the third shootoff of a tie with William Randal of Telluride, Colo., at 96 breaks.

A brisk wind offered the greatest natural handicap. Late in the afternoon the contestants began to string out, and it became evident Guphill and Randal were the probable winners. Guphill finished first with a score of 96. Randal then faced the traps, breaking 19 straight targets and tieing the score.

In the first shootoff, at twenty targets, the result was a tie at 17 breaks. The second resulted in another tie at 17 breaks. In the third the score stood: Guphill, 19; Randall, 15.

Immediately Guphill was lifted to the shoulders of an excited crowd and carried off the field.

The score of 96 for the Grand American handicap is greater by two than the previous record, which was made at Kansas City last year.

SPRITE CAPTURES FIRST RACE.

Dr. Pinckard's Boat Wins Initial Contest for the McGuire Cup at the Columbia Yacht Club.

Sprite, owned and sailed by Dr. C. P. Pinckard of the Chicago Yacht club, won yesterday the first of the series of the Columbia Yacht club's special races of the twenty-one footers for the W. A. McGuire cup. Yo San was put out of the contest through the breaking of the throat halyards of the Price yacht just before the start, and La Rita was disqualified for starting prematurely. The race was sailed in a steady wind of fifteen miles an hour from due south, and the course was thirteen miles from the gap to the Lake View and Carter Harrison cribs and back to the starting point.

Hoosier assumed the lead at the start, but relinquished it to Sprite at the beginning of the second leg, the Chicago club entry doing fine windward work and decisively outpointing and outfooting Hoosier and La Rita. The latter went over the course and finished second, but was beaten all the way by Sprite. Hoosier did fine work on the run to the end of the first leg, but failed in sailing to windward. Yo San, after temporary repairs, started eighteen minutes after the others, and sailed a commendable race.

The second race of the series will be sailed this afternoon. The cup is to go to the yacht winning three races. Summary:

Yacht.	Start.	Finish.
Sprite	2:30	4:56:09
Hoosier	2:30	5:06:09
Yo San	2:30	5:16:09
La Rita	2:30	Disqualified

The judges were E. S. Osborne, Oscar Daniels, and C. E. Soule Jr.

STOCKS EXTREMELY DULL

PRICES FOR MOST PART ABOVE PREVIOUS DAY'S LEVEL.

Failure of Amalgamated Copper to Respond to Montana Court Decision Is Regarded Significant—Some Firmness to Trading in Wheat Attributed to Damage to Foreign Crops—Light Trading in Bonds—Money Rates Still Easy.

[BY A SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT.]

NEW YORK, June 23.—[Special.]—The stock market was excessively dull today. General specialties reacted, but for the most part the small changes in prices were above the previous day's level. Owing to the importance attached to the iron and steel trades as an index of general trade United States Steel preferred has an influential sympathetic effect on the whole market. Its immobility, in contrast to its recent advance, communicated a tendency to the whole market. Amalgamated Copper's unresponsiveness to news of a favorable judicial decision in Montana was also regarded as highly significant.

Increases in May net earnings by reason of reduced operating expenses for the Wabash and Central of New Jersey reevaled a tendency from which much is hoped towards reassurance of capital. Some firmness in the wheat market was attributed rather to reports of damage to foreign harvest than to any harm to our own crops, from which the news was favorable.

The newly relisted American Steel Foundry stocks were dealt in at quotations considerably below the last prices for them before they were stricken from the stock exchange list. Changes on the day were insignificant. Bonds were firm. Total sales, par value, $2,730,000. United States bonds were unchanged on call.

Close: Money on call extremely easy, ½@1¼ per cent; lowest, ½; ruling rates 1¼; last loan, 1; closing, bid 1; offered at 1¼. Time loans easy and dull; 60 and 90 days, 2@2¼ per cent; six months, 3@3¼. Prime mercantile paper, 3½@4 per cent. Sterling exchange heavy, with actual business in bankers' bills at 487.25@487.30 for demand and 485.25@485.35 for sixty day bills. Posted rates, 486 and 488. Commercial bills, 485⅛@485⅜. Bar silver, 55⅞c. Mexican dollars, 46c. Government bonds steady. Railroad bonds firm.

IN THE BOSTON MONEY MARKET.

BOSTON, Mass., June 23.—[Special.]—The local market today was broad and fairly active, with specialties extraordinarily active. There was some hesitancy in prices at times, but the undertone was altogether bullish. New York bought Amalgamated up to 50⅝ here, though it was considered strange that Amalgamated failed to reflect the Montana court decision in its favor. There was good buying of low priced coppers. Call loans, 2@2½ per cent; time loans, collateral, 3@4 per cent; time loans, mercantile paper, 3½@4 per cent; clearing house loans, 2 per cent.

IN THE FOREIGN MONEY MARKET.

LONDON, June 23.—Money was in keen demand and rates were firmer. Discounts were sympathetically harder, being aided by the weakness of continental exchanges. Trading on the stock exchange was quiet and dull, the nearness of the settlement minimizing operations. Consols dropped, as a result of the uncertain outlook of money, but recovered at the close. Home rails were easier, in spite of favorable traffic returns. Americans opened steady, and some demand caused occasional slight improvement. United States Steel was the feature. The market closed quiet. Canadian Pacifics were buoyant. Foreigners were quiet. Imperial Japanese 6s of 1904 were quoted at 96¼. Closing stocks:

NEWS OF THE INSURANCE WORLD.

EDITED BY C. M. CARTWRIGHT.

Eastern News Telegraphed from New York Journal of Commerce and Commercial Bulletin.

OBJECT TO RULING ON AUTOS.

Agents Say Owners Can Get Cut Rate Insurance Outside of Chicago, Despite Association.

Considerable opposition has arisen to the action of the officials of the Chicago Underwriters' association in prohibiting the writing of automobile insurance according to the rates and forms used by the Boston Insurance company and London Lloyds. The assertion is made that automobile insurance will all be written outside of Chicago or through brokers who are not members of the Underwriters' association. Some of the casualty firms already are writing this form of insurance in the two companies named. A man owning an automobile can send to any other city and secure insurance on his machine at lower rates and more liberal forms that through members of the Underwriters' association. Some of the agents will head a movement to secure revocation of this ruling holding them to strict compliance with the local regulations.

The hearing in the cases of S. W. Jacobs and E. A. Shanklin, arrested by the postal authorities on a charge of sending literature of "wildcat" companies through the mails, will come up this morning before United States Commissioner Foote. E. A. Shanklin finally has secured bonds and been released from jail. He has employed Moritz Rosenthal as his attorney and declares he will make a strong defense. The postoffice inspectors say they probably will not make further arrests until a decision has been reached in the two cases pending.

The subcommittees of the governing committee of the Western Union, which was appointed to consider the question of charge for conflagration hazard, met yesterday to discuss the subject. Some members want an expert appointed to take charge of this work. The plan is to determine defects in fire protection, water supply, and general conditions of a town and ascertain if they can be remedied or modified. After improvements have been made the question then will arise whether sufficient conflagration hazard exists to warrant an increased rate. If no improvements are made it will be decided what extra charge to impose.

The Illinois Field club has approved the country elevator schedule adopted by the Illinois state board, but suggests that steam elevators be included in the schedule. As Supt. Simonson of the governing committee of the union has prepared a schedule for country elevators, which will be urged for adoption by the governing committee, complications are liable to result, especially if the field club refuses to adopt the Simonson schedule.

After much controversy and friction the loss on the Great China Tea company, 27 Vine street, Cincinnati, O., has been compromised. The assured claimed a total loss on the valuation of $121,068, with $90,000 insurance. A settlement has been made on a basis of $71,500 loss.

Manager W. J. Littlejohn of the North British and Mercantile, chairman of the large cities' committee of the Western Union, has called a meeting of managers and officials of representative companies, regardless of affiliation, to be held in the assembly room of the Chicago Underwriters' association next Tuesday. The subject of reduction in expenses in "excepted cities" will be discussed, the aim being to secure a platform on which a large majority of the companies can stand. There are diversified interests in the "excepted cities" and no action will be taken unless companies writing 90 per cent of the premium agree. If it is found that the companies can meet on common ground the plan will be submitted to a general meeting.

It is stated that the Atlas Mutual Fire of Des Moines, which will reorganize upon a stock basis, has decided to interest capital sufficiently in the enterprise to make it a million dollar company, capital full paid up, with $500,000 surplus. Those interested state that the company will extend its operations as soon as possible to Illinois, Minnesota, Wisconsin, South Dakota, Nebraska, and later enter other states.

Suits against twenty insurance companies for $43,000 were begun in the Superior court by Tyble Bros. & Co., leather manufacturers. They were brought by Leon and Andrew Tyble, proprietors of the concern, who assert the insurance is due to them for the partial destruction of their building at 29 to 39 Erie street a year ago. The Reliance, Niagara, Svea Fire and Life, Thuringia, and many other companies are defendants.

The recent losses at Mattoon, Ill., are causing considerable apprehension, as it is thought that an incendiary is at work in that city. Charles P. Engelmann, the adjuster who has been at Mattoon, called attention to four fires that occurred within forty-eight hours, causing an aggregate loss of $45,000. In addition, a number of small frame buildings were destroyed and others damaged. Mr. Engelmann declares these fires all were of incendiary origin, and thinks the conditions are serious enough to warrant an investigation and either advance rates or retire from the city.

NEWS NOTES FROM NEW YORK.

State Commissioner Appoints as Deputy W. H. Taylor of San Francisco, California.

New York, June 23.—[Special.]—E. Myron Wolf, state insurance commissioner, has appointed as his deputy W. H. Taylor of San Francisco, vice M. M. Rohrer, deceased.

It was learned today that a large number of inquiries has been received at the offices of the Atlas and Manchester Assurance companies from agents of both companies. The Atlas has decided to retain the value of the Manchester's agency plant for itself. There is no question as to the disposal of the Manchester or Atlas agency plans to outsiders under consideration. Agreeable to this decision personal letters have been sent to a large number of Manchester agents advising them of the intention of the Atlas to continue the agency with them after the legal formalities have been consummated. Meanwhile the Manchester agents transact business as usual. There has been no circular sent agents of either company.

STATE SUPREME COURT HOLDS MEASURE IS CONSTITUTIONAL.

Attacked on Ground That Governor Had Inserted Word "Willfully" in Measure After It Had Been Signed by Other Illinois Officials—Jury Bribers Must Serve Sentences—Saloon Loses Fight for License—Cicero Wins Water Case.

Attorney Levy Mayer's attack upon the state convict labor law, made in the Partello case, failed yesterday in the state Supreme court. Mr. Partello lost a $40,000 appropriation.

The constitutionality of the measure was assailed on the ground that the word "willfully" had been written in the bill by Gov. Yates, and that the speaker of the house and president of the senate had signed it before the addition of the word.

Oral testimony will be necessary to prove that the word was improperly written in the bill, and the decision holds such testimony is incompetent. It is admitted by the plaintiff that the record of house and senate, as contained in the journals of both, will show that the word "willfully" should have been contained in the copy presented to the governor.

Partello Loses $40,000 Plum.

Incidentally the governor, it is held, may "write his name upon a bill fifty times within the veto period," but if he or any of his clerks deposited the Partello bill with the secretary of state he had no power later to veto it. Partello contended the governor did sign the bill and then withdrew and vetoed it, but this was not proved.

The Circuit court of Sangamon county is upheld in refusing to issue a writ compelling the auditor to draw a warrant for the $40,000 for Mr. Partello.

Jury Bribers Must Serve Terms.

William J. Gallagher and John O'Donnell, convicted of jury bribing in Cook county, must serve their sentences. Justice Wilkin wrote a lengthy opinion dealing with many objections raised by attorneys for the defendants, but declared none of them sufficient to warrant a new trial. Justice Scott dissents from the opinion, holding that "improper and intemperate language" used by the attorney making the closing speech warrants a new trial.

Gallagher and O'Donnell were indicted with five others. All the rest have paid fines, except P. H. O'Donnell and James T. Brady, who were granted new trials.

Wins Fight Against Saloon.

The Hyde Park Protective association won its fight against the saloon of Fritz Griesbach, 5014 Cottage Grove avenue.

The people held that a minor was not qualified to sign frontage petitions, and this was sustained. The court also held that where property is held by tenants in common any number signing such a petition should be regarded as qualified petitioners for the proportionate part owned by themselves. The people opposed the latter assertion.

Chicago Defeated by Cicero.

The city of Chicago must furnish water at the boundary line at Cicero to supply all the consumers in the town at no greater price than is charged to consumers in Chicago. The court readopted its opinion handed down at the December term in 1903.

The court also held the state cannot take part as a defendant or cross petitioner in proceedings brought by the sanitary district of Chicago to condemn land along the river from Madison to Randolph streets.

Upholds Manufacturing Exemption.

Another decision upheld the constitutionality of the act exempting from assessment by the board of equalization the capital stock of corporations organized for purely manufacturing purposes and for newspaper publishing, stock breeding, and the mining and sale of coal. The Hub brought the suit against County Treasurer Hanberg to avoid payment of a $40,000 assessment on its intangible property. It alleged discrimination, but lost.

Other Supreme Court Decisions.

A court of equity cannot entertain a bill by a life insurance company, against a beneficiary, asking cancellation because of untrue statements in the application. The Supreme court holds that after the death of the insured the company has adequate defense at law. The case was that of the Des Moines Life Insurance company against Bertha Seifert.

In the case of Gov. Yates against the Chicago Title and Trust company it was held that the company should pay the state $6,608, the face of certain bonds and the accrued interest. These bonds were found in Spalding's Globe Savings bank, which failed, and the University of Illinois, of which Spalding was the defaulting treasurer, claimed them.

Railroad corporations must pay the same fees upon incorporating that are exacted from other concerns. The decision was given in the case of the Belleville and Haskoutah railway, which sought to pay $2 instead of $347.

A County court may appoint election commissioners and punish them for misbehavior in office. The decision was given in the appeal of Harry B. Sherman and others. Sherman was imprisoned by the Cook county court.

The value of the fee occupied by the Columbia Theater Amusement company was found to be $4,000 for a term of ten years from March 1, 1901. The Appellate court made it $4,310.

WHEELER ON THE STAND A WITNESS FOR HIMSELF.

Tells Trial Board About Arresting Women on West Madison Street—Others Find District Much Improved.

Inspector Wheeler was allowed to testify in his own behalf last evening at his hearing before the trial board on a charge of neglect of duty. The inspector, who was cross-examined by Walter S. Lee of the anti-crime committee, which directed the prosecution, declared that more arrests of women had been made in his district during the two months before the investigation of the association than there had been in the two months after the charges were brought against him.

Thomas J. Johnson, prosecuting attorney at the Desplaines street station, testified that when Inspector Wheeler went to the district Madison street was a hotbed of vice, but since he has been there almost every morning a dozen women have been fined from $10 to $100, and at present the district is in a comparatively clean condition.

Robert F. Edgecomb, James F. Arnold, Ald. Badenoch, W. J. Moxley, Andrew Graham, and Fred Rentz testified that the district was much improved since Inspector Wheeler had been in charge.

The hearing was continued to the evening of June 28.

TRAGEDIES FOLLOW THE STRIKE

One Deported Miner at Denver, Colo., Curses Gov. Peabody and Inhales Gas—Three Others Are Dead.

Denver, Colo., June 23.—[Special.]—Four tragedies in a week mark the progress of the Western Federation of Miners' strike in this city to which most of the deported men have found their way.

Emil L. Johnson killed himself last night by inhaling gas. Before retiring he invoked a curse on Gov. Peabody for separating him from his wife and babies who are starving at Cripple Creek, owing to the action of the military in shutting off union relief. Johnson had apealed for permission to return, but it was peremptorily refused.

Another man with a miner's card in his pocket was murdered last night under a viaduct, where he had sought shelter because he lacked funds to rent a room.

Paul Menapace, a rich Austrian of Trinidad, who had been deported as a strike sympathizer, was buried today. The doctors say he died of heart failure. His family says he died of a broken heart.

On Monday Nels Olsen, holder of a Victor miner's union card No. 42, died in a state of mental aberation, caused by his experience with the military in the bull pen at Victor.

INDICTED FOR COUNTERFEITING

Marcus Grahan, Arrested at St. Louis Racetrack, Gives Up Nearly $20,000 in Spurious Certificates.

St. Louis, Mo., June 23.—Marcus Grahan, arrested two weeks ago at Delmar racetrack with counterfeit bills on his person, today confessed to Chief Wilkie of the federal secret service and was indicted by the federal grand jury on the charge of counterfeiting. Grahan surrendered $12,400 in counterfeit $100 gold certificates, making nearly $20,000 of the spurious issue recovered.

Army Officer Is Missing.

Leavenworth, Kas., June 23.—[Special.]—First Lieut. William H. Plummer, Sixth infantry, has been missing from his quarters at Fort Leavenworth since last Friday. Officers fear that he has committed suicide or deserted. Lieut. Plummer was an actor before he started life as a volunteer officer in a Massachusetts regiment in 1898.

WINS $82,000 FROM THE CITY.

Adam Wolf, Former Treasurer, Upheld in Retaining His Fees Under Percentage System.

Under a State Supreme court decision handed down yesterday, former City Treasurer Adam Wolf, now one of the board of assessors, has a legal right to $82,000, 85 per cent of the interest on money deposited with him during Mayor Swift's administration. This decision disposes of a suit started by the city when Charles Thornton was corporation counsel.

The city's contention was that its ordinance, providing 60 per cent of the interest as compensation for the treasurer was invalid, on the ground that the council could pay the treasurer nothing but a salary. It also was contended that the state law, under which Treasurer Wolf collected 25 per cent additional, was unconstitutional.

Mr. Wolf retained $82,000 of the $97,000 which he received as interest. He also paid the expenses of his office, which his attorney asserts were $40,000 for the two years.

City Treasurer Hummel by ordinance is entitled to but 25 per cent of the interest on deposits.

When Mayor Harrison heard the court had decided the Lawrence avenue day labor case against the city, he declared a change in the law should be sought by the city, to enable it to carry on public works by the day labor system.

Big Gathering of Endeavorites.

Fort Wayne, Ind., June 23.—[Special.]—Nearly 1,000 members of the Indiana Christian Endeavor union are in the city to attend the seventeenth annual convention of the organization. A short business session was held this afternoon and tonight the first meeting was held in the First Presbyterian church.

Floral Parade of Wisconsin Elks.

Fond du Lac, Wis., June 23.—[Special.]—The feature of the Elks' convention today was the parade and floral pageant more than a mile in length. Large delegations were in line from Madison, Milwaukee, Oshkosh, Green Bay, and Janesville. The first prize in the floral parade was awarded Miss Bessie Marie Mayham.

Mulhall Pleads Not Guilty.

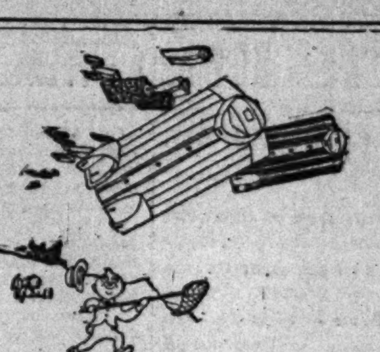

St. Louis, Mo., June 23.—Zach Mulhall, who shot and wounded three men Saturday night on the Pike in the world's fair, pleaded not guilty before Judge Moore today in answer to two warrants charging assault to kill. He gave bonds for $25,800, and his trial was set for July 18.

NEWS OF THE RAILWAYS.

CHEAP EXCURSION RATES TO ST. LOUIS FOR JULY.

Executive Committee Members Favor Continuing $6 Round Trip Fares to Exposition—Delay Action Until General Meeting of Lines in West and Southwest—Even Lower Tariffs May Be Made Later, if Business Does Not Improve—Hawley Resigns.

The executive committee of the Western Passenger association yesterday declared itself unanimously in favor of running coach excursions to the St. Louis exposition during July at the same low rates as are given this month. The members decided, however, to take no action until next Tuesday, when a general meeting of all the lines in the west and southwest will be held in St. Louis.

The $6 round trip excursion rate between Chicago and St. Louis undoubtedly will be in effect during July, and unless exposition business improves materially during the month it is probable that still lower excursion rates will be made later.

Scalping in Kansas City.

The committee also considered complaints that the ordinance passed by Kansas City, owing to which the railroads granted stopover privileges at that city, is not being properly enforced, and that scalpers there are manipulating the tickets. Chairman MacLeod was instructed to request the Kansas City people to procure injunctions.

The general passenger agents of the Chicago-St. Paul lines will meet soon to consider ways for preventing demoralization in passenger rates between Chicago and the Twin Cities.

A rate of a fare and one-fifth for the round trip was recommended for the fall merchants' meetings at Chicago and other western business centers.

Hawley Leaves Southern Pacific.

Edwin Hawley, head the Hawley syndicate, which controls the Minneapolis and St Louis and Iowa Central and is interested in a number of other western roads, has retired from the executive committee and directorate of the Southern Pacific railroad company.

The resignation is said to be due to a difference with the Harriman interests over the management of the Chicago and Alton. Mr. Hawley for years was one of the trusted agents of Collis P. Huntington in the development of the Southern Pacific.

Notes of Traffic Affairs.

The executive committee of the New York Central elected Dwight W. Pardee as secretary of the company, to succeed the late Edwin D. Worcester. The Michigan Central committee elected E. V. Rossiter vice president and Mr. Pardee secretary.

Officials of the Burlington and Great Northern systems say the line from Sioux City to Omaha, surveyed a year ago, will be constructed this year by the Burlington, to connect the two Hill roads.

The Union Pacific has placed an order with the Illinois Steel company for 25,000 tons of steel rails, at a price said to be $28 a ton in Chicago.

New Chicago-Milwaukee Trolley.

Madison, Wis., June 23.—Articles of incorporation have been filed for a new electric line between Chicago and Milwaukee. It is named the Chicago and Milwaukee Electric railroad company and the capital stock is $300,000. The directors and incorporating stockholders are all Chicago men, Albert C. Frost being the controlling stockholder.

DUAL SHOOTING IN A HOTEL.

Kansas City Man Fatally Wounds Young Woman and Kills Himself at St. Louis.

St. Louis, Mo., June 23.—Nelson P. Benson, age 38, of 3233 Warwick boulevard, Kansas City, today fatally wounded Miss Mary Dove, age 35, and then shot himself behind the ear, dying on the way to the city dispensary. Miss Dove, a beautiful young woman, is in a critical condition at the city hospital. The shooting occurred in the Illinois hotel, 510 Lucas avenue, where the couple had met by agreement and registered as Mr. and Mrs. Dennis Cummings.

Mary Dove's last address was 2844 Franklin avenue. In Benson's pockets were found cards on which were a dozen different addresses in different parts of the country, where she had staid and where he evidently had followed her.

Benson's widow says Miss Dove had been writing letters and signing herself as Benson's wife.

CHILD HELD FOR FUNERAL BILL.

Herman Heitmiller Says Baby Daughter Is Kept by Its Grandmother as Security for Debt.

St. Paul, Minn., June 23.—[Special.]—Herman Heitmiller charged that his year old daughter is held as security for the payment of his wife's funeral expenses in habeas corpus proceedings today.

Mrs. Heitmiller died a week ago at the home of her mother, Mrs. Becker. The child, Lydia, is living with her grandmother, who, Heitmiller says, refuses to give her up until the funeral expenses are paid.

Mrs. Becker says Heitmiller did not care for his wife or child and that the child would not be well cared for by its father.

BRIDAL PARTY IN A RUNAWAY.

Son of James J. Hill Trades Places with Driver and Balky Horse Does the Rest.

St. Paul, Minn., June 23.—[Special.]—Walter L. Lindeke and his bride of a half hour were in a runaway today, and only chance prevented a tragedy. The bridal party was about to leave for the depot when Walter Hill, son of James J. Hill, persuaded the driver of the carriage the bride and groom were to use to lend him his coat and high hat, as he desired to drive them to the depot. The driver warned him that one of the horses was balky. Almost as soon as Hill took the reins the horses ran away, but Hill avoided a steep hill and no damage resulted.

ASK 'L' ROAD TRANSFERS.

ALDERMEN FRAME ORDINANCE WITH THIS PROVISION.

In Return for Various Concessions Wanted by the Companies the Transportation Committee Insists on One Fare Across City—Representatives of Lines Argue Against the Demand, but Fail to Convince Members of Council.

Lengthened loop platforms and perfected ordinances, in consideration of transfers from one road to another was the proposition made to the elevated roads by the committee on local transportation yesterday. The railway men fought it bitterly, declaring that universal transfers on "L" roads would ruin their revenues, but the committee, by a vote of 7 to 2, approved the ordinance.

"It will take half an hour instead of fifteen minutes to get around the loop if we give transfers from one road to another," declared E. C. Noe for the Metropolitan. "People would take advantage of them by riding part way around on one road and then taking their real train on another, to avoid making the entire tour."

"It would mean a trip of twenty-eight miles for 5 cents," objected Noble B. Judah for the south side company.

"It would be an experiment in which the roads would be the only ones taking chances," said Clarence Knight for the Northwestern.

The committee, however, put the transfer section into the ordinance. What is offered in return is an ordinance making valid the "Swift agreement" of 1897, under which the Van Buren street side of the Union Loop was built. The validity of this franchise has always been questioned, and it was recently attacked in a cross bill in the injunction suit regarding longer platforms.

Other provisions in the ordinance are:

Incline to ground from point north of Montrose boulevard allowed.

Subways at Clark and Lake streets and State and Lake streets, underneath station buildings, to connect opposite sides of stations permitted.

Street intersections to be lighted. Stations are to be reconstructed where platforms are lengthened.

Connection of stub terminal of Metropolitan with loop at Fifth avenue permitted.

JURY IN A DEADLOCK IN THE WALKER ESTATE SUIT.

No Verdict Reached at a Late Hour and Case May Have to Be Heard Again—Big Sum Is Involved.

The jury in the $250,000 "light, noise, and jarring" suit brought by the W. D. Walker estate against the Union Elevated railroad company was apparently in a "deadlock" last night, and unless an agreement is reached by 9:30 o'clock this morning the twelve men who have listened to the hearing of the case for nine weeks will be discharged and another trial will be necessary.

The jury went out at 10:15 o'clock yesterday morning and late in the night word came from the jury room that an agreement had not been reached and the attorneys in the case were called to a consultation.

Attorney F. W. Walker declared that if an agreement was not reached by midnight the elevated road would favor the discharge of the jury and the retrial of the case. Attorney Nathan Moore, representing the Walker estate, objected to this and asked that the jurors be held until this morning. This was agreed to.

WILL OF CHARLES NETCHER FILED IN PROBATE COURT.

Value of Estate Said to Be $500,000, but May Be Much More—Left in Trust for Widow and Children.

The will of Charles Netcher of the Boston store was filed in the Probate court yesterday afternoon. The estate is said to be worth $500,000, but the value may be much greater. No mention is made of $500,000 life insurance the testator recently obtained.

One-third of the income of the estate is to be paid to the widow and the rest to the children. When the age of 30 years is reached each child is to be given $100,000 to start in business or for such purposes as may be desired. The testator, however, stipulated that he desired his children encouraged in thrift and industry. The will declares that they should not be given the means for extravagance or ideness.

A petition will be filed today to have a conservator appointed in accordance with the terms of the will.

PLAY JOKE ON BRIDAL COUPLE.

Friends of Young St. Louis Man Decorate House He Lives In with Huge Signs.

St. Louis, Mo., June 23.—[Special.]—Passersby in Washington avenue Thursday morning were treated to an unusual sight.

At 2808, from the top of the house, was suspended a large paper sign, about 15 feet long and 6 feet wide, and on it was painted: "We have just been married. Will answer all questions after July 1. Please do not disturb us."

Below this was a smaller one, which read: "Just married. Al C. Dette, upstairs. At home from 9 a. m. to 9 p. m."

From the roof of the house and the corners of the sign were strings of old shoes.

Dette is a salesman in a book and stationery store, 505 Franklin avenue, and his wife was formerly a nurse at the Lutheran hospital.

FIRST UP, THEN DOWN.

SHARP BULGE IN WHEAT ALL LOST AT THE CLOSE.

Shorts in the Old July Run In on a Cent Advance, but Market Breaks Quickly Under Offerings Brought Out at the Higher Price—A Similar Experience in July Corn — Oats Hardly Move—The Advance in Provisions Continues.

Shorts in old July wheat had an uncomfortable time of it for the first half of the session during which the price worked up 1c to 87c. There was a good deal of buying of old July from the start against sales of the new July by a broker supposed to represent an elevator interest which was closing a spread. Offerings were moderate and local bulls seized the opportunity to help boost the price. From 86c to 86½c the advance was slow and around the latter figure there was some selling by commission houses, which was all absorbed, and there followed a quick spurt to 87c, where there was liberal local covering, but the early buyers as a rule were satisfied with the advance and offerings became so free the market worked off about as quickly as it had advanced, and while the July closed firm there were losses of ⅛c to ¼c in all the other deliveries. The old July went to a premium of 1½c over the new. There were various motives for the early firmness, an advance of ⅜d to ½d at Liverpool on unfavorable weather in Argentine, light receipts northwest, a decrease of 700,000 bu in five days in Minneapolis stocks, and reports of fancy prices paid for one or two cars of new wheat at St. Louis, $1.05 to $1.07½. Primary receipts were only 214,000 bu, compared with 290,000 bu last year.

Some News Not Bullish

But there were other reports from St. Louis which were the reverse of bullish, claims farmers were getting fair yields from fields they threatened to plow up in the spring, and that Cairo millers were buying wheat at 78c. Duluth reported larger receipts, 113 cars estimated for today, and declared the cash business extremely dull. Other markets failed to follow the extreme advance here and generally closed lower. The market was a narrow one on the decline, as on the advance. It did not take much buying to put it up, but when the local shorts were in it took as little selling to force the break. Clearances were 41,000 bu wheat and flour, including 8,000 bu wheat. Export sales of 56,000 bu were claimed, all Manitobas. The local cash market was steady, with sales of 5,000 bu. One of the speculative features was the buying of old July by Kidston, who sold new July against most of the purchases. Buying by Ware, Pringle, and Lake helped the advance. Cudahy brokers sold on the downturn and Ware turned a seller. Argentine shipments were estimated at 1,600,000 bu.

Spurt in July Corn

Offerings of July corn were scarce at the opening, the buying of about 50,000 bu for whom it may concern was magnified into a much larger transaction and aroused needless fears of some failure in the trade, thus alarming shorts, who covered freely and rushed the price up ⅝c to 49⅝c. But there was selling on the advance by holders, the demand was soon filled, and the market eased back 1c, closing at the bottom at a net loss of ⅛c, the deferred deliveries unchanged. The movement continues light, but freer country offerings, both in this state and in the west, were reported. There were 218 cars in and 305 estimated for today. Cash prices were steady to ⅜c higher, the shipping demand extremely dull, with sales of 25,000 bu reported. Withdrawals from store were only 1,200 bu, and that No. 4 corn. Primary receipts were 331,000 bu, compared with 551,000 bu a year ago. Clearances were 88,000 bu, export sales at the seaboard 16,000 bu. Broomhall estimated Argentine exports at 2,400,000 bu for the week. On passage cargoes, however, were 1½d higher and Liverpool was up ¼d for futures and ½d for spot Argentine.

Dull Time in Oats

There was hardly enough trade in the oats pit to make a market. A little easiness developed in the July on small offerings, the close ¼-⅜c lower for the day, while September and December kept in a narrow range and closed unchanged. There were 109 cars in and 67 estimated for today. Cash prices were steady, the shipping demand moderate, sales about 80,000 bu. Clearances were 17,000 bu.

Cudahy Buying Continues.

There was more buying of provisions by the Cudahys, and the market got a good upward start in spite of lower hog prices. Best prices were 7½@20c over the close the day before, and they came after the buying of a half million ribs each by Roloson and Cudahy Packing company started covering by some of Wednesday's sellers, Tietjens and others. On the advance there was profit taking by outsiders and selling by the smaller local and western packers. At the close pork held 10c of the early advance, lard 2½@5c, and ribs 5@7½c. Hog receipts were under the estimate, 27,000, and 20,000 are expected today. Prices at the yards were 5c lower early, but recovered some later. Liverpool lard was 3d lower. Shipments of meats were slightly under last year, but of lard about double a year ago.

Rye Up Two Cents.

Rye was strong in line with early wheat strength, and held strong to the end, no selling orders appearing on the advance. June was nominally 65c, July 60c, and September 55c asked. Fancy No. 3 sold at 61c f. o. b. Receipts were 5 cars and shipments nothing.

Feed grades of barley were fully 1c lower, sales from 33@38c, and malting steady, sales from 39@48c, with fancy quoted at 56c. Screenings ranged from 30@40c. Receipts were 12 cars and shipments 6,892 bu.

Flaxseed was steady to 1c higher. July sold at $1.01 and September was nominally $1.05. No. 1 northwestern bids were at $1.07 and No. 2 was nominally $1.01. Receipts were 2 cars here, 4 at Minneapolis, and 6 at Duluth, compared with 40 cars at the three points last year.

Timothy seed was dull and steady, June and July nominally $2.92½, and September $3.12½ bid and $3.20 asked. Country lots sold from $2.35@2.80, offerings small. Clover seed was nominally unchanged, June $10.75, and bag lots $8.00 for poor to $10.00 for fancy.

HIGHER PRICES FOR POTATOES.

Receipts Smaller and Demand Active—Berries About Steady—Beans Are Lower.

There was a better demand for potatoes and smaller receipts yesterday. This change in conditions improved the tone of the market, and an advance of 3@5c was obtainable. The retailers' half holiday cut down the demand for berries, and late in the day lower prices were the rule. White beans were 3c lower, with offerings liberal. Quotations were as follows:

INTERESTING TRADE GOSSIP ON 'CHANGE.

One of the features of the wheat market was extensive buying of old July against sales of the new, which put the old to a premium of 1½c. The business was done by Kidston and was supposed to be a changing order for one of the big elevator interests which had been buying the old July and selling the new a day or two ago at 1c difference on the theory there would be so little hard winter wheat here in July that the two deliveries would come together. As the No. 2 hard winter wheat is deliverable on old July contracts at a penalty of 5c, while it can be delivered on the new July contracts at a difference of 2c, the extent of the arrivals of wheat of that quality during July might have a marked effect on the fluctuations of the two styles of contracts. If there should be little of the No. 2 hard winter here, or it should continue at a premium even over the old July as at present, there would be no excuse for an old July premium. On the other hand, if there should be a free movement to market, the new July might go to a wider discount. Advices from the southwest yesterday were that farmers were contracting their wheat freely on the basis of about 83c to 85c Chicago, and that there might be a considerable movement to this market in July. One thing is certain, that there will be none of the movement to the gulf on export sales which was so heavy last year unless a big export demand should develop in the near future. Millers will want a good deal of the first arrivals, but if they also should be inclined to buy as sparingly as possible there might be a liberal movement to terminal markets. The changing operations in the pit yesterday suggested the expectation of such a movement in this direction.

The Duluth grain people steadfastly refused to furnish any encouragement for the upturn in wheat. It was reported early from there that there were 113 cars on track which would show in today's receipts, or as much as the receipts for any two days in several weeks, and Spencer-Moore wired Daggett: "Can't get a peep on cash wheat from any one; our market sellers now at the price bid last night; reports from the west keep way up and from western Dakota they are sensationally good as to condition and increase in acreage." Nothing more was heard from that quarter of any uneasiness over the conditions in the Red river valley, and in fact the nearest approach to a bullish suggestion on the crop outlook was the reminder of Van Dusen-Harrington that conditions were now so good they could not improve and any change would have to be for the worse.

There was a sharp advance of ⅞c in July corn, to which the purchase of 45,000 bu by Gibson, "for account of whom it may concern," contributed not a little. That is the usual formula for closing out trades for some one who has failed. The extent of the purchase was exaggerated, and in the fear there might be more of it shorts covered freely. It turned out the purchase was merely the taking off of a hedge against a cargo of No. 3 corn, which had been rejected on the ground that it did not come up to grade. The seller of the corn had threatened to put it on the market "for account of whom it may concern," and the July hedge was taken off on the same terms. The dispute may or may not be taken before the arbitration committee.

Minneapolis mills last week made 8,400 brls more flour than in the preceding week, says the Northwestern Miller. The mills are running considerably lighter, respectively, than they usually do. This week 16 are in motion, and the production should approximate 325,000 brls. The same week in 1903 the output was 305,790 brls. Business with the Minneapolis mills was dull. Sales failed to equal the output by considerable margin. However, shipping directions on old orders came in quite freely, and millers are cleaning up old orders in a surprising manner. Some of these orders were for flour at prices above the present market. Export business is as impossible as ever.

St. Louis advices reported a car of new wheat from Missouri selling at $1.07½ and told of $1.05 being offered for a car of new wheat of fine quality from the Indian territory, which weighed 61 lbs to the bu and graded No. 2 red. As an offset to these fancy figures it was reported, also by way of St. Louis, that a Cairo, Ill., miller had bought 10,000 bu new wheat to arrive at 78c at his mill, and that a farmer in St. Charles county, who expected to plow up 1,000 acres of wheat last spring because the plant was dead, but for some reason had forgotten or overlooked it, now had eleven binders at work.

Continental bids for new hard winter wheat for July shipment are firmer, cables yesterday offering 80c f. o. b. Galveston, or about 1c higher. There is so far, however, no improvement in the bids for deferred shipment, and there is no possibility of accepting the bids for July shipment, as dealers are contracting for the new wheat in the southwest on the basis of about 83¼c to 85c Chicago, and it would cost as much to ship it to the gulf.

Schwabacker's estimate of local provision stocks made the pork 52,000 brls, lard 121,000 tcs, and ribs 20,750,000 lbs. These figures show a decrease of 1,000 lbs of pork, an increase of 7,000 tcs of lard, and an increase of 150,000 lbs of ribs over last week's estimate, and a decrease of nearly 1,000 brls in pork, an increase of 7,000 tcs of lard, and 2,750,000 lbs of ribs since June 1.

St. Louis wired: "A farmer who owns a large farm down in the American bottoms says he expects all of the farms that were overflowed last year to make phenomenal yields this year, as last year's overflow deposited a silt on the land that fertilized it; that wheat will move freely this year from that section, as the bottom farmers are all hard up."

The Price Current says: "All crops making favorable progress. Wheat heading out favorably, and where harvesting has begun the outcome equals or exceeds previous expectations. Corn mostly clean and of good color, but backward in growth. Oats maintaining about an average condition."

A message from Scott county, in west central Illinois, to Wright-Bogert: "Wheat is getting ripe in nice shape and will be of good quality and fine berry. It is filled better this year than it ever was since 1896, and Scott county is raising one-quarter more wheat than last year."

The transportation committee will attend the general trade meeting at the Auditorium Annex on Tuesday, when the question of uniform bills of lading will be considered.

A Vienna cable said: "Terrible hailstorms have swept over many parts of Morga, Moravia, and Hungary, and immense damage has been done to crops."

Estimated receipts for today are: Wheat, 9 cars; corn, 305 cars; oats, 67 cars; rye, 1 car; barley, 16 cars; hogs, 20,000 head.

Sales of wheat for delivery in May, 1905, were made yesterday at 81⅞@82⅛c. The first sale was at 82⅛c.

The only charters reported were for 28,000 bu corn to Port Huron on the M. T. Green at 1c.

LOCAL STOCKS ARE DULL.

LITTLE MOTIVE FOR ACTIVE TRADING AT THIS TIME.

Small Chance of a Dividend on Metropolitan "L" Preferred—Local Commission Houses Talk of Change in Chairmanship of Exchange—Paris Bankers Say New York Houses Saved Money by Exporting Gold in Making Panama Payments.

Business on the local exchange yesterday was slow. The recent activity in Swift & Co. shares was lacking. Metropolitan L preferred sold at 55. For the latter stock there is not much prospect of a dividend being declared at the July meeting of the board.

There was nothing doing in the Northwestern L shares, although the prospect of completing an arrangement with the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul for a connection between Wilson avenue and Evanston is much improved.

The Union Traction and North and West Side stocks show no activity of consequence pending developments.

Local Exchange Conditions.

The fact that the local stock exchange must secure another chairman has led to a renewal of talk as to what can be done to increase interest and activity in trading. In some quarters there is a desire to have a chairman who can influence trade.

But the main proposition appears to work back to the brokers themselves. There is not a united effort among local commission houses to direct trade to the exchange. The argument against advising purchases there is that the market is so narrow and dull that difficulty would be experienced in selling securities once purchased. Inasmuch as all the large houses turn their customers to the New York instead of recommending purchases on the Chicago exchange, the condition deplored is the one created. If the houses with considerable clientage should try to build up the exchange by placing business with it the market would be broadened by so much.

But any reasoning of this nature advanced is likely to be scouted as missing the point and something trivial urged instead.

Why Gold Was Exported.

According to the Paris correspondent of the London Financial Times the recent heavy shipments of gold from New York to Paris were a profitable method of meeting an obligation when compared with the cost of buying exchange. The Paris view of the operation is as follows:

"From an exclusively financial standpoint the Panama transaction has now been completed, and it only remains for the firms interested to receive checks drawn as the counterpart of the gold that has been shipped. If instead of making the payment in metal the United States had desired to pay in paper it could have done so. As, however, at this time of the year it would have been impossible to lay hands on sufficient paper in France, it would have been necessary to send first class drafts at three months' sight pending the American export season—from July to December—but the period of three months probably would have been too short, and it might have become necessary to renew the drafts.

"By paying in gold the cost, as I have pointed out, represents 2.50 francs a thousand, which covers everything. This represents thirty days' interest at 3 per cent. A three months' draft would, therefore, represent 7.50 francs and a six months' draft 15 francs per mille. The saving effected by sending the metal is thus considerable. In the case of the Panama payment the cost is paid in drafts at ninety days' sight would have represented £30,000, whereas the cost of sending the metal is but £10,000, a saving of £20,000.

"The conclusion to be drawn is that when money is abundant, the cheapest, the surest, and quickest method of settling international accounts, together with the interest due, is by making payment in gold."

International Financing.

The impression is gaining in New York bond circles that some important international financing is under way. The departure for Europe at the end of the month of several leading financiers is commented upon in this connection.

It is known that for some time certain American banking houses have been endeavoring, without success, to interest foreign bankers in contemplated loans.

General Financial News.

It is reported that although the interest on the first mortgage 4 per cent bonds of the Colorado Midland has not been earned in the current six months, the interest will be duly paid, the two railroads which control the stock being directly interested in maintaining their joint control of the property.

The Michigan Central and Erie, both of which have been benefited by the tieup of lake tonnage, will suffer curtailment of traffic compared with other roads.

An officer of the Republic Iron and Steel company says that as generally known the first six months of the company's fiscal year, ended Dec. 31, 1903, were poor. From January up to the present time business has been much better, and the year's showing may not prove such a poor one as many persons have been led to expect.

An officer of the Pullman company says there is work enough on hand to carry the company through the summer, and enough orders, all of which are small contracts, keep coming in to maintain a steady situation.

The Mexican Central railway is said to have on deposit with a Boston institution sufficient funds with which to pay the July coupons on its 4 per cent consolidated mortgage bonds.

Since last Friday the New York subtreasury has lost $519,000 to the banks. It was a debtor at the clearing house yesterday morning to the extent of $714,170.

Dividends Declared.

The regular quarterly dividend of 1¼ per cent on the preferred stock of the Cleveland, Cincinnati, Chicago and St. Louis railway company will be paid on July 20 to holders of record on June 30.

The Canada Southern railway company has declared the semi-annual dividend of 1¼ per cent, payable on Aug. 1 to holders of record on June 30. This dividend is a reduction of ¼ of 1 per cent from the dividend paid on Feb. 1 last. At this time last year a dividend of 1 per cent was declared.

The Procter & Gamble company has declared the regular quarterly dividend of 2 per cent on its preferred stock, payable on July 15 to holders of record on June 30.

Pig Iron Market.

Rogers, Brown & Co. say:

"It is noticeable that inquiries and sales during the present week show a fairly good increase and consequently a better feeling prevails.

"As far as southern iron is concerned the possible labor difficulties in that section are reflected here in the disinclination to accept extended deliveries at present prices, and an effort to secure a little advance for deliveries over, say, the next thirty or sixty days. The same low prices prevail for immediate deliveries.

"Lake Superior coke iron, especially in this immediate vicinity, is holding its price rather firmly with an advancing tendency.

"Foundrymen are reporting more work in sight, and the feeling among them seems to be of a hopeful nature.

"This market has been relieved of the heavy stocks of coke which were on track for so long, and transactions are now being made at normal prices and for shipments from the ovens."

Stock Exchange Closes July 2-4.

The governing committee of the New York stock exchange has voted to close July 2 as well as 4.

According to action taken by the Chicago stock exchange the latter will also be closed on the days mentioned.

Devitt, Tremble & Co.

Devitt, Trimble & Co. announce that Dr. John E. Beebe has associated himself with the firm and will hereafter be identified with the sales department.

CHICAGO LIVE STOCK MARKET.

Cattle Trade Dull, with Small Receipts, Hogs Five Cents Lower, and Sheep Steady.

The live stock yesterday included 5,000 cattle, 25,000 hogs, and 10,000 sheep. The market for cattle was slow but steady at Wednesday's prices. Hogs generally were 5c lower. Sheep were steady, but lambs suffered another 25c decline. Unevenness in receipts of cattle have been responsible to a certain extent for the severe slump in prices this week. There has been some effort to induce the country to distribute receipts of cattle more equally during the week, and for this purpose a special meeting of the Live Stock exchange and allied interests was held in the exchange hall yesterday afternoon.

The following is a statement of the movement of live stock at the Chicago stockyards for the period indicated, with comparative figures:

Cattle.

While the receipts of cattle were lighter than usual on a Thursday the demand was slack, the channels of outlet having become pretty well filled out of the big run of Wednesday and buyers were not disposed to take hold freely. Quotations:

Good to prime steers	$5.50@6.45
Poor to medium	4.50@5.50
Stockers and feeders	3.00@4.50
Cows	2.00@4.50
Heifers	2.50@5.25
Canners	1.75@2.75
Bulls	2.50@4.75
Calves	2.50@5.25
Texas fed cattle	5.00@5.50
Distillery cattle	5.00@6.20

Hogs.

A moderately liberal run of hogs was of much poorer quality than the arrivals of the previous day. The market was slow to start and bulk of the crop sold fully 5c under Wednesday's prices, with a trade or two in fancy butchers reaching $5.37 1-3, but with the bulk going at $5.20 to $5.30. A fair clearance was made on a basis of the following quotations:

Mixed and butchers'	$5.10@5.35
Good to heavy choice	5.30@5.37½
Rough heavy	5.10@5.25
Light	5.10@5.25
Bulk of sales	5.20@5.30

Sheep.

The market for sheep was unsatisfactory, with prices steady to around 15c lower. Most of the desirable handy weight mutton sold close to steady. Spring lambs were here in abundance and the market took another slump of 25c, with the best selling at 7c. Quotations:

Good to choice wethers	$4.75@5.25
Fair to choice mixed	3.75@5.00
Clipped western sheep and yearlings	4.50@5.50
Shorn western lambs	6.00@6.75
Spring lambs	4.50@7.00

IN THE NEW YORK MARKETS.

NEW YORK, June 23.—The dry goods market has not developed according to the expectations of sellers and they are disappointed in the reception with which the revised prices have met at the hands of buyers. The latter, however, seem to have no confidence in the situation and are anticipating further revisions, which, however, sellers claim are impossible.

Employment Agencies.

YOU CAN READILY UNDERSTAND that our plan of doing business compels us to actually find employment for people or go out of business. Well, we're not going out of business, so the only thing for us to do is to hustle you up a good position and get paid for it. That's the only way we can keep going. By this we want you to understand that we won't "loaf" when you come to see us; we'll get busy in your behalf.

SOMETHING NEW IN CHICAGO! THE GREAT BARGAIN SALESROOM OF PIANOS IN LYON & HEALY'S.

SCORES OF NEW AND USED INSTRUMENTS! FOUR GREAT GROUPS OF BARGAINS!

GROUP A $350 AND UPWARD. Steinway and Weber uprights, shopworn and slightly used, latest designs in fancy woods. A wonderful array of artistic uprights at prices much reduced.

GROUP B. Special Knabe values. About 20 magnificent Knabe uprights of special styles at a reduction of $40 each.

GROUP C $190 AND UPWARD. Krakauer, Wheelock, Sterling, Huntington, and other famous eastern makes, returned from short rentals, at almost half their intrinsic value. Instruments by makers of unquestioned prestige.

GROUP D $100 AND UPWARD. Used uprights of popular makes. Also a large number of new uprights in mahogany, oak, and walnut cases, in beautiful designs, from $125 up. A visit of inspection will convince any capable critic that such values are quite out of the ordinary. We can heartily recommend a choice made from the foregoing groups. These instruments have been assembled in such a way that an intelligent selection is easily arrived at. Whether prepared to buy or not, you will be cordially welcome.

NEW DESIGNS. Our regular stock of 600 pianos of twenty great makes contains many designs that will not be shown elsewhere for a year to come.

Easy monthly payments may be arranged. On low priced instruments, $10 down and $5 a month. And remember that when you buy from us you avoid all risk. We stand back of every instrument we sell.

DO NOT FAIL TO MAKE A VISIT OF INSPECTION TO OUR GREAT BARGAIN SALESROOMS. LYON & HEALY, "The name that guarantees musical quality." Wabash-av. and Adams-st.

GEORGE ADE PROVES AN ALIBI.

Offending Auto Blue and He Was Riding in a Red One—Two Men Fined in Evanston.

The charge against George Ade of speeding his automobile beyond the limit was dismissed yesterday by Justice Charlton. South Park Policeman McDonald testified that a blue automobile numbered 595 had dashed through Washington park at high speed. Number 595 is that of George Ade. Mr. Ade showed that his automobile is painted red and that he was riding in the red car on the day in question.

Two automobilists were fined $20 and costs each for exceeding the speed limit by Judge Ely of Evanston. They were Pierre A. Gilliland, 1527 Church street, Evanston, and John R. Haugan.

Joseph Ward, 850 West Fifty-fifth street, was knocked down and run over by an automobile operated by Daniel M. Lord of the Chicago Beach hotel at Sixty-third street and Jackson Park avenue. Ward was running from Jackson park and he failed to see the automobile.

REBUKES POLICE OF EVANSTON.

Judge Tuley Reverses Conviction of Man Arrested as Lounger While Walking Near Depot.

Conviction by Justice Boyer was reversed and the Evanston police rebuked yesterday afternoon by Judge Tuley. Michael McElligott, the appellant, testimony showed, is a respectable citizen of Evanston and the father of eight children. He is a sewer contractor and was walking near the Evanston depot when Policeman Jamison arrested him for lounging. McElligott was fined $3. It is said Justice Boyer permitted the police to testify to things alleged to have occurred during eighteen months.

BIG LAKE FOREST SALE.

HAROLD M'CORMICK BUYS THIRTY ACRES FOR $50,000.

Property Lies East of Sheridan Road and South of Jefferson Avenue, and with His Other Holdings Gives Him 102 Acres—Isaac F. Rubel Makes a Building Loan of $200,000 for Downtown Structure — Other Real Estate Deals.

F. C. Aldrich, representing the estate of Daniel A. Jones, has sold to Harold F. McCormick a tract of 30.7 acres at Lake Forest for $50,000. The property is situated just east of Sheridan road and south of Jefferson avenue. Mr. McCormick owns a tract of about seventy-one acres adjacent to this running through to the lake, the new purchase giving him nearly 102 acres.

Building Loan of $200,000.

As a preliminary to the construction of an eight story building at the northeast corner of Jackson boulevard and Green street Isaac F. Rubel has executed a trust deed to the Federal Trust and Savings bank to secure a building loan of $200,000 running one year at 6 per cent. The building will be of mill construction, 195x118 feet, and will cost about $250,000.

Other Important Loans Made.

The Northwestern Mutual Life Insurance company has made a loan of $45,000 for five years at 4½ per cent to Charles F. Gunther, secured by the property at 306 State street, 24¾x100 feet, with five story building.

The Chicago Title and Trust company is trustee in a loan of $36,000 for five years at 5 per cent to Louis C. Wagner, secured by the flat property at the southeast corner of Kimbark avenue and Sixty-sixth street, with 100x165 feet of ground.

Deals in Apartment Houses.

Alexander Stewart has given a trust deed to Hiram H. Rose for $14,000 for five years at 5½ per cent covering the flat property in Malden street, 205 feet south of Leland avenue, with 50x160 feet of ground, west front.

Willis & Frankenstein have sold for William T. Woodley to Barbara E. Holbrook the six flat building at 5124-5126 Indiana avenue for $25,000, Mr. Woodley taking in part payment 100 feet vacant in Sixtieth street, 100 feet east of Vincennes avenue.

Frederick W. Hunerberg has sold to Charles G. Davis 50x150 feet vacant in Grand boulevard, 250 feet north of Forty-seventh street, east front, for $16,000, including an incumbrance of $9,000.

Transfer in Dearborn Avenue.

For $1 W. D. Boyce has conveyed to William Place 25x100 feet, with brick business improvements, at the southwest corner of Dearborn avenue and Illinois street. The purchaser deeded the property in trust to Helge A. Haugan for the State Bank of Chicago to secure a loan of $13,500 for five years at 5 per cent.

For a nominal consideration Erick T. Jahr has assigned to Wesley H. Tice the leasehold and building at 2317-19 Wabash avenue, 49½x192¾ feet. The original lease was made by Thomas R. Lyon to Daniel M. McKindley for a term of ninety-nine years from June 10, 1891, at an annual rental of $1,200.

FRAUD IN PIE EATING CONTEST.

Competitor in "Poor Children's Picnic" Contest Is Caught Concealing the Crusts.

Harry Edwards, small and black, yesterday won the pie eating contest, "open to the colored nation," at the twentieth annual "Poor Children's Picnic" given by the Volunteers of America at Washington park. He might not have won had not the referee detected his nearest competitor concealing crusts in his vest—outside the skin.

The picnic was attended by nearly 12,000 mothers and children from the congested river wards, the tenement districts, and the Ghetto. Nearly 16,000 boxes of lunches prepared by school children were distributed, and there was more than enough for all. The 200 gallons of ice cream disappeared. The last drop of the 1,000 gallons of lemonade went down the throats of the thirsty contestants of the pie eating contest after it was "all over except the shouting."

Hundreds of pounds of candy, popcorn, and peanuts, five cases of crackerjack, and thirty-two prizes were distributed. There were running races, sack races, three legged races, and wheelbarrow races.

The celebration began early—with the annual parade through downtown streets. The line formed at Wabash avenue and Hubbard court. With a band and headed by twenty-five policemen and Gen. Fielding and his staff the march was made to the Congress street station of the South Side "L."

Special trains running continuously from 9 o'clock till 5 in the evening handled the crowds that all day flowed to the park. Maj. P. J. Welch had charge of the arrangements and Maj. Frank McCormick was referee at the athletic contests.

HAMBURGHER CASES IN TANGLE.

Justice's Death Probably Will Require Filing of New Suits in Actions Now Pending.

What is to be done with the cases pending in the court of the late Justice E. C. Hamburgher is the question which has been puzzling persons interested in the cases. New suits probably will be instituted in other justice courts, and the ones pending will be nonsuited by the successor of Mr. Hamburgher. One of the cases is that of M. S. Kirby, who charges John Conley with assault. The case was set for hearing yesterday. Both men live at 308 Chicago avenue.

DEATH OF SEVENTH RELATIVE.

Sister of Mrs. W. M. Hoyt Succumbs, Five Were Lost in Iroquois, and One Later.

With the death of her sister, Mrs. William M. Hoyt of Chicago and Winnetka has just lost her seventh near relative within a few months. Mrs. George P. Kellogg of Winthrop Harbor succumbed to paralysis Tuesday evening at the Hoyt residence in Winnetka. In the Iroquois fire Mr. and Mrs. Hoyt lost their daughter, Mrs. F. M. Fox, and their four grandchildren. Mr. Fox died recently in the east.

CLING TO A CAPSIZED BOAT.

Two Northwestern University Students Are Rescued by the Crew from Life Saving Station.

The life saving crew yesterday rescued F. O. Potter and G. B. Kean, Evanston students of Northwestern university. The men went out fishing and their boat capsized. They had clung to the overturned craft for several hours and were gradually being borne out into the lake by an off shore wind when they were seen from the shore.

CROWD AT MOLLY MOTT TRIAL.

Eight Jurors Already Secured and Testimony May Be Begun This Afternoon.

Eight jurors were secured yesterday to try Mollie Mott for the murder of Frederick A. Hart. The other four probably will be secured this morning and the taking of evidence will follow. The courtroom was crowded.

The charge against the woman is that she shot Hart during a quarrel at 536 Thirty-third street, on March 25, 1903.

Illinois Sunday Schools End Session.

Salem, Ill., June 23.—[Special.]—The twenty-sixth annual convention of the Illinois State Sunday School association of the Cumberland Presbyterian church here finished its work and closed tonight with an address by the Rev. S. U. Lienback of Lincoln. The Rev. A. P. Stephens of Chicago had charge of the devotional exercises and the Rev. Hay Bell of Wellsville, Mo., of the open air services. R. H. McHenly of Table Grove was elected president, Frank Medley of Flora vice president, and the Rev. G. A. Willson of Danvers, secretary.

RAID THE TRACK? NOT "UP TO ME."

Sheriff Barrett Refuses to Stop Gambling Today at the Hawthorne Meet.

MUST HAVE COURT ORDER.

Cases Against "Patsy" and John King, Reputed Policy Chiefs, Go to a Jury Today.

Gambling at the Hawthorne race track today will be "wide open," so far as interference from Sheriff Barrett is concerned.

"Gambling has been permitted at these tracks for twenty years," said Sheriff Barrett yesterday, "and I see no reason for departing from the ways of my predecessors. What is all this cry about, anyway? Why is it 'up to me'? Who put it there?

"As these questions were not answered clearly," the sheriff continued, "I will do no more than I have done in the past. I will not take the initiative. If warrants are brought to me from the upper courts I will have to serve them. That is all."

In this way the sheriff turned aside from the rock in his path, but he admitted he was worrying about the possible action of the reform organizations.

Reform Organizations Not to Act.

"The report tha the anti-crime committee is about to enter the war against the bookmakers and appeal to the state to stop gambling at the Hawthorne track is not true," said President John H. Hartog. "This organization is not in the promiscuous reform business."

At the headquarters of the Citizens' association it was denied that that organization would take any part in the crusade against bookmaking, and the work of the Washington Park and Woodlawn Improvement associations does not extend beyond the southern boundaries of the city.

"The racetrack officials probably will seek to have gambling legalized by the next legislature," said Attorney P. S. Brown of the Washington Park association. "The property has no value for its present use, but we should fight if a move were made to legalize bookmaking."

The Washington Park club officials say they intend to obey the law. Permission will be asked to reopen Washington park, and have future Derbys there. Unless the mayor relents these efforts will be made in the state courts.

Policy Trials Nearly Ended.

The cases of "Patsy" and John King, accused by the Citizens' association of being the backers of the Interstate and Springfield policy book, will go to the jury in Judge Clifford's court today, after the closing speech by Assistant State's Attorney Barnes. Attorney Edward Morris and Assistant State's Attorney Lindley spent most of the afternoon session in speeches. Mr. Lindley said:

"Under the shadow of every church in Chicago, within the sound of every school bell, down every alley, are found the writers of policy. It is the first step in the life of gaining something for nothing. Schoolboys and newsboys are the pupils. These 'kings' of the game of policy have long considered themselves immune from the law. The maximum penalty of the law is not severe enough, for they make more than $200,000 a year. Will you stop it?"

Makes Five Gambling Raids.

"Patsy" King failed to take the stand.

With the Washington park problem off his mind, Assistant Chief Schuettler will at once redouble his efforts to stop gambling in all forms. Four raids were made yesterday, resulting in nine arrests for bookmaking. One place, 497 Lincoln avenue, was run by Mont Tennes.

Detectives from Inspector Shippy's office raided an alleged gambling room at the Revere house in the evening. Charles Walker was taken as keeper, and James Collopy, William Dalton, William Kelmer, Andrew Nelson, and Robert Wilson as inmates.

Six men were taken in a raid later on 260 North Clark street. Othello Dorsey was held as keeper.

ABDUCTS CHILD IN REVENGE.

Amelia Wakowski Is Charged with Taking Away Her Sister's Little Daughter.

Amelia Wakowski, 30 years old, yesterday was arrested charged with abducting the 5 year old daughter of her brother-in-law, John Pugis, 4314 Ashland avenue.

The child's mother was the woman's sister and since her death the aunt is said to have quarreled with Pugis.

The police say the motive for taking the little girl was revenge. According to Pugis, while he was at work yesterday morning, his sister-in-law went to his residence and took the girl away with her. When he returned at noon and found his daughter missing he made inquiries and was told that a woman had taken the little girl away.

Pugis suspected his sister-in-law. Many times, he said, Miss Wakowski had showed by her actions that she disliked the child.

Fearing the woman had taken the girl and would return to Lithuania with her, Pugis went to the police station and secured a warrant.

At the residence of the woman, Fourteenth and Jefferson streets, the police found Miss Wakowski and the child. The latter was taken charge of by Pugis, and her alleged abductor was taken to the Stockyards police station. She will be arraigned before Justice Fitzgerald this morning.

COURT RECORDS FAIL TO HOLD.

Robert Connelly, a Fugitive, Arrested, but Clerks Cannot Find Basis for a Mittimus.

Robert Connelly of Kansas City waited an hour yesterday in the Circuit court clerk's office while clerks searched the records for evidence on which to base a mittimus to send him to jail. As the long hunt ended a clerk declared Connelly was being held without warrant. The remark was overheard and ten seconds later Connelly was hastening to an elevator. The city detectives who had "bluffed" him into accompanying them from the Roanoke hotel were powerless to stop him, although all knew he was wanted as a fugitive charged with a land swindle in 1899. Mrs. Mary E. Moody of Hyde Park being the victim.

MEET IN INDIA: TO WED HERE.

Miss Martelle Elliot, a Missionary, and Mr. Arthur Davis, a Civil Engineer.

As the result of an acquaintance formed while each was in India a short time ago, Arthur Channier Davis, 50 years old, yesterday obtained a license to wed Miss Martelle Elliott. The latter was a missionary in Hyderabad, Deccan, and it was while she was at one of the meetings that Davis, who is a civil engineer, became acquainted with her. Miss Elliott is now visiting friends at 494 Dearborn avenue. Some time after the marriage they will return to India.

HURL BOTTLES AT PERFORMERS

Fight Is Caused by an Interruption at Performance in the Lyric Music Hall.

Charles Nigg and James Gallagher, it is charged, visited the Lyric Music hall, North Clark and Division streets, last evening and threw bottles at the performers.

Deputy Sheriff Edward Darragh interfered and one of the men knocked him down with a bottle.

Nigg and Gallagher were arrested. They had a woman's gold watch, and were ordered held for investigation.

OPEN NEW LAUNDRY FIGHT

DRIVERS THIS TIME START TROUBLE FOR ASSOCIATION.

Campaign of Union Against Old Organization Is Begun by Walkout at the Plant of Schriver Company, Whose Secretary Is Chairman of Employers' Organization—Teamsters Refuse to Recognize It—Butchers and Grocers' Men Make Peace.

Ten union drivers struck yesterday at the Schriver laundry, 602 West Lake street, as part of the campaign of the union on the Chicago Laundrymen's association. J. A. Barkey, chairman of the executive board of the association, is secretary of the laundry company. He said he had secured four non-union drivers and that he would resist the teamsters to the last.

The association embraces more than half of the larger laundries in Chicago. It had an "open shop" agreement with the teamsters last year, but at its expiration no contract was made.

Refuse to Recognize Association.

The drivers obtained a "closed shop" agreement from the United Laundrymen's association, a new organization, and refused to recognize the old association.

"We shall not bother with the old association," said Business Agent Fred Goggin, "but we shall go to the individual concerns. I should as soon have no contracts with them, but if they do not employ union drivers and do not pay the union wage scale we will go after them."

Mr. Barkey said his company was paying more than the union rate and employed members exclusively. The drivers ask $15 a week. Their picketing of the Fulton laundry, where no men were on strike, led to the issuing of an injunction last week.

Grocery Drivers Make Peace.

A settlement was made between the grocery and market drivers and the joint board of the seven butchers' and grocers' associations. Drivers of one horse are to receive $10 a week and drivers of two $14. Ten hours are to constitute a day in the winter and in the summer the men are to work eleven hours a day, with Thursday afternoon off. Overtime is to be paid for at the rate of 25 cents an hour.

Avert Lockout by Clothiers.

The forty cutters who quit "as individuals" at the clothing factory of M. Born & Co. returned to work. Their grievance is to be settled by the executive boards of the United Garment Workers and the National Wholesale Tailors' association. If the men had not gone back the employers were ready to declare the trade agreement with the union abrogated because of its violation by the workers.

Notes of Labor Affairs.

Business Agent Doyle of the stablemen was fined $25 by Justice Chott for interference with employes of the United States Express company's barn, where the stablemen are on strike.

The preliminary agreement signed by the Metropolitan railroad and its employes will be presented tomorrow night to the union for ratification.

ONE MAN DROWNS IN LAKE: TWO HAVE NARROW ESCAPE.

They Rent a Boat at Foot of Randolph Street, Row Out, and Little Craft Is Swamped by a Wave.

One person was drowned in the lake off the foot of Randolph street yesterday afternoon and two others narrowly escaped a like fate when a small boat in which they were seated was swamped.

The Dead.

COSTELLO, JOHN, 40 years old, laborer, Wells and Kinzie streets; body taken to Rolston's undertaking rooms, 22 Adams street.

The Rescued.

Downey, John, 32 years old, 318 Chicago avenue.
Johnson, Max, 34 years old, 318 Chicago avenue.

The men had engaged a rowboat and were rowing in the lake near the old government pier when the boat was swamped by a large swell. Johnson and Downey held to the boat until the life saving crew went to their rescue. They also clung to their companion and kept his body at the surface, but he was unconscious when the life savers arrived and could not be resuscitated.

SHOOTING IN OAK PARK FEUD.

Henry Wright Is Charged with Using a Revolver in a Quarrel with a Neighbor.

Henry Wright, 125 William street, Oak Park, and James Walker, a neighbor, quarreled last evening. As a result, the police assert, warrants will be obtained this morning, possibly for the arrest of both.

In the disturbance, according to the neighbors, Wright fired his revolver into the air. He declared Walker had insulted his wife while they were sitting on their front porch.

Walker sought shelter within his residence and the bullets said to have been fired in his direction wounded no one.

Walker was arrested a month ago, the police assert, on a charge of disturbing Wright's peace and was fined $25. Former fines which had been suspended increased the total to $40. The entire amount again was suspended pending Walker's leaving the village. He went to River Forest and secured employment at the golf club there. His first return to his residence was last evening.

LOCAL BREVITIES.

More Money for Schools.—Concurrence in the following measures passed by the board of education was recommended to the council yesterday by the schools committee: Normal school, additional appropriation, $100,000; Jefferson Park school, assembly hall, $20,000; John M. Smyth school, same, $20,000; school at Twenty-eighth street and Fortieth court, same, $25,000; school at Seventy-first and Loomis streets, same, $25,000.

Club to Lay Corner Stone.—The corner stone of the West End Woman's clubhouse, Ashland boulevard and Monroe street, will be laid at 2 o'clock tomorrow afternoon. The Rev. William M. Lawrence D. D., Prof. Hugh M. Scott, and the Rev. John Henry Hopkins will take part. Mrs. Bernard A. Eckhart will read a history of the club. Mrs. Albert G. Lane, the president, will use the trowel.

Teacher Must Return Money.—Miss Elizabeth Obenchain, 6146 Lexington avenue, received a judgment of $50 from Justice Underwood yesterday against Mrs. Lena A. White, proprietor of a shorthand school. Miss Obenchain said she paid $50 for a course in shorthand, and after she was "graduated" she was unable to take seven words dictation.

Indians Appeal to County.—The Indians injured in the recent Chicago and Northwestern train wreck yesterday applied for admission to the county hospital. Because they refused to accept the damages offered the road refused to longer maintain them in the Phoenix hospital.

Twice Overcome by Heat.—While on his way home yesterday afternoon Victor Scopic, 1546 North Lawndale avenue, suffered a sunstroke at Fullerton and Clybourn avenues. He was taken to the Alexian Brothers' hospital, and told the police he had been overcome once before this year.

Menoken Club to Have Outing.—The Menoken club will have its annual outing at Fox Lake tomorrow afternoon and evening. It will include a dinner and dance at the Minneola house. An attendance of more than 300 is expected.

Taken for Check Fraud.—Arthur Gladde, who is said to have passed worthless checks on which he realized $75 in Champlin, Ill., was arrested last evening at 3901 State street. A Champlin policeman will be sent for the man today.

Pulling Tooth Causes Death.—As the result of blood poisoning following the pulling of a tooth, Charles Myers, 1720 Oak avenue, Evanston, died yesterday afternoon. He was ill four days.

BOLDLY ROB AT BUSY 'L' STATION

Armed Men Work at 4:30 P. M. and Woman Cashier Stops Escape on Train.

ONE CAUGHT AFTER RUN.

Youths Secure $30 at Kedzie Avenue and Policeman Overtakes the Leader.

While passengers almost constantly were entering and leaving, two young men yesterday afternoon robbed the cashier in the Kedzie avenue station of the Metropolitan Elevated railroad. One of them was arrested after a chase of three blocks, and $15, said to be half of the money obtained in the holdup, was found in his possession. The other escaped.

It was 4:30 o'clock when the two men entered the station on the Douglas park branch. None but the cashier, Miss Laura Dolan, 851 Lawndale avenue, was in the structure. Going to the window as if to buy tickets the robbers drew revolvers and forced Miss Dolan to empty the till. An east bound train slowly pulled in.

Stops Them from Boarding Train.

"Hurry up and we can catch this train," cried one of the men as they ran toward the door. The second followed.

"Stop those men; they are thieves!" cried Miss Dolan as the guard was about to close the elevated train gate. She ran out and attempted to seize the second thief just as he stepped on the platform.

The men leaped past her and fled down the stairs. Miss Dolan followed, but was passed by Policeman Edward Hurley of the Desplaines street station, who had just entered the waiting room.

Policeman Overtakes the First.

Hurley followed the leader, who ran north, while the other turned south. After a hard run the policeman captured the fugitive, who gave the name of Ralph Dockery. The prisoner said he was 19 years old and lived at 56 Elizabeth street. A pocketful of change was taken from him.

The police are confident they will arrest the other man. Lieut. Johnson of the Hinman street police station is looking for William Bell, said to be well known to the police. A message giving his description has been sent to every police station in Chicago.

WOMAN WRITER AND DENTIST SECRETLY WED IN KENOSHA.

Miss Clara Norton, Novelist, and Dr. Frank Findley Fail to Hide Fact of Marriage from Friends.

Rather than risk the chances of an impending three months' separation, Miss Clara Norton, a magazine writer and the author of "When Society Tolls the Bell," unpublished, was secretly married to Dr. Frank Findley, a north side dentist, in Kenosha on June 9.

Hardly a whisper of the romance has reached the ears of the friends of the couple, and Dr. Findley's parents knew nothing of it before yesterday, when he visited their residence in Ottawa, Ill., and told them.

Dr. Findley has been practicing dentistry at 333 Ohio street during three years. Miss Norton resided at 244 Ohio street. When she announced that she intended to make a three months' visit to her parents in Iowa it precipitated a climax to their friendship and Dr. Findley proposed—not only marriage but also that they go immediately to Kenosha and have the ceremony performed before she left Chicago.

The plan was followed. The bride left for Iowa on the next day. Before her departure it was agreed that the matter be kept a secret until her return in the fall. The groom told a friend.

BLAZE IS CALLED 'SUSPICIOUS.'

Fire at 19-21 Randolph Street Causes $15,000 Damage in Five Story Building.

Fire at 19-21 Randolph street last evening threatened to destroy the five story structure, and caused a loss estimated at $15,000, as follows:

H. R. Eagle & Co., grocers, first floor, $2,000.
A. L. Randall & Co., florists, second floor, $500.
Bowden Felting Mills company, second floor, $2,000.
Korwin & Co., crockery, third to fifth floors, $5,500.
Building, $5,000.

The origin of the fire is not known, and, according to firemen, the cause is registered on the report to the fire alarm office as "suspicious." The fire is said to have started in the rear of the third floor. Soon after this fire was declared to have been found in another place.

WILL CLOSE LAIDLEY OFFICES.

Attorney for Receiver Gets Order to Sell Furniture in the Illinois Branches.

Attorney Jacob Ringer yesterday obtained an order from Judge Kohlsaat authorizing Edwin C. Day, who has been appointed receiver for W. H. Laidley & Co., 196 La Salle street, to sell the office fixtures in the branch offices of that company at Kankakee, Paxton, Champaign, Urbana, Tuscola, Arthur, Mattoon, Danville, and Hoopeston, Ill. The receiver will also turn over the certificates for twenty shares of the Amalgamated Copper stock to Harris & Wilmarth. Attorney Ringer said that he desired to dispose of the assets immediately to avoid paying further rent for the offices. Mr. Laidley has left the Metropole hotel, and it is not known there where he has gone.

CRIPPLES OFF FOR OUTING

SIXTY CHILDREN TAKEN TO FOX LAKE FOR THE SUMMER.

Picked Up at Dawn by the School Omnibuses and Taken to Union Station in Charge of Teachers, Caretaker, Nurse, and Two City Policemen, Who Will Remain with Them Throughout Their Stay at the Resort.

The sparrows were just waking yesterday morning when a heavy omnibus lumbered over the cobblestones in Halsted street and made its first stop at the curb in front of a long flight of stairs that connected a dark, narrow room with the light of day. Policeman Rigler climbed out of the omnibus and groped his way up the stairs. Presently he groped his way down again. In his arms he carried a little girl who could not walk.

This little girl was the first passenger picked up by omnibus No. 1 of the Crippled Children's school. At almost the same hour four other omnibuses picked up their first passengers. The destination of all of these little cripples was the Union depot, and after that Fox Lake, where they are to spend five weeks among the flowers. Their expenses will be paid by the Crippled Children's Outing and Luncheon association.

Bus No. 1 reached the Union depot at a little after 7 o'clock. It carried twenty-one passengers. They were lifted to trunk trucks and wheeled to the trunk elevator. The freight elevator carried its human load down to the level of the depot platform, and the children were wheeled to the train. The other four buses soon arrived, each bringing its full quota. Over sixty cripples were in the party. They were in charge of Mrs. Emma S. Haskell, principal of the school, and their teachers, Miss Minnia A. Marquart and Miss Mildred Holinger, Mrs. Lehman, a caretaker, a professional nurse, and two city policemen. All of these people will spend the summer with their crippled charges.

LIVE WIRE KILLS A LINEMAN.

Edward Conley While Working in Glencoe Is Shocked and Never Regains Consciousness.

Edward Conley, 913 Church street, Evanston, was killed yesterday morning by a shock from a live wire. He was employed by the Chicago Telephone company as a lineman, and was repairing wires in Glencoe. He never regained consciousness after the shock. Other accidents during the day were:

Conert, Mrs. Anna, 1509 Forty-fifth avenue, struck by engine while crossing the Belt line tracks at Sixteenth street; probably fatally injured.

Mathews, John, 22 years old; severely injured by falling off the footboard of a street car at Western boulevard and Ashland avenue.

Rawlins, Alfred, 18 years old, 121 Franklin avenue, jumped from Chicago and Northwestern train at Carpenter street to recover his hat, which had blown off; right leg fractured and body bruised.

A south bound Lincoln avenue cable train ran through an open switch at Lincoln and Wrightwood avenues last night. John Stewart, 15 Racine avenue, and Emil Frenzel, 646 Wells street, passengers, were thrown from the grip car and severely injured. The wreck delayed traffic nearly thirty minutes.

TRY IN VAIN TO BREAK SAFE.

Two Burglars Bind Watchman at 12 North Peoria Street, but Fail to Open Strong Box.

Amateur safe blowers yesterday morning made their second unsuccessful attempt within a week to open a safe in the Desplaines street police district. The attempt was made in the office of Hayes Bros., soda water manufacturers, 12 North Peoria street. Shortly after 2 a. m. Watchman John Huttman was confronted by two men, who pointed revolvers at him and soon had him bound and gagged. For two hours the men worked in vain trying to force the doors of the safe. The dial and mechanism of the outer door were wrecked.
